Hitler in May Day Talk Begs for World Peace; Soviet Holds War Show

1,000,000 HearFuehrer Speak; Moscow Cheers Martial Display.

England to Build Many New Planes

An Added $25,000,000 to Match Reich Force Is Reported.

May Day Abroad

At Berlin, Adolf Hitler told a throng of 1,000,000 that Germany is a land of peace.

Moscow declared the Soviet Union ready to repulse any invasion. A tremendous martial display drew cheers in Red Square.

In London, demands for world peace and denunciation of the armaments race were voiced as it was announced that Great Britain would spend $25,000,000 more this year to keep abreast of Germany in aerial strength.

A policeman was slain in a clash in the Kazanlik district of Bulgaria, when police broke up a banned communist meeting. An officer was killed in a fight at Bagnolet, France, and a policeman and a youth died in a Madrid skirmish.

Heavy patrols prevented violence in Vienna.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, May 1.—Adolf Hitler told the world again today that Germany wants only peace.

A million Nazi faithful who braved high winds and thunderstorms to gather at the great Tempelhof Airdrome to attend the capital's May Day celebration heard Der Fuehrer, bareheaded and speaking hoarsely, interrupt his eulogy of the Nazi movement to say:

"Our strength lies not in tanks, cannon and marching battalions, but in the unity of our people and its idealistic faith. * * *

"What we want is not war, not unrest. Just as we restored peace within Germany, we want peace abroad, because only then can our domestic works be a success. * * *"

Earlier in the day the sun peeped through clouds lowering over Berlin and Minister of Propaganda Paul Joseph Goebbels, too optimistic, promised the nation "Hitler weather" for the festivities.

Hardly had he finished speaking when snow and rain, blown by bitter winds, again began sweeping the capital. Stormy weather prevailed all over Germany, cutting down greatly the attendance at demonstrations in Hamburg, Beuthen, Cologne and other cities.

Der Fuehrer's 1,500-word extemporaneous address, shouted over the wind's roar, drew from the chilled, wet throng below his rostrum less applause than usually greets his addresses. A battery of microphones before him carried his words to all parts of the Reich.

His theme the assertion that Germans "are one people as ordained by God" and his conclusion the declaration that "my will must be your confession," Der Fuehrer gave the major part of his address over to an appeal for national unity, touching not at all upon

The Solution

To the Radio Thriller, 'What Would You Do?'

The solution of the tenth thrilling "What Would You Do?" real life drama broadcast Wednesday at 5:30 p. m. from WJEJ, Hagerstown, Md., follows:

Barry's wrists were locked by steel. His lips by an iron resolve. Mona read the resolve in his eyes.

"Morton looks more like a farm boy than an artist," Logan said reflectively. "That's a tip for the lawyer who defends him."

"He won't need a lawyer to defend him," Mona said suddenly. "I'll defend him—because I love him. I killed Clifford Bankston!"

"Don't believe her, Logan!" Barry's handcuffed hands reached for Mona. But she stood facing the district attorney's man.

"I killed Bankston. I made the imprint of those lips on Bankston's cheek. They are an exact model of my mother's lips. I murdered Bankston—in justice. He killed my mother by breaking my father in business—and killing him, too. Now, take those handcuffs off Barry Morton and put them on me!" She held out her arms.

You remember Mona's trial. The jury brought in a verdict of second-degree manslaughter with a recommendation for mercy. The judge gave her ten years. She died after six—of a broken heart, they say, like her mother.

Barry? He farms in Iowa from April until November. And paints from November until April. Yes—with Mary!

Girl Speaks at D. C. May Day Rally

Amid banners calling for liberation of Tom Mooney, Thaelmann and others, Gertrude Thorp is shown addressing the Communist meeting held yesterday in Franklin Park.

Radicals, Coronation, Health Share May Day Honors in City

All Is Orderly at Franklin Park Red Rally; Wheatley School Crowns Queen, Others Hold Contests, Physical Exams; 150,000 March in N. Y.

In common with the rest of the country, Washington yesterday celebrated May Day in orderly fashion, assimilating communistic oratory and personal hygiene advice alike with calm and patience.

Sixteen thousand policemen were on duty to prevent disturbances as 150,000 Communists and Socialists marched in New York, while a half-dozen park policemen were successful in keeping order at the Capital's Red rally in Franklin Park.

There was only one heckler and he was quickly silenced after demanding to know who killed Horst Wessel, hero of the Nazis. About 300 persons participated in the local demonstration, all but 20 or so of them being disinterested spectators.

Dorothy Lichens was crowned queen of the May at Wheatley School, hundreds of children of preschool age received physical examinations, playgrounds conducted athletic efficiency contests and defenders of Tom Mooney renewed their demand for his freedom—all in observance of the first day of May.

Reminder to President.

The Tom Mooney Defense Committee of Washington made public a letter to President Roosevelt in which the latter is reminded that more than 30 members of Congress "have made known their deep concern about the case within recent weeks."

Among the Senators named were Nye, Schall, Clark, Pope, Bone, Cutting, Costigan and Shipstead. Representatives included were O'Malley, Gildea, O'Day, Maverick, Cochran, Sweeney, Marcantonio and Amlie.

An Associated Press dispatch said there were no serious disorders in New York, as Socialists and trade unionists, 100,000 in all, marched in one parade and about 50,000 Communists joined in another. The latter sang the "Internationale" and bore banners denouncing President Roosevelt, Huey Long, William Randolph Hearst and Father Coughlin.

Here, in Franklin Park, there was no singing, but the President, Hearst and Father Coughlin were roughly handled both by placard and by beer-case orators. (A sign of the times, one observer was

Defiance Voted For President On NRA Row

Senate Finance Committee Files Bill to Limit and Curtail It.

A wiser and sadder Blue Eagle yesterday was trimmed of its price-fixing and intrastate commerce tail feathers by the Senate Finance Committee in deliberate defiance of the Administration's wishes.

Final action will be taken on a greatly modified NRA extension measure at a meeting of the committee this morning. By a vote of 16 to 3, the group yesterday ordered a sub-committee to prepare the revised draft. Swift passage by the Senate was predicted by Chairman Pat Harrison.

Embracing the substance of a joint resolution introduced by Senator Bennett Champ Clark (Democrat), Missouri, and turned down by the President at an earlier White House conference, the substitute extends the life of NRA 11 months.

Stanley Reed, Justice Department attorney, and Chairman Richberg, of the NIRA Board, meanwhile groomed the Government's NRA constitutioality test for argument today before the Supreme Court. Defending NRA legality in the Schechter poultry case, they filed their brief with the court.

Slashing at alleged monopolies under the recovery set-up, and thrusting aside broad definitions of "interstate commerce" proposed by Donald R. Richberg, NIRA board chairman, the Clark resolution, as redrawn by the sub-committee, was

Mrs. Bergdoll Arriving to Ask U.S. to Pardon Slacker Husband

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

Aboard S. S. Washington, at Sea, May 1.—Mrs. Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, German wife of the former Philadelphia World War slacker, is arriving in New York tomorrow to carry her husband's fight for clemency to the United States Government—possibly to President Roosevelt.

This eager young woman, the mother of four children, told of her life's ambition as she strolled along the promenade deck today. She pushed a perambulator carrying her year-old son Alfred.

She told how Bergdoll, the world's modern "man without a country," still in Germany, wants to return to his homeland. He wants their children to be brought up as American citizens.

Bergdoll, son of a wealthy Philadelphia brewing family, hopes other Americans will have forgotten the World War hatreds sufficiently now to forget how he refused to fight against Germany. He was convicted in 1920, but escaped and fled to Germany. He has remained there ever since—constantly fighting to return to Philadelphia to rejoin his aging mother.

Mrs. Bergdoll revealed how she is coming to the land of her husband's family to fight personally for his vindication. With her she has brought their children, Erwin, 7; Emma, 6; Minna, 4, and Alfred. She thinks officials in Washington will listen to her plea as a wife and mother—that time has softened public sentiment once so bitter against

Action on Crime Delayed Ten Days

Copies of Special Report Put Under Lock and Key on Plea Committee Members Must Study Bulky Transcript of Hearings Not Yet Printed.

Partial text of the sub-committee crime report—Page 14.

By James D. Secrest.

The special sub-committee on crime yesterday laid before the House District Committee its report of a two-month probe of crime conditions in Washington, recommending the ouster of United States Attorney Leslie C. Garnett and the high command of the Metropolitan Police Department, but the District Committee refused to approve the report until the transcript of the hearings is printed.

Despite advance predictions as to its contents, the report proved a bombshell on Capitol Hill and in District official quarters. Official statements were noticeably lacking, but counter movements to defeat the purpose of the report immediately were launched.

Highlights of the sub-committee's findings and suggestions:

Garnett and Karl W. Kindleberger, his assistant in charge of Police Court prosecutions, should be removed as incompetent.

All officers of the Police Department above the rank of captain and the age of 60 should be retired; this would affect only Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent, and Inspectors Albert J. Headley and Thaddeus Bean.

"Washington has a disgracefully high crime rate" and "law enforcement here is neither aggressive nor efficient."

The Police Department should be removed entirely from political influence.

The indeterminate sentence and parole law should be repealed.

Consolidation of the Metropolitan Police Department and the United States Park Police would promote efficiency.

A permanent commission to keep check on crime conditions and law enforcement and prosecution agencies is necessary if lasting benefits are to result from the investigation.

The full committee came to its decision to postpone action for a week or ten days at close of a two-hour executive session at which members complained they were ignorant of the background of the report. Several admitted they had hardly glanced at newspaper accounts of the hearings.

Members of the full committee had very little to say in the meeting regarding suggestions of the sub-committee, but it was apparent an attempt will be made to modify the

Lynch Bill Jam Ends as Senate Calls up Bonus

Borah Flays Measure Before Adjournment Ends Week's Filibuster.

Yielding after a seven-day Southern filibuster against anti-lynching legislation, the Senate yesterday laid aside that highly controversial sectional issue and called up another equally fraught with explosives—the soldiers' bonus.

The filibuster ended to the satisfaction of those who had been conducting it when the Senate voted 48 to 32 on an adjournment motion which had the effect of setting aside the anti-lynching bill.

This action saved the Southern filibusterers from the danger of a direct vote on the bill, which, according to their polls, might have carried in a showdown test.

The break came following a dramatic denunciation of the Wagner-Costigan anti-lynching bill by Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho.

Borah said the reform measure pursued a trail blazed by NRA and AAA measures, spelling the doom of State sovereignty.

It was the leadership's fourth and only successful effort to cut off the anti-lynching debate, which for a solid week has waylaid a veteran's bonus drive and held up all Administration measures piled up behind it.

Substitutes Held Ready.

Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, immediately called up his $2,660,000,000 compromise bonus bill, which his committee already has approved and which he says the President will sign if passed in its present form.

A fight to liberalize the measure was brewing back-stage, and probably will break out in the Senate today, with the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars aligned behind substitute bills. These are, respectively, the Vinson direct payment plan and the inflationary Patman bill, already passed by the House.

If substitute measures fail, Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, has four separate amendments, informally favored by both veteran groups, he will

Tax Load Peril For U. S., Allen Tells Chamber

Per Capita Spending Exceeds Britain's, Ex-Senator Warns.

By Felix Bruner.

Delegates to the twenty-third annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States spent another day yesterday listening to constant hammering at the New Deal by business men, industrialists and agriculturists.

The day's program closed with a talk by Henry J. Allen, former United States Senator and former Governor of Kansas, who warned against high governmental expenditures.

In spite of Secretary Roper's plea that they be patient, the chamber members are expected to adopt resolutions today reflecting to a considerable extent the criticism of the speakers to whom they have been listening.

A resolution opposing proposed amendment to the Agricultural Adjustment Act was adopted by the business and agriculture round table conference of the chamber convention yesterday. The resolution opposed any extension of governmental authority over the freedom of action of producers, processors or distributors of agricultural products.

W. F. Jameson, of the American Association of Creamery Butter Manufacturers, introduced the resolution. The conference was presided over by Harper Sibley, who will be the new president of the chamber.

Allen devoted his talk largely to a discussion of relief efforts in western Europe, which he recently has been studying. He said recovery in England was being accomplished by balancing the budget, by tariff adjustments and by a great housing program.

Per Capita Spending Hit.

Speaking of taxes in England, Allen said:

"Although Britons pay more taxes than Americans, the United States Government spends about 16 per cent more per capita than does the English government, and all of this comes from some form of taxation.

"So when Harry Hopkins said recently that Americans do not know what it is to be taxed he was not taking into account a full understanding of the situation as it ap-

Pomp and Pageantry to Open Winchester Apple Fete Today

Coronation of Mlle. Veverka and Parade to Feature Program; Thousands Jam Valley Town for Annual Festival; Showers Forecast.

A Staff Correspondent.

Winchester, Va., May 1.—Mlle. Nella Veverka, daughter of the Czechoslovakian minister to the United States, Dr. Ferdinand Veverka, and Mme. Veverka, of Washington, was the guest tonight of Winchester, where tomorrow and Friday she will reign as queen of the twelfth Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival.

Escorted by a detail of Virginia State police in full dress uniform and cheered by hundreds of enthusiastic citizens, Mlle. Veverka arrived by automobile late this afternoon from Washington. She was accompanied by Ferdinand Veverka, jr., her brother and escort for the fete; Mrs. Benjamin B. Dutton, chairman of the festival committee on the queen and her court; and Miss Florence Harris, of Washington. The party went directly to the home of Dr. and Mrs. Hunter H. McGuire, where Mlle. Veverka will be a guest during the festival. It was in the McGuire colonial home that another queen of the festival, Miss Patricia Dacre Morton, of Winchester, England, was entertained in 1931.

Visitors Throng the City.

Preceding the arrival of the queen and continuing far into the night, thousands of visitors poured into this little city of 10,000 persons. Although showers were forecast tonight and tomorrow, festival officials expressed the belief that the first day crowd would set a record.

As festival officials went forward with a handful of last-minute preparations for the festival, hundreds of homes of Winchester were entertaining guests, while Winchester society matrons, together with members of the younger set, talked mainly of the queen, who is to be the guest of honor at a half-dozen social affairs during the festival. The first in this series of functions was an informal dinner in honor of Mlle. Veverka this evening.

The festival officially will open tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock when 3,000 school children of Frederick County will parade in costumes depicting various themes of springtime.

At 3 p. m. Mlle. Veverka will be crowned Queen Shenandoah XII by Gov. H. G. Krump, of West Vir-

Fredericksburg Jammed by Crowds There to Watch Cadets and Marines.

By Hugh Brannen
A Staff Correspondent.

Fredericksburg, Va., May 1.—The Army of Northern Virginia and the Army of the Potomac faced each other again tonight in the gloomy thickets of the Wilderness. Tomorrow they come into collision in a reenactment of Chancellorsville, where 72 years ago Gen. Joseph Hooker lost his sidling drive on Richmond and Stonewall Jackson took his mortal wound.

Camped on the battle ground are 800 United States Marines, Hooker's men, and 600 cadets of the Virginia Military Institute, Lee's forces. On the flanks are 240 Third Regiment cavalrymen, ready to support the Southern operations.

This city wore martial dress tonight as thousands of persons filling hotels and private homes, awaited the pageant. High officials of State and Nation, diplomats and military personages were present. Cadets and service officers were guests at dances and receptions. Fredericksburg is living over the great days of the sixties.

Tonight is the anniversary of the

Auto Workers' Strike Closes 2 More General Motor Plants

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, May 1.—Two more General Motors plants here closed today while Department of Labor mediators strove to avert additional walkouts in the automobile industry.

A shortage of transmissions as a result of the strike in the Toledo plant of the Chevrolet Motor Co. caused the Chevrolet and Fisher Body plants in Janesville, Wis., today to follow the Cleveland Fisher Body plant in closing. Approximately 2,600 workers were affected at Janesville.

Pickets continued to patrol the Toledo plant, and the Chevrolet and Fisher plants at Cincinnati, where strikes are in progress. There were no disturbances.

Thomas J. Williams, conciliator at Toledo where the Chevrolet Motor Co. plant closed after a strike eight days ago, hurried here to confer with Edward F. McGrady, First Assistant Secretary of Labor, on proposals to restore peace to affected portions of the vast industry.

While only 16,500 of the approximately 300,000 automobile factory workers are striking or out of work because of factory closings owing to the strike, observers awaited the return from Washington of Francis J. Dillon, American Federation of Labor organizer, for an indication of whether the A. F. of L. intended to force a full test of its strength in the motor factories. The closed fac-

Committee Told to Get Data on Requirements Asked by FERA.

President Swings Works Into Action

Gives TugwellVastPower as Resettlement Administration Head.

By Leon Dure, Jr.

The Senate late yesterday ordered an investigation of the distribution of Federal relief funds as President Roosevelt made his first move in setting up machinery for the new works program by organizing a "Resettlement Administration" with Dr. Rexford Guy Tugwell as its head.

Without debate, the Senate adopted a resolution by Senator James Couzens (Republican), of Michigan, calling on its Appropriations Committee to inquire into the allotment of funds by the FERA with particular reference to the amounts disbursed to States.

This action comes after a series of controversies between Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins and the Governors of States which have failed, in Hopkins' opinion, to appropriate enough money to warrant the continuance of Federal relief.

Requirements Demanded.

The Couzens resolution specifically calls for data on the requirements imposed on States to obtain allotments — information which has never been made public before. The inquiry will seek to reveal the basis on which the Federal Government carries 90 per cent of the relief load in some States and only 70 per cent or less in others.

"I have been impressed by the fact that there are no rules, no regulations, no system, with respect to allotments," Senator Couzens declared.

A number of States have been threatened, from time to time, with being cut off from Federal relief because of the failure of Legislatures to meet Hopkins' demands. Relief has been taken over entirely in Louisiana and Georgia, and three other States—Pennsylvania, Illinois and Missouri— are now at loggerheads with the FERA.

More than $2,000,000,000 has been spent by the FERA, mostly in allotments to States. Hopkins yesterday requested $100,000,000 more from the works fund with which to carry on this month. The allotment to States for May are now being prepared and will be announced by the end of the week.

In creating the Resettlement Administration to have general charge of rural rehabilitation and reclamation, the President conferred vastly expanded powers upon his young Undersecretary of Agriculture and foremost brain truster—Dr. Tugwell.

Other developments in the fast-moving works situation included:

Announcement by the White House that plans are almost complete for the creation of the allotment board to pass on projects and the division of applications to receive them.

Appointment by the President of Morris L. Cooke, Philadelphia power expert who has figured prominently in the New Deal power program, as head of a new agency of rural electrification.

A statement by Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, of New York, after a call at the White House, that few cities are able to take advantage of loans under the works program, indicating that grants are wanted.

President Launches Program.

The President formally launched the works relief program by signing three Executive orders giving Dr. Tugwell sweeping authority for the transfer of destitute families to more favorable localities. He also shifted to his new resettlement administrator the "land program" of the FERA, and gave him leave to purchase or condemn land as needed for his operations.

Until the two divisions of appli-

Hull Proposes Revised Treaty With Germany

Most-Favored-Country Clause Omitted in New Trade Pact.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull yesterday revealed he had proposed to the German government the draft of an agreement designed to keep in force the existing treaty of friendship, commerce and consular rights between the two nations, except for the unconditional most-favored-nation treatment provision.

German Ambassador Hans Luther on October 13 last served advance notice of one year on the State Department that his government wished to terminate the most-favored-nation clause of the treaty. State Department technicians, however, have concluded that Germany can not renounce one section of the treaty without terminating the entire pact.

Consequently, Secretary Hull proposed within the last week to the Germans that they agree with this Government to continue in effect beyond next October 14 all sections of the pact, except the most-favored-nation provision. These other sections are regarded as highly important as they define the political, religious and civil rights of the nationals of each country while resident or trading in the other. They also prescribe the powers of consuls in each country.

Senate Action Necessary.

A new agreement modifying the existing treaty to the extent indicated would require ratification by the Senate and it is for that reason Secretary Hull projected the matter at this time. He pointed out that expedition in agreeing on the modification was necessary so that the Senate might give its approval before adjournment until next January.

Secretary Hull's action, however, in no way indicated any wavering in his desire to establish unconditional most-favored-nation treatment between the United States and all nations. As between this country and Germany, it is the latter which has renounced this part of the agreement in order to give free play to the Reich's desire for special trade agreements, which are anathema to the Hull program.

There is no doubt that just as soon as the most-favored-nation agreement between the two countries expires next October Germany will be denied all the concessions granted other countries under reciprocal trade agreements, unless the Reich in the meanwhile comes to terms on this score.

Mr. Hull has made it clear that this Government does not intend to generalize the concessions granted under the trade agreements to any nation practicing discrimination against American trade and commerce. In the matter of discrimination Germany has been one of the worst offenders, and on several occasions this Government has vigorously protested German discrimination against American holders of the Dawes loan bonds in the payment of interest coupons.

Overtures Made.

Germany has made informal overtures to this Government for the negotiation of a reciprocal trade agreement, but without the most-favored-nation clause, it is understood. Officials of this Government have spurned the suggestions, it is reported, insisting that no proposal along that line will receive a minute's consideration unless it is grounded on most-favored-nation treatment, which means that each country agrees to treat the nationals and trade of the other equally with the nationals and trade of any third country.

Such an agreement has existed between Germany and this country since 1925. Germany moved to end this stipulation as a step in bringing its foreign trade under rigid control in order to balance imports with exports. Germany has invoked restrictions on the use of foreign exchange to limit purchases from any country to that nation's purchases in Germany.

Such a policy amounts to a direct attack on American exports to Germany, since this country previously has enjoyed a substantial favorable balance in that trade. For instance, in 1933 American exports to Germany had a value $61,839,257 greater than the value of its imports from Germany.

Trade Balance Cut.

For the year 1934 this favorable trade balance was reduced to $40,009,059 by reason of a drop of approximately $32,000,000 in the value of exports to Germany. Since the first of this year the American favorable balance of trade has been wiped out completely, giving Germany a slight favorable balance, due to the restriction on the importation of American goods.

In the first two months of 1934, American exports to Germany amounted to $29,383,771, while imports from Germany had a value of $12,728,322, giving this country a favorable trade balance of $16,655,449. Exports to Germany in the first two months of this year were approximately only one-third of the same period of last year, despite a higher price level and a general increase in this country's foreign trade.

Exports to Germany in January and February had a value of $10,809,695, while American imports from Germany were valued at $12,872,491, leaving that country with a favorable trade balance of $1,762,796 for the period.

Borah Spikes That Run-Out Rumor; Wonders of the Senate; Convention on a Boardwalk.

By Raymond Clapper

AROUND the Senate they have been whispering for several days that Senator Borah ran away from a roll-call on the Wagner-Costigan anti-lynching bill. The story was that a few days ago, when just one more vote was needed to send the bill back to oblivion, temporarily at least, Senator Borah could not be found. When the Senate votes, bells ring in every office and in all corridors. It is impossible for a Senator to be anywhere about the Capitol and not know that the roll is being called.

After searching the cloakrooms, telephoning in vain to the Senator's office and all of his known hideouts, one of the Senate scouts happened to see the Senator outside walking away from the Capitol. The motion to bury the antilynching bill lost by one vote. Enemies of the measure, who had Borah listed against it, felt that, had he been present a tie would have resulted, giving Vice President Garner, a Texan, opportunity to deal the knockout blow by breaking the tie.

This story naturally got back to Borah. He was indignant and explained privately that he had been called downtown before he knew a vote was imminent.

All of which explains why Senator Borah rose yesterday and made one of the most emphatic speeches of the session against the bill. Now he needs only to point to the record to squelch that story.

Incidentally, immediately after Borah's speech, the Senate voted to adjourn. That killed the anti-lynching bill for the time being, at least.

The incident shows how mysteriously the Senate works, sometimes, its wonders to perform. A seven-day fight has been raging over a motion to consider the anti-lynching bill. Southern Senators were determined to prevent the bill from coming up, believing that on a final showdown vote the measure would carry. So they began an endurance contest, known as a filibuster, to prevent a vote on the motion to consider the anti-lynching bill. For days Senate rafters rumbled with speeches for and against the proposal to give the Federal Government a hand in punishing local officials whose prisoners are lynched.

Each day opponents of this bill sought to force the Senate to adjourn because that would automatically kill the pending motion to consider the bill. Each time, until yesterday, friends of the bill were able to prevent an adjournment and instead force an overnight recess. That might mean nothing to most of us, but it was a vital technicality in this fight. As long as the Senate recessed, it had to return the next day and resume consideration of the motion to consider the antilynching bill.

For a time it looked as if this might go on forever. But, meanwhile, bonus advocates were growing more impatient at the situation which prevented them from going into action. So yesterday, after Senator Borah's speech, they closed in and voted to adjourn. A few minutes later the Senate reassembled and voted to take up the bonus bill.

That's just a way the Senate has of making everything as complicated as possible.

* * * *

Not that it is of world-shaking importance, but some newspapers yesterday reported that President Roosevelt had not yet signed any executive orders setting up the announced works machinery and that this was delaying the start of the vast program. Within a few hours the White House issued the executive orders creating the Resettlement Administration and making Dr. Rexford Tugwell administrator. But the orders were dated back 24 hours. That's a start, anyway.

* * * *

Guess what will help solve the Nation's problems and then read what Senator A. Harry Moore, of New Jersey, has to say about the state of the Nation:

"Apropos of conditions, Vice President Marshall once said, 'What the country needs is a good 5-cent cigar,' but today it might be—a balanced budget or that Europe disarm; that the hungry be fed; that more unemployed be employed; that the cost of living be lowered or wages raised; the antilynching bill passed or the bonus granted; that the dust be settled or the drought broken; that Long be shortened—or Townsend pensioned. Give the alphabet back to the kiddies; save daylight or adjourn Congress.

"These might be some of the needs of the country, but the one that will help solve the Nation's proolem and upon which we can all resolve is that we take the next Democratic national convention to Atlantic City and promptly renominate Roosevelt and Garner."

Republicans are preparing to make monetary stabilization one of their leading campaign issues. In this they already are supported by sentiment at the convention of the United States Chamber of Commerce urging a return to a fixed gold standard and international stabilization re-establishing permanent relation of value between the dollar and the pound.

President Roosevelt appears to have no present intention of robbing them of this issue by taking any such step. The Administration sees no indication that Great Britain is in a mood to return to a fixed pound. On the contrary, British Socialists and Laborites, preparing for a comeback, are insisting on retention of a managed currency. And unless Great Britain is willing to hog-tie the pound, President Roosevelt apparently prefers to keep the dollar footloose for future maneuverability. Even those who have no money will be allowed to hear a great deal about it in the next campaign.

Since the Senators agreed to disagree with President Roosevelt on NRA legislation, some of them are now referring to the White House legislative "must" program as the "mussed" program.

Actor Asks Copy Of Mae's 'License'

Man Named in Wedding Permit Sends Request.

By the Associated Press.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 1.—A letter signed "Frank Wallace, 325 West Forty-fifth street, New York City," was received at the register of deeds office today asking for a photostatic copy of the marriage license issued here in 1911 to Frank Wallace and Mae West.

In the letter Wallace, a New York actor, referred to the license issued on April 11, 1911, as "my marriage license."

The Wallace whose name appears on the license, which was uncovered by relief workers here two weeks ago, was an actor. Two actors by the name of Frank Wallace have performed in Milwaukee.

Miss West, the motion picture star, has denied she was ever married. The Mae West who was married here gave as her parent's names the same as those of the present actress. She also gave her home as Brooklyn, N. Y., the present Miss West's former home.

Citizens Await Ruling In Assessment Fight

Because its counsel has not yet advised the Central Citizens Association whether it should sue the District government protesting a street assessment, the group delayed its meeting last night until June 5.

The association is opposed to the assessment for paving of North Capitol street from G street to Florida avenue northwest, John G. McMahon, secretary, explained. It has asked former District Attorney Leo A. Rover for an opinion on a possible suit and is awaiting word from him before taking further action.

Wheat Policy Awaits a Vote; Aridity Spreads

FAA Stakes Existence on Referendum as Drought Is Intensified.

By the Associated Press.

Confronted with a weather report of intensified drought conditions in the Southwest, the Farm Adjustmen Administration yesterday prepared to stake much of its future existence on results of the May 25 wheat referendum.

A short wheat crop, which experts estimate will fill only domestic requirements at best next year, already was in sight because of drought in the winter wheat area, centering in Kansas—largest producer of the grain.

For that reason, many officials were apprehensive over submitting to farmers at this time the question of continuous production control for four years, although Secretary Wallace expressed no concern over the outcome.

Fear for Other Programs.

But some AAA officials believed an adverse vote might cripple other programs, even though a majority of the corn-hog, tobacco and cotton farmers approved their programs in polls conducted late in 1934.

Wallace, at his press conference yesterday, pleaded for "an extraordinary flexibility of mind" among farmers and consumers on the question of wheat-production control. He emphasized that surpluses as well as shortages must be guarded against.

The Weather Bureau, in its weekly weather and crop review, noted improvement in the drought situation in the northern part of the Western dry belt and intensification in the Southern half.

Some Areas Too Dry.

Kansas needs rain badly, the report said, since precipitation during the past two months has been only about 50 per cent of normal. It added:

"Extreme western Oklahoma, southeastern Colorado, extreme western and northwestern Texas and the adjoining portions of New Mexico are still unfavorably dry."

In the spring wheat area of North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Nebraska, Montana, Colorado, Utah and Nevada conditions were reported greatly improved with sufficient moisture recently to bring the April total above normal for the first time in many months.

Wallace predicted that even if the AAA amendments pending in Congress fail to pass, organized agriculture would continue to fight for the processing tax "as long as there is a tariff in this country" and seek the "right kinds" of marketing agreements and licenses "as long as the corporate system of organization" is in existence in the United States.

Wire Board Votes Curb on Lawyers

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday voted to bar from legal practice before it anyone serving in the commission until two years shall have elapsed after his separation from Government service.

The rule, adopted without a dissenting vote, would curb the procedure by which lawyers in the Government service subsequently step out into private practice before agencies of which they have obtained expert knowledge. The rule was enacted at the instance of Commissioner George Henry Payne, who said it had the indorsement of leading lawyers of the country and was in harmony with the movement of bar associations to bring about such reform in all departments of the Government.

Among those indorsing the rule were John W. Davis, Newton D. Baker, William D. Guthrie, Felix Frankfurter and heads of many State bar associations.

'Posse' Imaginary, But Fugitives Yield

By the Associated Press.

Florence, Ariz., May 1.—Two signal torpedoes exploded on the tracks near Coolidge as a passenger train ran over them.

Then the telephone at the Arizona Penitentiary rang.

"Come get us," said a frightened voice.

Penitentiary guards soon had in custody Farley Carr, Pima County Negro, and Milford Musser, who had fled the trusty quarters Monday night and hidden near the tracks.

They thought the explosions were from the guns of a pursuing posse.

Humor Marks Franklin Court Whisky Trials

Witness Heaps Contempt on 'Single Foot,' Praises 'Double Twist.'

By the Associated Press.

Roanoke, Va., May 1.—"Single Foot" liquor was described with contempt here today, as a native of Franklin County compared it with his own "doubled and twisted" brandy as he testified before a Federal jury hearing the Franklin County liquor conspiracy case.

He was L. F. Webb, one of the 48 Government witnesses, who have appeared thus far in the trial of 23 defendants indicted by a Federal grand jury on charges of participating in a conspiracy to evade Internal Revenue Department levies.

"Uncle Lew," as the witness referred to himself on the stand, said his brandy was called "good" by Deputy Sheriff Henry Abshire, who, he said, came to his house with "a friend and bought 10 gallons."

Webb's manner of testimony frequently drew muffled laughter from the crowd in the courtroom, sometimes to the extent that sharp raps for order were forthcoming.

It was in sharp contrast to the continuation of evidence surrounding the shooting of the Bondurant boys at Maggodee Bridge. The boys' testimony and that of their father was started yesterday and continued today.

L. F. Webb and Thomas Webb, farmers, who live near the village of Calloway, were among the principals of the Government's case later in the day, as the prosecution again pointed its fire in the direction of Deputy Sheriff Henry Abshire, former State Prohibition Officer Edgar A. Beckett, and the late Deputy Sheriff Jeff Richards.

L. F. Webb identified himself as an uncle of Richards. He began his testimony like many other witnesses, saying he "farmed a little." Under questioning he admitted he "made a little liquor."

It was during his testimony that the court was told about methods of making liquor. For the district attorney's benefit he explained that liquor run through the still once was "just plain old 'single foot,'" while the "best liquor" was "doubled and twisted" because it was run through the still and coil worm twice, in the "old-fashioned way."

Slayer in Utah Doomed 3d Time

New Date Set for Green to Face Firing Squad.

By the Associated Press.

Farmington, Utah, May 1.—For the third time in the last five years, Delbert Green, 25, today was sentenced to die before a firing squad at the Utah State Prison for the murder of his uncle, James Green.

District Judge Eugene E. Pratt set June 26 as the date of execution.

Green heard the sentence with no display of emotion. Twice before Judge Pratt had sentenced him to be shot to death, in 1930 and 1932. On the first occasion the condemned man expressed a desire for shooting rather than hanging, a choice granted him under Utah law. The second time, as today, he expressed no preference and the court designated the mode of execution.

Green was granted a new trial by the State Supreme Court after his first conviction, but that tribunal refused to reverse his second conviction after an appeal had acted as a stay of execution. An appeal for clemency or a petition for a sanity hearing may be filed by his attorneys, they have indicated.

Mighty Fleet Moves Into Bay For War Game

Ships Veiled by Darkness as They Glide Through Golden Gate.

By the Associated Press.

Aboard U. S. S. Pennsylvania, San Francisco Harbor, May 1.—A powerful high seas battle fleet moved into San Francisco Bay today in the first phase of the annual maneuvers of the United States Navy.

Ships darkened, radios silenced, decks cleared for action and men at battle stations, the war craft glided through the Golden Gate under cover of darkness.

Laning in Command.

Under command of Admiral Harris Laning, distinguished strategist and tactician, the force of ten dreadnaughts, two aircraft carriers, a division of heavy cruisers, a division of light cuisers, a squadron of four divisions of destroyers, mine sweepers and auxiliaries composed the fleet.

It was just one of the units of the several forces into which the 153 warships of the fleet have been divided for the six weeks' maneuvers.

For at least two days this force will remain in San Francisco Bay. It will be augmented by two dreadnaughts and a number of other fighting ships before its silent night departure to renew war games in the North Pacific.

Dreadnaughts Screened.

The high seas battle fleet was cruising in readiness against submarine or air attack. In the center of the formation was the main power, the four divisions of dreadnaughts, in echelon. Their wakes drew the picture on the calm Pacific of how the floating fortresses were zigzagging in defense against torpedoes.

Surrounding the dreadnaught divisions was a screen of destroyers, with a second outer screen and cruisers as scouts beyond. Astern were the mighty aircraft carriers, the flagship carrier Saratoga and the new Ranger.

Patrol planes from the carriers flew over the fleet, alert for submarine or destroyer attack.

France and Soviet Set to Sign Pact

Final Accord Reached on Aid Alliance.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, May 1.—French officials announced today that France and Russia had reached final agreement on the text of their mutual assistance pact. It will be signed immediately, they said.

Foreign Minister Pierre Laval, who has been instrumental in negotiating the agreement, this evening was awaiting the call of the Soviet Ambassador, Vladimir Potemkin, with the possibility seen they might sign the document late tonight.

There remained only comparison of the French and Russian language versions of the treaty, and experts for the two nations were busy doing that this evening.

6 Counties Set To Pick Best Pupil Spellers

All Regional Contests Thursday and Saturday Open to Public.

Six counties taking part in the National Spelling Bee, sponsored by The Washington Post, will have their matches within the next two days. All of these contests are open to the public.

Champion school spellers will display their prowess in mastering the spelling of difficult words and the rivalry between schools will provide a spirited contest in every county. The winners will receive prizes and advance to the area finals in Washington, May 18.

The six counties holding their matches tomorrow or Saturday are Culpeper, Prince William, Prince Georges, Loudoun, Shenandoah and St. Marys. Details follow:

The Culpeper match will be in the high school auditorium at Culpeper tomorrow at 3:30 p. m., T. W. Hendrick, superintendent of schools, will preside, and the judges will be the Rev. J. G. Unruh and Mrs. Berkley G. Calfee, both of Culpeper tomorrow at 3:30 p. m. T. W. pronouncer who calls the words at the match.

Marlboro High Tomorrow.

Champion spellers of Prince Georges will meet in Marlboro High tomorrow at 7:30 p. m., for their match. Nicholas Orem, superintendent of schools, has been invited to preside. Mrs. Frank P. Scrivener, of Upper Marlboro, will call the words and the judges will be Mrs. G. E. Lancaster, of Bowie, and Dr. William A. Griffith, Berwyn.

The third match to be held tomorrow will be the Prince William contest in Manassas High at 8 o'clock. H. M. Pearson, supervisor of elementary schools of Fauquier County, and P. B. Smith, principal of Warrenton High, will be judges. Miss Marie Lake, of Warrenton High, will announce the words. Miss Sue F. Ayres, rural school supervisor, who is in charge of the Prince William match, has invited these officials from an adjoining county.

Miss Ayres yesterday announced that the following school's representatives will take part in the match:

Manassas High — Thelma Ward, Shirley Hynson, Herbert Burke and Evelyn Crabill. Haymarket High—Amos Wood, Frances Smith and Mary Jane Fisher. Nokesville High—Eloise Frederick, Dorothy Hopkins and Marie Anderson. Occoquan High—Eunice Jellison, Mildred Bryant and Dorothy Crawford. Woodbine Graded—Nola Harris and Annie Cebula. Greenwich Graded—June Foster, Marie Herndon and Lewis Spittle. Dumfries Graded—Isabelle Bailey and Dorothy Abel.

Three Matches Saturday.

On Saturday two matches will be held in the afternoon and one in the evening. Two of them, Loudoun and Shenandoah, will charge 5 cents admission for the benefit of the county library. At all other matches there will be no fee.

The Loudoun match, with 23 schools represented, will be held at 2 o'clock in Leesburg High School. Mrs. Emile K. Windle, acting superintendent of schools, is in charge. There will be two pronouncers, Miss Bertha Gruver, of Purcellville, and Mrs. Margaret G. Cockerill, of North Fork. Mrs. J. H. Emerick and Mrs. Mabel N. Lybolt, of Purcellville, and E. O. Russell and M. B. Costello, of Leesburg, will be judges.

Spellers from 28 schools in Shenandoah County will meet in Woodstock High at 2 o'clock for their match. C. V. Shoemaker, superintendent of schools, will preside, and the Rev. Jonathan Edwards, of Woodstock, will call the words. The judges will be the Rev. Arthur Wake, Strasburg; the Rev. H. Massie, Edinburg, and W. C. Hobson, New Market.

14 Schools Represented.

Fourteen public schools and seven parochial schools will be represented in the St. Mary's match at Margaret Brent High School at Helen at 7:30 p. m. Twenty of these schools already have been announced, and the latest to enroll is St. Mary's Academy at Leonardtown, enrolled by Sister Mary Aline, who announces Rita Siebold and Eleanor Hamilton as the best spellers in the school. The judges in this match will be T. F. Johnston, principal of Margaret Brent High; Miss Adele Francs, principal of St. Mary's Seminary, and Prof. J. F. Coad, of Charlotte Hall.

Details of matches to be held next week will be announced later, and new schools entered and champions registered will be listed in tomorrow's Post.

Driver in Jail Pending Manslaughter Hearing

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., May 1.—Willard Kerns, of Salem, is held in jail here pending a hearing before Magistrate Late B. Davisson on a manslaughter charge preferred by Deputy Sheriff James Criss in connection with the death of William Lee Forinash, 4, son of Harvey Forinash, of Salem, in a local hospital last week.

The boy suffered fatal injuries April 14 when he was struck by Kerns' automobile as the latter backed it from a garage.

ginia. At a coronation she will be presented with a key to the city. The key has been carved from oak in historic Fort Loudoun, where George Washington in 1755 had quarters.

Cadets to Escort Queen.

The ceremony for the coronation has been adopted from the Anglo-Saxon by the Rev. S. L. Flickinger, D. D., Winchester liturgist. At the coronation, the queen's escort will be her brother, Ferdinand Veverka, jr., and a detail of cadets from Massanutten Military Academy, Woodstock, Va. Her maids of honor will be Miss Fenton McGuire Nelson and Miss Nancy Devereux Bowley. Elizabeth Steck Arthur will parry the crown and Jane Cather and Dorothy Hawthorne will be train bearers. Attending the queen will be 33 princesses from girls' schools in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia.

"Dawn, a Pageant of Springtime," will be given by 2,000 Winchester school children immediately following the pageant.

Parade Starts at 2 P. M.

A second presentation of the pageant is scheduled for 11 o'clock Friday morning. Following a luncheon and reception to the queen and her court at noon, the feature parade of the festival, "The Trail of the Pink Petals," will move through the streets at 2 p. m.

The feature parade will be in six divisions to include the queen and her court, artistic floats, youth movements, military units, an historical sketch of Virginia and commercial floats.

The festival will conclude Friday evening with the queen's ball in Shenandoah Valley Academy gymnasium.

Health Chief Lauds Officers in Counties

Baltimore, May 1 (AP).—Dr. Robert H. Riley, State director of health, today expressed praise for the county health officers whose counties won awards from the Public Health Association for rural health work.

First place in the eastern division was won by Kent County and honorable mention was won by Washington County. Their health officers are Dr. R. G. Beachley and Dr. W. Ross Cameron, respectively.

"Rural health work in Maryland has won national attention, and the signal honors won by these two counties does not reflect on the work being done in other counties," Dr. Riley asserted.

Senate Orders Hopkins' Relief Demand Sifted

Data Sought as President Names Tugwell to New Administration.

cations and allotments—the one headed by Frank C. Walker and the other by Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes—are constituted, however, the works program can not proceed. No new projects can be undertaken under the President's plan of procedure until after they have first cleared through these two agencies and have been approved by Mr. Roosevelt himself.

New Duties Outlined.

Dr. Tugwell's new duties were outlined in the first exeutive order as:

"(a) To administer approved projects involving resettlement of destitute or low-income families from rural and urban areas, including the establishment, maintenance and operation in such connection of communities in rural and suburban areas.

"(b) To initiate and administer a program of approved projects with respect to soil erosion, stream pollution, seacoast erosion, reforestation, forestation and flood control.

"(c) To make loans as authorized under the said emergency relief appropriation act of 1935 to finance, in whole or in part, the purchase of farm lands and necessary equipment by farmers, farm tenants, croppers or farm laborers."

Amount Lowered to $250,000.

He is further authorized to "acquire, by purchase or by power of eminent domain, any real property or any interest therein and improve, develop, grant, sell, lease (with or without the privilege of purchasing), or ortherwise dispose of any such property or interest therein."

Under the original executive order conferring this authority, $10,000,000 was allocated for "administrative expenses." Later in the day, however, the President held a protracted conference with his relief aids and a correction was issued lowering this amount to $250,000 for the first month.

The second of the Executive orders transferred—lock, stock and barrel—the FERA "land program" to the Tugwell agency. This is the central unit through which several of the Federal land-buying bureaus have been acquiring submarginal acreage.

Altogether, close to 7,000,000 acres have been purchased outright or placed under option in the "land program." All of this property now comes under Dr. Tugwell, who is expected to accelerate the land-buying with new funds soon to be allocated.

Resources of the FERA land division originally were about $78,000,000. This fund shrank to $28,000,000 when the FERA subtracted $50,000,000 for direct relief. Of the remainder about $8,000,000 has been spent, leaving Dr. Tugwell $20,000,000 with which to continue operations.

Subsistence Unit May Be Shifted.

Further Executive orders, not yet acted upon, are expected to make the Tugwell administration even more important. For one, the Subsistence Homestead Corporation, now under PWA Administrator Ickes, is expected to be transferred, bringing with it close to 100 projects underway or approved.

Rural rehabilitation work now under Relief Administrator Hopkins also is expected to be shifted to the new agency. This embraces such projects as the moving of 200 farm families to Alaska. Sixty-seven of these families sailed yesterday from San Francisco, the remainder will leave May 15.

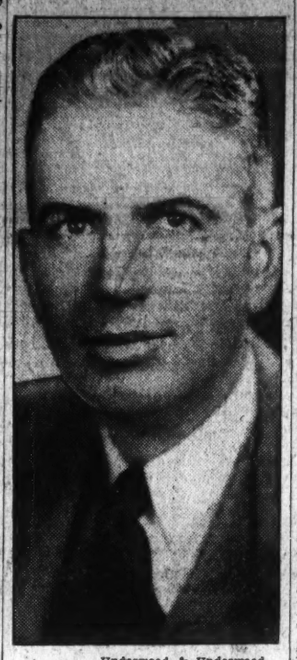
Exuberant Poem Recalled.

Appointment of the 44-year-old former Columbia University professor to the head of this vast enterprise recalled an early, exuberant poem by the young Brain Truster, ending:

"I shall roll up my sleeves—make America over!"

For weeks Dr. Tugwell has been chafing at the bit, anxious to get started, but even now he must wait a while longer before "making America over." The new agencies he will consolidate are scattered all over town, and before him lies the problem of getting office space and a field force working.

Heads Rural Project



Underwood & Underwood.
REXFORD G. TUGWELL.

His angle of the works program will be the moving of families from unproductive farm land and city slums to fertile acreage which will support them. The transfer will be voluntary, it is emphasized, but such kickbacks as occurred yesterday at Presho, S. Dak., are not unexpected. A petition was signed by 167 residents of that community protesting the buying of their farmlands.

Parley Lasts Two Hours.

Tugwell participated with eight others in the President's conference on works relief, which lasted more than two hours. The others present were Hopkins, Ickes, Walker, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr, Admiral Christian J. Peoples, Treasury procurement officer; Acting Budget Director Daniel W. Bell, Charles West, White House "contact man," and Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission. Kennedy was present as a business adviser, it was explained.

The White House announced after their departure that the works allotment board, consisting of more than 20 members, will be named in a few days. The Walker applications division and the "progress" agency, to be headed by Hopkins, will be set up soon thereafter.

Mr. Roosevelt himself said he has persuaded Morris Cooke to postpone a trip to Europe in order to set up the division for rural electrification. Cooke is an engineer, often consulted by the President when he was Governor of New York, who has served with the National Resources Board and the National Power Survey.

Mayor LaGuardia's statement in regard to the cities' inability to borrow the $4,000,000,000 works fund was made in the course of a call at the White House with Paul Betters, executive secretary of the United States' Conference of Mayors.

"We'll have more steam shovels going and less typewriters in a short time," LaGuardia said, apropos of the works delay. "It's the semicolon boys that have been holding us up—the interpreting boys."

U. S. Drops Complaint Against Postal School

The complaint issued by the Federal Trade Commission several weeks ago against the Postal Correspondence School has been dismissed without prejudice to the school, school officials were informed yesterday.

The original complaint alleged the school advertised that its courses were prepared by a former Assistant Postmaster General, although the courses had been changed after his death. The school was then given until April 28 to show cause why it should not be ordered to cease the practice.

2 More Plants Close in Strike Of Auto Trades

Janesville, Wis., Workers Lose Jobs as McGrady Strives to Bring Peace.

tories are at Toledo, Cincinnati, Cleveland and Janesville.

McGrady said he planned an early meeting with Dillon, who declared today that the A. F. of L. controlled the "three keys to the auto situation," and named them as plants making transmissions, carburetors and ignition systems.

Interest centered tonight on Flint, Mich., where five General Motors plants employ 35,000 men. Louis Hart, Flint organizer for the A. F. of L., said a sceond mass meeting would be held there to consider an appeal of the Toledo strikers that all workers in General Motors works walk out "until all plants have contracts."

In Flint, Harlow H. Curtice, president of the Buick Motor Co., continued his conferences with the executive council of the United Automobile Workers of America, an A. F. of L. affiliate.

The Buick plant employs 10,100 men, only 8.2 per cent of whom voted for A. F. of L. representatives in collective bargaining elections conducted by the President's Automobile Labor Board.

The A. F. of L. demands recognition of the unions through signing of contracts by the management calling for a minimum wage of 70 cents an hour, a general increase of 5 cents an hour and a five-day week with 7½ hours' work daily.

The strike movement was branded by Forrest G. Brown, national president of the Associated Automobile Workers of America, as "industrial suicide."

General Motors offices here had no comment on the prediction of T. N. Taylor, A. F. of L. organizer, that all of the corporation's factores would be closed by Friday morning.

Arkansas Plant Shut Due to Toledo Strike

By the United Press.

Fort Smith, Ark., May 1.—Ben Johnston, president of the Fort Smith Body Co., said today the strike of Eastern automobile workers had caused the local plant to close.

Approximately 240 workers were laid off temporarily, he said, and added there was no labor trouble here.

The shutdown, he said, was caused by lack of demand for automobile body parts.

Jurors Clear Lone Suspect In Dual Killing

Report of District Panel Leaves Hotel Houston Crime a Mystery.

A dual slaying in the Houston Hotel last September was placed in the "unsolved crimes" book yesterday when the District grand jury after an exhaustive investigation, returned a report that it was unable to determine who shot and killed Sammy Melincov and Bryant (Big Boy) McMahon, reputed gamblers.

Coincident with the report, Thomas F. Tobin, who has been held in the District Jail for several months, was released. Tobin had been held on suspicion that he knew something about the affair, but had steadfastly maintained he had no knowledge of it.

The grand jury indicted seven members of the Miller tribe of Gypsies for abduction and violation of the Mann act in connection with the disappearance of 15-year-old Rose Demetro, pretty and vivacious, from the home of her father, Petro Demetro, 1800 block of Seventh street northwest, last January. Those indicted were Leo, Alec, Eli, George, Randolph, Annie and Mikizer Miller.

Included in other indictments reported was one charging Albert F. Sturm with bigamy and others naming Julius Sanders, Sam Shuma, Joe Sheehi, Nick Salesby and Delia Frazier Singleton with violations of the narcotic laws.

Others indicted were:

Earl Bowie and James Robinson, joy riding; Jasper Newton Davis, nonsupport; Edward Allen, Joe Black, Levi Goram and Robert Fowler, grand larceny; John M. Williams, George S. Kulik, Joseph Markovuch, George Brown, Floyd W. LaMore, George L. Fuller, John M. Williams and George Brown, robbery; John Dillard, Ira V. Phelps, James H. Bean, Joseph F. Harrington, Henry Mason, Walter Ingram and Isaac Jones, assault with a dangerous weapon.

Alphonso L. Coleman, Paul Hill, Richard Thompson and Creed Jordan, housebreaking; Creed Jordan, forgery and uttering; Robert Lee Lloyd and Julian R. Foster, violation of the liquor taxing act of 1934; Bernard J. Smith, false pretenses; Willie Taylor and Ella McDaniels, first-degree murder.

Those against whom the grand jury ignored charges were: Louis Wilder, joy riding; John T. Gilbert and Alma C. Shrieves, housebreaking and larceny; Burt Eakins, grand larceny; Mabel Blackwell and Joseph H. Givhan, robbery; Nicholas Phugas and Clinton Burns, assault with a dangerous weapon; Albert F. Sturm, bigamy; William A. Christie, forgery and uttering; Hush McHenry, violation of the liquor taxing act of 1934; James W. Callan, violation of section 32, U. S. Penal Code; Thomas F. Tobin and George Shlump, homicide.

Store and Wharf Burn In Leonardtown Fire

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Leonardtown, Md., May 1.—The Bushwood store and wharf at the mouth of the Wicomico River were destroyed by fire early yesterday. The store was conducted by William Thrall, Republican central committeeman of St. Marys County. The building, on the property known as Bushwood Manor, dates back several centuries. The Bushwood manor house was burned a year ago. Bricks from this house were used in the construction of the Statehouse reproduction at St. Marys City last June.

The Leonardtown Volunteer Fire Department saved Thrall's dwelling and several boats anchored at the wharf.

Danville Jury to Hear 'Numbers' Case Monday

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Danville, Va., May 1.—Danville's "numbers" cases will be laid before the grand jury Monday in the Corporation Court by Commonwealth's Attorney George Bendall. A preliminary hearing had been set for May 11.

In event of a conviction, half the $6,000 seized at the home of Charles H. Fox and Vance Bassinger would go to police and the other half to the State, under the confiscation clause of the lottery law.

Retail Grocers To Hold Session At Cumberland

500 Expected to Attend Maryland Group Rally May 12 and 13.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., May 1.—At least 500 delegates and members are expected to attend the seventh annual convention of the Independent Retail Grocers of Maryland May 12 and 13. The concluding event will be a banquet at the Queen City Hotel, at which J. C. Milton, of Chicago, will speak.

The contingent from Baltimore and intervening points will arrive here by special train at noon May 12. The group will go on a sightseeing trip to Dan's Rock. A dinner will be served at the Queen City Hotel at 7 p. m., when welcome will be extended by Mayor George W. Legge, Edward A. Fisher, president of the Independent Retail Grocers of Western Maryland; Scott Meekins, Dorchester County; Harry Goldberg, Baltimore, and Abe Martin, Washington County.

United States Senators Millard E. Tydings and George L. Radcliffe have accepted invitations to attend and former Gov. Albert C. Ritchie has indicated he may be present.

A breakfast conference will be held at the Fort Cumberland Hotel May 13, preceding the first session of the convention in the hotel. John M. Pohlhaus, Baltimore, State president, will preside. Annual reports will precede a discussion on the Maryland gross receipts tax, the fair trade bill, egg and milk bills, the NRA and AAA.

Entertainment for the women will include a lunch at the recreational hall of Center Street Methodist Episcopal Church and theater parties.

Election of officers and discussion of "The Complete Grocery Store" will feature the afternoon session.

Chairmen of the committees for the convention are George W. Martin, membership; Harvey Garlitz, transportation; Mrs. E. A. Fisher, women's entertainment; Harold Fossett, registration; E. A. Fisher, banquet, and Francis Coyle, banquet entertainment. R. Mason Hill will direct singing.

Fire Sweeps W. Va. Woods.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Parsons, W. Va., May 1.—Eighty acres of wooded land belonging to Guy Harper and Abe Cooper were burned over near Jennington. Charles Calvert, State fire warden, said the fire started from a brush fire. Ollie McDonald and a crew of FERA workers were called to extinguish a 40-acre fire on coal company land on Canaan Mountain yesterday.

2 Additional Suits Filed Following Truck Crash

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., May 1.—Two additional suits filed in the Circuit Court yesterday brought a total of three for $25,000 damages against the People's Service Co., Inc., this city, and Wilbur May, Middletown, as the result of an accident in Baltimore last January. The plaintiffs in yesterday's suits were Benjamin B. Clarke, Linthicum Heights, who sued for $10,000, and Henry Eckhert, Baltimore, who seeks $500. Last March Joseph Denhardt, Baltimore, filed against the same defendants for $10,000.

The plaintiffs allege that a truck operated by May collided with a truck in which they were riding, injuring the occupants and badly damaging the truck.

Fight on New Deal Pressed by U. S. Chamber Speakers

AAA Scuttling Farm Exports, Chamber Told

Reversal of Cotton Policy Declared Necessary to Restore Marts.

Activities of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration leading to diminution of American exports were hit by speakers at the convention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States yesterday. Most of the speakers advocated the domestic allotment plan, whereby benefits given the farmer would be based only on that part of his crop intended for domestic consumption, leaving him open to sell for export at world prices.

Joseph W. Evans, of Evans & Co., Houston, Tex., called the attention of the agriculture group meeting to the rapidly declining exports of cotton.

He declared that this country's former customers in foreign markets are not entirely destitute, pointing out that exports of steel and of automobiles increased more than 100 per cent during the last calendar year.

Must Reverse Policy, He Says.

Referring to cotton, he said:

"It would seem that if we were permitted to market this great commodity under normal conditions, despite exchange restrictions, quotas and tariff barriers, much of our foreign trade might be preserved; but, to accomplish this there must be a complete about-facing of our present restrictive policy.

"The history of the world is strewn with economic wrecks of price fixing projects and this Nation, great as it is, can not run counter to the immutable law of supply and demand. We can not build a wall around America if we are to fill our manifest destiny of providing food and clothing for the world."

Reviewing Farm Board efforts to fix wheat prices and other schemes for helping the wheat growers, George H. Davis, president of the Davis-Noland-Merrill Grain Co., Kansas City, described the bonus payment plan as having been considered "the least harmful of all the many panaceas suggested."

Cites Results as Adverse.

"However," he continued, "it brought a train of consequences equally as adverse and significant as the Farm Board venture, the difference being that the former lost favor only because of the inevitable price decline it promoted, while the latter is growing in disfavor because of the destruction of wealth it entails, drastic effect upon income of carriers, implement manufacturers and allied industries, serious disruption of the delicate system of processing and distribution, and increase of unemployment, both urban and rural."

Mr. Davis insisted that "every instrumentality of government be utilized to free rather than restrict domestic and foreign markets."

He said he did not believe any man competent to say how much grain should be sown. He said any plan other than the domestic bonus plan would prove a failure until some one is able accurately to forecast the weather six months ahead.

Packer Assails AAA.

From the point of view of meat packers, Frank A. Hunter, president of the Hunter Packing Co., East St. Louis, Mo., condemned AAA activities.

"The country can not afford to lose its export markets, nor can it afford to import great quantities of food products, when such importaton is made necessary by the planned removal of what was considered to be a surplus," he said.

"The agricultural adjustment act is an emergency act, intended to restore the purchasing power of agriculture. I submit it has accomplished its declared purpose."

A. J. McFadden, president of the Agricultural Prorate Commission, Santa Ana, Calif., described surplus control in the West.

Board Weighing Fate of W. B. & A.

Line Operated at a Loss Pending Decision.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, May 1.—The Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Electric Railway was being operated today "at a loss, for the public convenience and necessity," while the State Public Service Commission pondered its fate.

A public hearing on the rail line's application for authority to abandon all services has been concluded. George Weems Williams, receiver and counsel, asserted that there was no way open to the company except for its sale at public auction, with permission to the new owners to scrap it.

Thousands of protests from residents living at points along the line, from property owners and several Federal departments have been filed with the commission. Another protest containing 286 names was received today.

Several plans for continuing the road were advanced at the two-day hearing. The commission expects to announce its decision within a week.

plies to a comparison with Great Britain."

The per capita tax burden in England, Allen said, is $99.11, compared with $74.37 in the United States. Per capita expenditures in England, however, he said, are $115, compared with $133 in the United States.

"Thus," he continued, "Mr. Hopkins may gain the comforting assurance that if we have not known anything about taxation in this country compared with England, we are on the way speedily to becoming acquainted with figures that are ever grimmer than in England.

"Great Britain has balanced her budget, provided for her relief, and is seeing a substantial reduction in her taxation. There is no indication of anything of that sort in this country."

A similar comparison was made by William B. Bell, president of the American Cyanamid Co., who added recommendations for scrapping virtually all of the New Deal program.

Bell told his listeners that industrialists are prepared to throw $85,000,000,000 into business channels. In addition to present activity, this sum will provide work for 9,000,000 men for from six to eight years, he said.

Willkie Assails "Fear."

Wendell L. Willkie, president of the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, told the convention that the thing that is holding back recovery is fear.

"The fear of American industry today is the fear of the hostile attitude of Government itself," he said. "The violent criticism of American industry, the drastic and crippling legislative measures which are proposed to reorganize and regiment American business, have prevented a restoration of confidence and have retarded the resumption of business activity. I am convinced that if a reasonable and fair legislative program for American business is adopted, or better still, if legislative innovations are halted, we shall enter at once upon a period of gradual but steady economic recovery."

Willkie devoted most of his talk to an attack on the Administration utility holding companies bill.

Dictatorship Feared.

He said that if the electric utility industry were freed of the threat of the holding company bill, of donations by the Federal Government toward building of municipal plants, and of transmission of electricity by the Government, the industry could do more to lift the country out of the depression than all the Government expenditures.

Frederic S. Snyder, former president of the Institute of American Meat Packers, also told the convention that fear is holding business back. His subject was "The Kind of Banking System a Business Man Needs."

"The business world fears dictatorial power vested in a politically controlled Federal Reserve Board," he said. "Business interests will lose confidence in the system if there is a loss of local autonomy by the Federal Reserve Banks in their respective districts.

"Business interests resent the indicated competition of Government agencies either in business or in banking.

They believe that demand deposits ought not to be received in government institutions; that commercial credits ought not to be extended by government except as an emergency measure."

In closing his talk he said:

"Wise legislators will set their faces like flint against political dictation as applied to the Federal Reserve Board and therefore detailed directional banking control whenever it becomes politically desirable to exercise such control.

"This is not a doctrine of laissez faire. It is a proposal that we keep one foot on a rung of the national financial ladder until we have transferred the other foot to the rung which is higher up."

Lawrence M. Judd, former Governor of Hawaii, made a plea to the convention in support of Statehood for the islands. He told of Hawaii's commercial and military importance, and declared its people were as typically American as those of the mainland.

Government's 'Meddling' Held Bar to Business

Bell Condemns NRA, AAA and High Taxes at Trade Group Meeting.

Declaring "we are working four months in the year to support our governments," William B. Bell, president of the American Cynamid Co., of New York, made a blanket attack on the New Deal at the United States Chamber of Commerce meeting yesterday.

"Stop so-called national economic planning," he advised. "There is nothing that a national planner will not attempt, once he is given power. There is no power for which he will not ask—that is, if he can think of it!

"Who is there in this room," he asked, "who does not know that national planning finally ends in a system for determining whether there are more votes for the Administration amongst the Southern cotton planters or amongst the textile mills of New England?"

In addition he suggested:

"The next step for Uncle Sam to take is to cut out all relief except direct relief. Other forms of relief cost from twice to four times as much. If continued, they will break the Government's financial back."

Pointing out that the United States is more heavily taxed on a per capita basis than France and Germany and almost as heavily as England, Bell demanded drastic cuts in expenditures.

Demanding that industry be given "a fair and honest opportunity to go to work," he asked for modification of the securities act, for law enforcement only by the courts, for ending the NRA and the AAA.

"Stop tinkering with the dollar," he said. "Uncertainties halt legitimate business."

Bell advocated deferring action on social security legislation pending a more thorough study.

Banish Poverty By Advertising, Chamber Urged

'It Creates Buying, Incentive, Earning Power,' Says Durstine.

The value of advertising as an economic force was described at the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States yesterday by Roy S. Durstine, vice president and general manager of Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborn, Inc.

Advertising, he pointed out, creates desires that lead to better living standards. It reduces prices, he said, by making mass production and mass distribution possible.

Speaking of the business situation generally, he said:

"Business today is being harassed, if not completely governed, by the theorists who are going to show us how—by the results of the great American inferiority complex on the rampage."

"The goose that lays the golden eggs doesn't need to be killed to be put out of commission," he said. "She may be allowed to live and still find it a little difficult to lay good eggs if a Federal regulator is choking her at one end and a tax collector is pulling out her tail feathers at the other."

Discussing advertising, he said:

"Of course, advertising as a force, in all of its efforts, is opposed to poverty. It creates dissatisfaction, against coal stoves and coal furnaces, against tedious cooking and laborious cleaning, against toil and labor and discomfort and the waste of time. It creates desire. It creates incentive. It creates determination. It creates earning power. It creates buying. It creates enjoyment.

"Whether it is building or aircraft or just pork and beans and cosmetics and textiles, one thing is certain:

"Heavy industry is not going to whip up that 55,000,000 horsepower until it feels the pull of consumer confidence. And when more and more manufacturers advertising consumer products can lose their Washington-made jitters and swing into their stride as so many are doing today to their increasing profit, then shall we have found that the pump has been primed—not by any doubtful expedient or pouring oil on troubled waters, but by using advertising for what it is today—the spark plug to start the engine."

At the same meeting, Paul S. Willis, president of the Associated Grocery Manufacturers of America, Inc., discussed quality standards and grade labeling.

Stable Money Big U. S. Need, Gannett States

Publisher Sees Gold Cause of Europe's Ills, He Tells Chamber.

By the Associated Press.

The establishment of a monetary system which would insure a sound and stable currency was put forward last night by Frank E. Gannett, publisher of the Gannett newspapers, as the most important factor in national recovery.

"America physically is not much different today from what it was when we were prospering in 1929," he said. "What has happened is that we have had a great collapse in prices and have suffered disastrous consequences. Restore prices that have fallen, stabilize the purchasing power of the dollar—not the price of gold—and commerce will resume its normal flow."

Gannett spoke at a dinner of the Committee for The Nation and a group of national farm organizations. Other speakers were Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation; Fred H. Sexauer, president of the Dairymen's League Co-operative Association, and Frank A. Vanderlip, New York financier.

Gannett reviewed the possibilities in the field of money for the future, including gold, a two-commodity money, and multiple-commodity money.

"To prevent both the deflation which we have experienced," Gannett said, "and the deflation which will probably occur if gold should lose much of its value, we should seriously consider establishing by law a monetary authority which will give us both a sound and stable currency."

"The farmers of the Nation understand gold and its effects on the prices of their commodities and on their lives. But some persons have their minds closed to facts, and blindly and vaguely talk about 'sound money' and 'honest dollar' without knowing that our dollar of the past has been both unsound and dishonest because it has been a varying measure of value. It has been as if our yardstick were 36 inches today and tomorrow 24 inches. * * *

"It is true we seem to be experiencing a slow cyclical recovery which ultimately comes when things wear out or get out of date. We have always experienced improvement after depressions, but the question is whether we can stand the strain of the present situation long enough to wait for the completion of this slow-moving recovery."

Gannett told his findings after a trip through Europe, and contrasted the prospering conditions of England with the evidences of "depression, despair, discouragement" in the gold bloc countries.

My experience drove home to me most forcefully that the ills of Europe are due fundamentally to gold," he declared.

Veteran Leader Sees Laziness Of Intelligent as Red Menace

Former Legion Chieftain Criticizes Pacifists at Chamber Meeting.

Persons who through their activities as pacifists and through radical doctrines aid the Communist movement in America were scored by E. A. Hayes, former national commander of the American Legion in a talk before a group of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States yesterday.

Mr. Hayes pointed out that, while there are only 24,000 dues-paying members of the Communist Party in America, there are thousands who are helping them, many unwittingly.

"Our premise is," he said, "that the large percentage of those really doing the work of Communists or real Reds in this country would deny any association with the world revolutionary organization. The immutable, irrefutable truth is that they are giving aid and assistance to an existing 'enemy within our gates.'"

Mr. Hayes cited numerous instances of alleged Communistic teachings in colleges and schools.

"There is no immediate Red menace," he said, "provided intelligent, patriotic Americans will awaken and act. It is neither desirable nor necessary that any portion of our properly treasured freedom of speech should be destroyed in order to allay the ravages of the disease of Communism or any other ism. The soap-box orator should be given full sway regardless of the length of his hair or the absurdity of his rantings. However, it is not so much the insurrection of the ignorant we need fear in this country—it is the laziness of the intelligent.

"Real Americans must arise who, revering our traditions, grateful to those who have contributed to our unparalleled success as a nation, standing firm as advocates of our constitutional democracy with its republican form of government, insist that the youth of our land shall have the principles which made this Nation great, imbued and reimbued through every form of teaching, either in the grade schools or the institutions of higher learning."

C. of C. Visitors Note Roosevelt Silence

As speaker after speaker criticized the New Deal at the convention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States yesterday, it was remarked by some delegates that no message of greeting had come from the White House.

It has been the custom for a number of years for Presidents either to address the conventions or send messages.

At the Chamber of Commerce it was said that President Roosevelt had not been pressed to send a message.

The Whiskey that never wears out a Welcome

TONIGHT
SHE: "Jim, this is a grand drink!"
HE: "Of course! It's CALVERT."
TOMORROW
THEY: "You drive a shrewd bargain for a fellow who didn't get in until 3 A.M."
HE: "Well, CALVERT in moderation never lets you down."

For that special occasion . . . LORD CALVERT BOTTLED-IN-BOND WHISKEY . . . RYE or BOURBON . . . bottled-in-bond under Canadian Government Supervision. 100 proof.

WHEN you drink, are you "Up" tonight? "Down" tomorrow? Then, heed this hint! Don't mix them. Confine yourself to CALVERT. Get a little system into your drinking, and a little less drinking into your system. Gentlemanly restraint plus this gentleman's whiskey will make you glad tomorrow you said "CALVERT" today.

CALVERT'S SPECIAL RESERVE and CALVERT'S SPECIAL Blended Whiskies are special. Just taste them. Amazingly mellow! Surprisingly smooth! Serve them and you serve the best.

Crime Report Is Pigeonholed By Committee

No Action Pending Printing of Hearing Transcript, Is Decision.

report before it reaches the House. It is understood a minority report will be filed before the committee acts.

The Virginia delegation has already started pulling political strings in behalf of Garnett and has written a letter to Chairman Mary T. Norton, of the House District Committee.

Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), of Texas, whose "gentleman's agreement" was a sensation of the investigation, immediately called Inspector Albert J. Headley into conference. Headley was summoned to Capitol Hill by a message sent over the police radio system.

Copies Are Locked Up.

Reluctance of the full District committee to act on the report before the transcript of hearings is printed will slow up consideration of the sub-committee's recommendations by the District Commissioners and the Attorney General because the report was not released officially.

The committee made an attempt to prevent publication of the report by newspapers and instructed Chairman Norton to inform the press that the report would not be released until the committee approved it. However, copies had been made available to the press the day before with the understanding that the report would be released immediately after the committee meeting yesterday.

All undistributed copies of the report were placed under lock and key immediately after the meeting and Mrs. Norton said she would not give copies even to members of Congress not on the District Committee.

Two Failed to Sign.

Consequently, the District Commissioners and the Attorney General will not get "official" copies of the report until the committee acts and will obviously be in a position to withhold "official" statements. That was their attitude yesterday.

The committee's only definite action yesterday was to adopt a motion extending to the sub-committee on crime "a vote of confidence and appreciation and commend them for their valuable and constructive service to the District of Columbia."

Following the executive session, Representatives Theodore B. Werner (Democrat), of South Dakota, and Clare Gerald Fenerty (Republican), of Pennsylvania, announced they had not signed the report, though they are members of the sub-committee.

"I wish it clearly understood," Werner said, "that I do not concur with the conclusions of the report in a number of instances."

Committee Startled.

He did not amplify his objection, but it is known that he believes the sub-committee dealt too harshly with Garnett and he also may come to defense of the police officials.

Fenerty's refusal to sign the report was understood to be due partially to the fact that he did not attend many of the hearings and felt incompetent, consequently, to form any conclusions.

The report, which startled members of the committee by its directness and specific criticism, made suggestions rather than recommendations with regard to Garnett and the police officials.

The language, though modified somewhat by the sub-committee, was terse and clear, however, in its "suggestions."

Quoting testimony from the hearings, the report stated that it "proves beyond peradventure that the United States attorney for the District of Columbia is not only incompetent, but that he is indifferent to the responsibilities of his office.

Emphatic on Garnett.

"With such a person in charge of the prosecution of criminal cases in Washington," it continued, "it is not possible to afford the people of this city the protection against crime for which they pay and to which they are by right entitled.

"The sub-committee wishes at this point to emphatically reiterate its opinion that Mr. Garnett should be removed without delay, and that a competent official should be appointed to succeed him."

Referring to Garnett's aid, the report stated:

"It is the opinion of the sub-committee that the assistant United States attorney in charge of Police Court, Mr. Karl W. Kindleburger, is totally unfit for the office he now holds and that he should be immediately removed."

Concluding this section, the sub-committee recommends that the report be "officially transmitted to the Attorney General."

Cites "Advancing Age."

Criticism of the police high command is less bristling. The report says:

"Purely in the interest of affording the people of Washington the best possible police protection, it is nothing more than good judgment to take the administration of the Police Department out of the hands of officials who have given to the city the best years of their lives and who, because of advancing age, are no longer able to provide the character of energetic leadership that must be had if the department is to be operated with maximum efficiency."

The sub-committee suggested that in selecting a successor to Maj. Brown the District Commissioners should consider advisability of "selecting a competent and qualified person who is not now a member of the Police Department."

Supporting this, the report states: "The sub-committee is of the opinion that the force at the present time is seriously suffering not only from a lack of morale, but from a breakdown of discipline, predicated upon a widespread lack of respect for superior officers."

Only Headley Rebuked.

Only Inspector Headley is singled out for a specific rebuke because of the "gentlemen's agreement" with Blanton.

"The sub-committee recognizes the fact that under our present form of government, the practice of political indorsements is generally accepted," the report says, "it does not comment upon propriety or impropriety of this practice. However, it does find that the conduct and attitude of Inspector Headley in his quest for promotion was, to say the least, prejudicial to the best interests of the department."

Headley also is censured for "his attitude toward his subordinates, his neglect of duty as District inspector, as indicated by his failure to take action in connection with the deplorable conditions in Precinct No. 5, and his evasiveness and lack of candor when appearing as a witness before the sub-committee."

Blanton Plan Criticized.

Blanton is not mentioned in the report, but his pet legislative proposal—the substitution of a civilian trial board for the police trial board—is criticized as undesirable.

The District Commissioners declined to comment on the sub-committee's proposals on the ground that they had not received copies of the report. Commissioner George E. Allen said, however, that they would give careful consideration to the report and to any recommendations which the full committee may make.

The sub-committee reiterated its opinion that the 141 officers and the men asked by Maj. Brown should be made available. Other suggestions relative to the department were:

That intoxication on duty should carry with it mandatory dismissal.

That policemen dismissed should not be reinstated by act of Congress.

That the present system of efficiency ratings should be scrapped for one which is outlined in the report.

That an adequate building for police headquarters should be erected with provision for the Women's Bureau.

Crime Records Compared.

The report raps an "erroneous impression" that Washington's crime record is low and quotes figures to show that in comparison with eight cities of similar size Washington is second in murder, first in robbery, second in burglary, first in grand larceny and second in auto thefts.

Special attention is given to automobile thefts, and a suggestion is made to the Commissioners that they adopt the "nontransferable number plates" used by many cities to discourage such larcenies.

Gambling and vice also are treated in special sections and the sub-committee expresses the opinion that the people of Washington are anxious to have enacted into law the bill aimed at control of the numbers game, which has passed the Senate but has been pigeonholed by a sub-committee of the House District Committee.

Increased penalties, such as provided in a bill that has passed the Senate, are urged for prostitution and solicitation.

Trial Delays Rapped.

The sub-committee recommends legislation to make the term of jury service in Police Court coincide with that of the District Supreme Court, expresses the opinion that "in many instances there have been undue and inexcusable delays in the trial of criminal cases," and proposes that the indeterminate sentence and parole law, only four years old, be repealed.

In support of the latter suggestion, the sub-committee quotes testimony of Chief Justice Wheat and Wilbur La Roe, jr., chairman of the District Parole Board.

After paying tribute to La Roe and other members of the board for giving their services to the District, the report explains:

"The recommendation that the present system be abandoned is in no wise intended as criticism of Mr. La Roe and his associates. It is, on the contrary, with the desire to relieve private citizens of the unfair burden imposed up these gentlemen that the sub-committee asks a solution to the unsatisfactory conditions brought about by the enactment of the present indeterminate sentence law, and the placing of the burden of executing this law upon volunteer administrators."

Repeal of the act would return parole authority over District prisoners to the Department of Justice.

Permanent Body Suggested.

The final recommendation in the report is that a permanent Washington Crime Commission be set up to follow up and preserve findings of the sub-committee on crime.

"The work of the sub-committee should not be regarded as a solution to the unfortunate crime situation in which Washington finds itself," the report states. "It is a step in the right direction, and it should produce definite and beneficial results.

"If, however, the submission of this report is to mark the beginning of another lapse of public interest in the enforcement of the law, a large part of the possible benefits of this investigation will be completely lost."

The proposed crime commission, the sub-committee explains, should, as in other cities, be "composed of citizens, business concerns and organized groups. Its affairs should be conducted by a managing director under the supervision of an executive committee and a board of directors. * * * It should be privately financed," though incorporated by act of Congress.

Traffic Inquiry Proposed.

The sub-committee cites the Chicago Crime Commission and the Baltimore Criminal Justice Commission as precedents, and pledges its co-operation with the people of the District in establishment of such a commission.

Another inquiry is proposed into the traffic situation, but by a committee of disinterested and competent persons to be named by the District Commissioners.

"The sub-committee is of the opinion that enforcement of existing traffic regulations in the District of Columbia is not as efficient as it should be," the report states.

The special sub-committee chairman is Representative Jennings Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia. Other members are Representatives Virginia E. Jenckes (Democrat), of Indiana; Theodore B. Werner (Democrat), of South Dakota; William T. Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana; Everett M. Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois; Ralph O. Brewster (Republican), of Maine; Chauncey W. Reed (Republican), of Illinois; Clare G. Fenerty (Republican), of Pennsylvania.

Service on the Milky Way

No one individual could hope to cover the milk mileage of a great city.

If he had 7-league boots he would find the job too much for one pair of legs.

It takes numbers and organization and horsepower, on the hoof and in gasoline, to see that milk gets where it is wanted.

Before the route men start on their nightly rounds another army of workers has seen action.

The milk must be certified or pasteurized—this company handles 4,500 cans in an 8-hour period.

All bottles must be sterilized. Then they are filled and capped by machines.

After bottling, the milk is put in coolers. From this storage it is transferred to wagons and trucks for house and store delivery.

Every 24 hours the corporate milkman puts 154,838 bottles of milk and dairy products on Washington doorsteps.

He covers 238 routes.

He requires 82 horses and 254 automobiles. He buys from 700 producers to serve 52,000 Washington customers.

Milk is as much a product of organization as it is of cows.

The corporate milkman is a composite of many skills, adequate to a great city's changing needs, responsive to the call of its humblest citizen.

the wealthy youth who refused to fight when others were volunteering or being drafted.

"We are going first to Philadelphia," Mrs. Bergdoll said, "to show grannie her grandchildren. She has only seen Erwin, and then he was a baby.

"My children are most pleased they are going to see the country of their father. I am fighting, with grannie, to rehabilitate my husband—and also these youngsters, now without a country.

"Would Clear Shadow."

"Maybe, I, as a wife and mother, will be able to secure amnesty from the Government which will make possible that these growing children will not feel in later years that they are still under the shadow of which they are not as yet aware."

The children chattered in a strong Wuertemberg accent.

"I'm going to see the United States," Erwin said. "Papa has talked to me often about it."

Bergdoll accompanied his family to Hamburg, but did not go on board to see them off at the ship. It might be considered he was on United States territory to board a United States liner.

Ignored Draft Call.

Mrs. Bergdoll's mission recalls the case against slackers which aroused more indignation in the United States than any other at the end of the World War. When Bergdoll's draft number was called in August, 1917, he failed to report. He had ample means and succeeded in eluding police and Federal authorities until January 7, 1920, when he was taken.

He was courtmartialed March 17, 1920, and sentenced to five years, imprisonment in Castle William, Governors Island. On May 21 he was given permission to visit his mother in Philadelphia.

He is said to have plied his custodians with liquor, and when they recovered he was gone. He escaped to Europe through Canada on a forged Canadian passport, all reports indicate, and proceeded to the home of an uncle at Eberbach, Baden, close to the Coblenz bridgehead, occupied by United States troops in the Allied Army of Occupation.

In the intervening 15 years, Bergdoll tried every means available to gain amnesty to permit his return. He even appealed to President Roosevelt in a letter from Weinsberg, Germany, in March, 1934.

Attack Awaited By Milk Board

Virginia Commission Is Standing by Guns.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., May 1.—The embattled State Milk Commission, recent winner in a hard-fought legal battle for existence, which was assured only after the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals reversed itself and declared the control law constitutional, today stood by its guns awaiting another threatened attack.

Intimations of a "fight to a finish" came from Henry T. Patrick, Lynchburg producer-distributor, who yesterday was restrained by court injunction from selling milk and buttermilk below prices prescribed by the State board for his area. Today Patrick announced he would comply with the court order until he could move to have the injunction dissolved.

It also became known that Patrick had been circulating a petition among Lynchburg producers to have the commission withdraw from that area, and had announced a majority of the producers had signed.

Shenandoah Suit Action Is Sought

Officials Hope High Court Will Act Soon.

By the Associated Press.

Interior Department officials are faintly hopeful that the principal lawsuit involving Shenandoah National Park lands in Virginia will be considered by the Supreme Court before its summer recess.

The court will quit work for the hot months around June 1. The record of the case, brought here on an appeal from a three-judge Federal court in Virginia, has not yet been filed with the Supreme Court clerk. However, it is expected to be momentarily.

The case is an attack by former landowners in the Shenandoah Park area on the manner in which Virginia obtained their property by condemnation and was decided for the defendants, the Virginia Conservation Development Commission, by the three-judge court. Attorney General A. P. Staples of Virginia will defend the case before the court.

The Good Neighbor?

Hypocrisy is the one unpardonable blunder in the conduct of foreign policy. It is unpardonable because always easy to detect and because, when detected, hypocrisy invariably arouses legitimate suspicions in other nations. Thereafter foreign mistrust is only strengthened by soothing proclamations and further protestations of good will.

Unfortunately, hypocrisy is the only description applicable when it is revealed that while the President of the United States is emphasizing a "good neighbor" policy, his military subordinates are working out plans to build air bases against Canada, and to seize adjacent British and French territory "in time of emergency." If such scheming, academic though it may be, is consistent with being a good neighbor, then words have no meaning.

Because of their implicit contradiction of his reiterated pronouncements, and because of his direct responsibility as Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, President Roosevelt could do nothing less than publicly disown statements made by Gen. Andrews and Gen. Kilbourne before executive sessions of the House Committee on Military Affairs. Chairman McSwain, of that committee, has taken personal responsibility for the blunder of making that testimony public. But this does not explain why national policy should encourage high officers of the United States to spend public funds in planning activities which would be in direct violation of the spirit and letter of treaty obligations solemnly and voluntarily undertaken by the Government of the United States.

Since the issue has been so sensationally raised it may be hoped that the underlying moral will be seriously taken to heart. It is a matter of common knowledge that the Department of State now has less final authority in matters of foreign policy, and that military spokesmen have more influence in this field, than at any previous period of our peacetime history. For a country with the traditions of the United States that is an unprecedented and highly disquieting trend. Representative McSwain has really done a national service by making it clear that our own militarists need the application of controls by the presumably supreme civil authority.

A Question Of Procedure.

The Government's case against former Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, which is being heard before the Board of Tax Appeals, is extremely complicated. Only the experts thoroughly familiar with this field of law are competent to form an intelligent opinion as to whether the evidence currently in question is admissible. But the procedure followed by the Bureau of Internal Revenue in cases of this sort has public importance as a matter of policy, entirely aside from legal technicalities.

When the Board of Tax Appeals rejected a Government counsel's brief on the ground that it contains "somewhat ill-tempered argument based on the false assumption that fraud is charged," the Treasury might well have inquired whether it was being represented in desirable fashion. The validity of the arguments presented is beside the point. The board objected to the manner of their presentation. Judging from the character of the brief, its criticism seems to be fully justified. But instead of restraining the Government's counsel from injecting innuendo and emotional denunciations into a legal document, Secretary Morgenthau has instructed Robert H. Jackson to pursue the attack with no abatement in the vigor of his efforts.

In effect the Secretary of the Treasury has rebuked a special tribunal set up by Congress to adjudicate tax disputes between the Government and citizens. He has inadvertently exposed himself to the charge of interfering with a judicial body. If the policy pursued in this case should become general, grave injustices would inevitably ensue.

It should go without saying that no counsel representing the Government is justified in directing an "ill-tempered argument" against a citizen who is contesting the legality of taxes assessed against him. Attorneys for the Government acquire a special obligation in this respect. For the Government represents all the people. Its only objective should be to establish justice in all cases, and not to seek to win by objectionable means.

Unfortunately, such tactics are frequently employed by attorneys representing private clients. But a more detached attitude is expected on the part of the legal representatives of the Government. The Treasury has made the serious mistake of giving the impression that it has a vindictive interest in pressing this case against a former Government official.

Worse Than Chicago.

One of the most pointed and courageous reports written on Capitol Hill in recent years is that released by the House subcommittee as a result of its investigation of crime in Washington. With an array of facts tersely summarized, the committee shows "that Washington has a disgracefully high crime rate and that law enforcement here is neither aggressive nor efficient." From these findings it proceeds to a sweeping indictment of law enforcement agencies and individuals who are regarded as having a large measure of indirect responsibility for the growth of crime in the Nation's Capital.

Failure of the full District Committee to accept the report immediately may be explained by its outspoken character. But its members who did not actively participate in the investigation should have been sufficiently familiar with the evidence brought out to pass judgment without delay on the sub-committee's findings. It would be disgraceful if this straightforward effort to remove the causes of abnormal lawlessness in the District should be rendered less effective by a dilatory and wavering attitude on the part of the full committee.

The criminal who commits a felony in Washington, the sub-committee found, has 15 chances to 1 that he will escape a prison sentence. It is not surprising, therefore, that "Washington leads all cities of its size in the United States, except one, in the rate of crime." Congress as well as local officials must be chagrined to realize that the National Capital has 40 per cent more murders than Chicago, on a per capita basis, and 2½ times as many as New York. The increase in crime during the last half of 1934 was truly alarming. The investigating committee has not recommended drastic measures without compelling reason for so doing.

Washington has two primary agencies of law enforcement: the Police Department and the force of prosecutors under the United States District Attorney. The committee regards both as weak and ineffective. It reiterates previous statements about the urgent need for more policemen. But the weakness of this law enforcement agency, it says, goes much deeper than that. Morale has been impaired; discipline is weak; the officers in charge are inactive. While paying tribute to the men who have spent their lives in service to the community, the subcommittee nevertheless is convinced that all officers more than 60 years old, holding a rank higher than captain, should be retired. Maj. Brown should be replaced, it says, by an aggressive superintendent of police chosen from outside the existing force.

In singling out Inspector Headley for special censure the sub-committee sharply condemned "so-called 'gentlemen's agreements,'" without mentioning Congressman Blanton. But the implications of this rebuke are clear.

Turning to the district attorney's office, the sub-committee is much less inclined to soften its recommendations. Leslie C. Garnett is accused of conducting his office "without adequate knowledge of the law, without proper or efficient supervision, and minus an attitude conducive to public confidence and respect." Mr. Garnett's own testimony is used to support the committee's allegation that he is "entirely ignorant of police-court activities of his own office." The committee is convinced that the replacement of Mr. Garnett by a competent, aggressive and experienced prosecutor "would do as much to reduce the frequency of crime in Washington as would the adoption at this time of any single remedy."

The committee's probe has already brought about a significant reduction of crime. But it distrusts spasmodic drives against the underworld. To prevent a recurrence of the existing situation it recommends establishment of a Washington Crime Commission composed of leading citizens and representatives of civic groups financed by private means. The chief purpose of such a commission would be to publish accurate data on the crime situation and to keep the public actively interested in the work of law enforcement agencies, with the purpose of encouraging them to render more energetic service.

Some portions of the report will unquestionably meet with criticism. In some respects it may be too sweeping. But on the whole it is a thoughtful and courageous answer to the urgent community appeal for action to counteract the advance of crime. If the committee had merely devised a new series of legislative patches, its work would have been relatively unimportant. As the report stands, it must be accorded immediate and serious consideration by Federal and local officials as well as by Congress.

That Forgotten Truce.

A number of speakers before the convention of the United States Chamber of Commerce appear to have forgotten that a truce between business and Government was once informally declared, calling for a cessation of purely destructive attacks upon Administration policies. Some of those resentful of the restraints and interferences resulting from Government efforts to achieve recovery by regulation have doubtless decided that the policy of cooperation is not yielding results that warrant moderation in comment.

While it is open to debate whether there would have been a greater or less measure of recovery if the Government had not intervened in the beginning, there is little room for arguing that a retreat is either economically or politically feasible at the present time. Experiments in the social and economic field are not of a sort that can be incontinently abandoned, once they have been initiated. For that reason, thoughtful business men who may originally have opposed the recovery program of the Administration realized some time ago that shouted demands for a return of the "good old days" are worse than useless. They serve merely to deprive the objectors of a voice in modifying the plans and policies which affect their interests, and gain them a reputation as obstructionists who may properly be ignored.

The retiring president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Henry I. Harriman, has performed a valuable service for the groups that he represents by trying to exorcise this intransigeant attitude. His address at the opening session of the twenty-third annual meeting was marked by that same spirit of moderate and sympathetic criticism that has characterized his previous utterances. It should be an example to those firebrands who are content to clamor for the unattainable.

Mr. Harriman believes, with good reason, that in one form or another the recovery act and the AAA will become "a permanent part of our economic policy." Consequently, he asks business men to work for preservation of the good parts of these plans and elimination of the bad.

His four-point program for restoration of business confidence is eminently reasonable, urging merely assurances against the uncertainties created by tampering with the currency and promises of future reductions in Government expenditures, which will indicate that the Administration is resolved to maintain the credit of the Federal Government. Harper Sibley, whose election as Mr. Harriman's successor is regarded as a certainty, says that he intends to carry on the policies laid down by the latter during his three years as head of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

In that case, the cooperation between Government and business will not give way to scolding and jeremiads, productive of strained relations and likely to create an atmosphere bitterly hostile to the interests of private trade and industry.

The NRA Tangle.

The White House conference called to discuss various proposals for continuing the NRA ended in complete disagreement. One group favored a two-year extension of the law, with important amendments. Another urged a more limited probationary extension, also entailing changes in the present temporary legislation. A third, for which Senator McCarran is spokesman, advocated a one-year prolongation of the NRA in its existing form, pending a test of the constitutionality of various phases of the act.

It seems a waste of time for Congress to proceed with plans for the permanent reformation of NRA before it knows the constitutional limitations upon its legislative powers. For that reason, the McCarran plan is greatly to be preferred to any alternative proposal calling for a premature and necessarily tentative revision of the law. Moreover, the amendments that have been suggested under the alternative proposals are not calculated to clarify disputed questions of policy. Thus, the Harrison bill would make government agencies alone responsible for code enforcement, leading to increasing bureaucratization of industry, and dealing a severe blow to the policy of encouraging self-government in industry.

The plan to extend the recovery act for a brief period, provided price fixing is prohibited and concerns engaged in intrastate commerce are exempted from code restrictions, also opens up controversial issues of policy and invites disputes over definitions of what constitutes intrastate commerce. In the long run, these questions will have to be settled by an appeal to the courts, so that any revision along the lines indicated would necessarily be provisional and far from adequate.

Nevertheless, the Senate Finance Committee voted yesterday to report favorably a joint resolution extending the life of the NRA to April 1, 1936, with provisions that price fixing be eliminated except in mineral natural resources industries and that trades engaged wholly in intrastate commerce shall be ineligible for code membership. This compromise plan might silence some of the most vociferous critics of NRA and possibly protect the recovery organization from the worst consequences of an unfavorable decision in the Schechter poultry case. However, such opportunistic temporizing with the existing law will satisfy neither friends nor foes of the NRA.

If price and production control agreements should be specifically banned, as a means of propitiating those who call for restoration of the antitrust laws, it is questionable whether the codes would long survive on a voluntary basis. If intrastate commerce were defined too rigidly, moreover, the abandonment of efforts to establish control over wages and hours in many industries would raise up new enemies for the NRA.

There are a multitude of issues that call for settlement whenever Congress is prepared to undertake a comprehensive revision of the recovery act, after due study and following judicial determination of disputed questions of constitutionality. Under the present law, however, a great deal of room is left free for the exercise of administrative discretion and experimentation. Admitted evils can frequently be eliminated without immediate changes in the law. In any case there is no excuse for undue haste in attacking the large and complicated problems which must ultimately be solved if the recovery administration is to become a permanent institution.

A simple resolution to prolong the life of the NRA for a limited period, without change, would, therefore, be a wiser method of procedure than the compromise course favored by the Senate Finance Committee.

Consistency may be a jewel, but it doesn't sparkle like versatility.

Letters To The Editor

Democracy In Popcorn.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If someone were to ask you what impressed you most in the City of Washington, how would you answer?

If the question were put to me I would answer as follows: "What impressed me most was not the massiveness and beauty of the new buildings; not the bustling activity nor swarming thousands of persons jostling each other on the sidewalks at 5 p. m.; not the beautiful trees from which the squirrels peer at me quizzically every morning squatted on their bleacher seats among the branches; not the inviting parks carpeted with grass and dandelions; nor yet the Executive Mansion with its halo of austerity, dignity and tradition, but a little popcorn cart at one end of the Executive Estate where every evening a man (who has difficulty speaking the English language, and who is very careful when he counts out your change after you purchase a bag of popcorn) plies his trade unmolested, and by dint of long hours and tending strictly to business, manages to eke out a living for himself.

To me, the picture of that man selling his wares outside the "most famous mansion in the world," unhampered, unconcerned, is symbolic of real, true American democracy. It is a most fitting subject for those who worry about imaginary encroachments on personal liberty.

Youthful Expression.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Following the growth of The Washington Post since it has come under its present management, I must compliment the excellent taste for articles and material used in your daily, and especially in your Sunday issues. The impression of fair play becomes a convincing argument for thinking men and women, drawing them into your permanent rank of subscribers.

I was impressed by the last page in the sport section of the issue of Sunday, April 28, where a chance is given to our youth to express their views on economic, international and social conditions. The two essays by William Ashby Jump, jr., and Virginia S. Heintz show that an impartial analysis of conditions going on abroad can become a value for the youth to whom this page is no doubt designated. The up-to-date facts show that our youth thinks and digests. It shows clearly that the type of confusing and imaginary atrocities published in other newspapers make no inroads on the mentality of our youth.

Let us hope that in the future more space will be given to our growing generation to express its thoughts and force our thinking men and women to guide them and help them to distinguish between truth and malicious and false propaganda. L. B. TEMPRARO.

Courtesy to Motormen.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Not long ago when I was traveling in a street car a lady of elephantine proportions entered. Her embonpoint was literally covered with flags, badges and medals of all designs and antiquity—resembling a fakir's tray on Inauguration Day, rather than a relic of 1812. In making her exit for the D. A. R. Congress she stopped on the steps to give the patient motorman a personal dissertation on "the men not fit to drive a donkey cart."

I felt very sorry for the employe, but he did not respond. I always try—being a little slow myself in getting off a car—to give the man at the wheel a thank you, and sometimes a sweet smile. Consequently I have ever met with courtesy and kindness. If the Revolutionary War must be perpetuated, please spare our patient motormen of Washington. A WASHINGTONIAN.

The Missing Flag.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Our President and the First Lady of the Land will be honored in the National Capital from August 21 to 30 with over 35,000 Boy Scouts of America, representing every State in the Union.

The writer desires to call to the attention of the President's committee on arrangements that the American flag has never been placed on the national headquarters of the Boy Scouts of America, located at Vermont avenue and L street northwest, the District headquarters of the Boy Scouts of America, located between K and L streets northwest, and on the national home of the Girl Scouts of America, located at Eighteenth and I streets northwest.

Last Saturday, April 27, the First Lady of the Land was entertained at a tea by the Girl Scouts of the District at their national home in honor of the better home movement, and as she passed between the guard of honor, composed of the Girl Scouts of America, into that American home, Old Glory was not there.

Being born an American, educated with American ideals, and having fought to uphold those ideals on the battlefields of France, I cherish the movement of the youth of our Nation in Scout activities, being one of their organization leaders 25 years ago in Allegheny County, Pa.

Not A Cyclops.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It was my privilege to hear President Roosevelt address his national family over the radio on April 28. One very significant pronouncement he uttered, among other encouraging statements, will strengthen the faith of women that he has the welfare of all the people at heart. He intends to give "men and women" work.

Whenever I see or hear these two nouns linked together, I feel that the individual using them is mentally balanced, woman-minded as well as man-minded. Franklin D. Roosevelt has gone beyond any other President in the recognition of women because he isn't a Cyclops with just one eye. He has eyes for all angles. I earnestly register a plea that he keep an eye on the men to whom he has delegated power and see to it that they "do not forget the ladies" as Abigail Adams, wife of one President and mother of another, pled so long ago when urging the greater participation of women in all affairs affecting the welfare of the country. Women want work.

Brickbats For Sports.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Because The Post is my favorite Washington newspaper, I am a trifle exasperated at the policies of your sports department in its small-town devotion to all athletic competitors representing Washington or its institutions.

You are hereby accused of allowing your patriotism to impair the clarity of your sports news reporting. I further accuse you of embracing a cause—an accusation which directed at a good paper such as The Post—should be labeled libel. Please don't assume that all your readers are supporters of the Senators. Kindly refrain from establishing an alibi for a weak hitting Senator outfielder or a faltering Senator pitcher. Give them hell as you would an erring Washington public official. Let's see some praise for Washington's conquerors and less ifs and buts when the Senators lose. There are many thousands of immigrants from American hinterlands in Washington who are starving for news of their favorite teams in other cities. Please increase their rations.

HAROLD E. FISHER.

A Feast Of Beauty.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Everyone knows that Washington is liberal in her offering of beauty throughout the year, and in the spring her glorious spectacle of blossoming Japanese cherry trees is enjoyed by many thousands of out-of-town visitors.

The special feast of beauty which needs a Wordsworth to praise it in poetry is the garden of pansies in West Potomac Park. Such beauty is an experience rather than a spectacle. From a distance the great beds of blossoms are far-flung carpets of living velvet in richest, gayest colors. As one approaches nearer, myriads of gay little faces nod and bow in the breeze—a riot of color in every hue—

Ten thousand saw I at a glance
Tossing their heads in sprightly dance.

Those who come to see linger to feast on the beauty. Slowly and more slowly they move; pausing frequently to admire individual flowers. Little children stroke the friendly pansy faces; their elders stoop to raise this head and that—unconsciously paying tribute to the personality of the most individual of flowers.

As I sit hour after hour drinking in the beauty and the fragrance and longing to capture some of it in words, I am cheered by the evidence of the power of loveliness as I see all manner of persons succumb to the pansy's charm. A fastidiously dressed man of the world stops to point out with his cane some particular blossom. His faultlessly dressed wife pauses, and soon they both stoop to lift up for closer inspection one of the enormous blossoms. They are followed by two workmen shabbily clad, who go on their knees to examine the flowers, and finally bury their faces in the velvety fragrance.

Such response to beauty lifts people, at least for a brief moment, away from petty cares and troubles.

Such ministry of beauty is a precious gift offered by Washington to all who care to visit the pansy garden. ANN LISTER.

The Post Impressionist

"A Man For A' That."

Post Office, Thursday.

"WHY is it, asks the Major, "that the sure-fire way to flatter a modern woman is to say she's like a man?"

And, of course, he answers his own question—of course vigorously, and of course from his own point of view.

With which we don't pretend to agree.

A long time has gone since last the Major favored us with a communication. We understand that he was in poor health for many months after last autumn's congressional election. But now he is almost himself again.

He is even strong enough to read the Column.

He has read in it that confession of a maiden who told what kind of man she would like to be if she could only be a man, which we published a while ago. And says he:

"Any of 'em would be glad to be any kind of man."

He has read our excerpts from Mrs. Kestler's columner attack upon his sex. And he doesn't like that, either.

"All modern women," says he, "are suffering from what their own favorite lingo calls 'an inferiority complex.'

"I'm finally well enough," he writes us, "to go to my doctor, instead of letting my doctor come to me. It's cheaper in money, but it's costlier in time. He's one of those doctors who take it out on you by pretending they're busy—keep you waiting in their waiting-rooms with nothing to read except old magazines. If you read an uninteresting article, they won't open the door to their consultation-office; but if you look interested when they peep through the keyhole at you, they'll right away interrupt you with a 'Now it's your turn, Major.'

"That's how I got scientific confirmation of my years' old theory about the masculine yen of the modern woman. And that's how I didn't have time for a complete perusal of the confirmation, too.

"I was in the doc's waiting-room. There was only one other patient, and she was too busy with her lipstick to improve her mind by listening to me. So I picked up a copy of the Review of Reviews and began a piece by man named Donald, A. Laird, who said—I copied some of it down right away, on the back of the last bill the doc'd sent me—that the desire to be masculine was specially strong in women.

"This Laird fellow is director of the psychological laboratory of Colgate University. And here's what he said about that desire in women:

"'It is responsible for mannish attire, the boyish bob, the boyish figure, the smoking of cigarettes by women, and the preference of office-work to homework. The highest flattery that can be given to a woman when she is deciding on an investment is to say: "You are reasoning this through better than most men do."'"

The Major crows loudly over that confirmation of his theory—"confirmation" is his word, not ours—and then, we regret to record, goes on to quote Dr. Laird as proof that a woman's desire to be masculine is coupled with considerable selfishness:

"The young woman never quite loses the idea that she must get herself a husband. She wants a lipstick that makes her kissable. She does not want a dress because it is a bargain, but because the saleswoman said it made her look alluring. She is a booster for the family to buy anything that will make the front of the house and the living-rooms attractive to her boy acquaintances."

Says the Major:

"Dr. Laird bears me out that this sort of thing goes right along with maturity and marriage. As soon as she's got a husband, 'she begins to realize that her big job is to hold him' and to get everything out of him that she can. Most of the 'beauty-parlor' patients are married women over 35.

"Time goes on—but they don't. Dr. Laird says: 'Secretly the woman hopes her husband will take out more insurance, for she realizes that it would be difficult for her to remarry. She wants him to get an oil-burner, for when she tends the furnace it makes her look tired and haggard. She wants to be noticed by men, perhaps even more than when she was younger.'

"You'll note," adds the Major, "that modern woman's desire for masculinity plays safe. It stops short of the line where she'd support herself after the wedding-bells have been rung.

"But it's bad enough while it lasts," he concludes. "And I've told you the reason. The more a woman talks about woman's equality with man—let alone her superiority to him—the more inferior her inferiority complex is. I'll bet I could clean up if I'd invent a hair-tonic that'd make a girl's upper lip look like Hitler's. What do you think about it?"

We don't think about it. The modern woman is a subject which does not occupy us—during business-hours.

Our May Day.

WE Communists had a most interesting meeting in Franklin Square yesterday. Many interesting matters were taken up and many interesting speeches were made. It is one of the things I like about our movement, the interesting matters we take up and the interesting speeches we have.

Comrade Bashnokoff brought to us the message that May Day really originated in this country and the widely established belief that it was first celebrated in Europe was the deliberately instilled falsehood of the capitalistic classes. This being settled we contemplated our many banners. When we first arrived in the park there were only about ten of us, with about 50 banners, so we had to get some of the onlookers to hold some of the banners.

Comrade Vladimsky, observing the banners calling for the release of Tom Mooney and the Scottsboro boys, said he thought we had already obtained their freedom.

Oh, no, it was explained to him, they are still in jail. Well, something happened to them not long ago, he persisted, but we finally made him see that whatever it was that happened to them, it was not their release.

Then we all realized that when these fellows are released we have got to get some new banners. A committee on new banners was named and Comrade Longshosky was named chairman.

• • • •

Comrade Shoskylongsky, the secretary, then read the minutes of the last meeting, which were to the effect that there were only two black eyes at the hands of the capitalist-controlled policemen. The increasing difficulty in getting police to hit us was then dwelt upon at length. A committee was appointed to study ways and means of making the police hit us more.

A report by the treasury revealed we had on hand a balance of 42 cents. Apprehension was then expressed by several speakers that if we got as much as a dollar we would go capitalistic. So it was decided to spend the 42 cents for cigarettes. On the basis of a report that the subway had been completed in Moscow we passed a resolution demanding a subway for Washington. While many of us doubt Wall Street will ever let us have this it was pointed out that the demand provided us with a new banner, and Comrade Longshosky, who had previously been named chairman of the new banner committee, thanked us heartily and said this was just an example of what happens when the proletariat begins to think.

"Think, think, think all the time, comrades," he yelled enthusiastically.

One comrade remarked that it looked as though Comrade Longshosky wanted us to do his work for him, but he was booed down as being inimical to our communistic ideals.

• • • •

But it developed that Comrade Longshosky had started something. A comrade whom I am satisfied is just an agitator and not a peaceful Communist, spoke up.

"I have been thinking, comrades," he said. "I have been thinking damned plenty. And what I want to know is why Comrade Tugwell and the other brain trusters do not parade with us. Is it because they think we are not good enough for them? Are they ashamed of their comrades. We have meetings and parades all the time, but they never appear.

"Now, I've understood it is to be a classless society. Yet these fellows sit up in their swanky offices surrounded by swell secretaries and we fellows have to do all the work. Only today I read in the capitalistic press where Comrade Tugwell has been given $10,000,000 and is to be given more to carry out his rural rehabilitation project. What have we been given, I ask you, comrades? Are we being hoodwinked or boondoggled?"

This comrade had a most persuasive voice and he stirred us up no end. One of the comrades said it was really inspirational. We passed a resolution that Comrade Tugwell and the others had to take their turn in the parades.

Then it was moved that we go over to the Treasury Building where they are excavating. There is a good fence to lean on there, it was pointed out.

In The Spring New York Fancies Lightly Turn To Tales Of Birds

Abandoning Wall Street, Bond Salesman Seeks Wealth In Parrots.

By Ralph E. Renaud.

NEW YORK, May 1.—At first blush (and even New York blushes occasionally) this city would hardly seem an ideal laboratory for the study of bird lore. Indeed, the average New Yorker considers himself good when he can tell the birds from the flowers, though, of course parrots and canaries are different, being house pets, like rubber plants and geraniums. Nor does the average feathered songster select New York's forest of pinnacled towers from which to warble his native wood notes wild. New York, unlike Washington, hasn't even a "parliament of foules"—and let us add hastily that we refer not to Congress, but to the congregation of starlings which chatters so endlessly and aimlessly at both ends of Pennsylvania avenue.

Yet if you are a true nature lover there is a swell way to accumulate ornithological notes even in this unsylvan city. You don't even have to be a Boy Scout or pursue the rara avis with a salt shaker through the trackless wilds of Central Park. You don't have to visit the museums, the zoos or the Jones Beach bird sanctuary. The newspapers will conduct this fascinating study for you while you sit comfortably at home and paste up your scrapbook.

Any New Yorker who can't read the wife a good, fluffy bird story over the breakfast coffee is blind. In the old days when dear old Fido reminded city dwellers of rural life and happy days back on the farm, newspapers concentrated on cute dog stories, and every issue that didn't wag a frisky canine tale was a dead issue. Now that every apartment house holds as many dogs as people, bright city editors have turned to our friends the birds as the stop-press symbol of freedom and release. Good reporters only seem happy when they can hatch a truly uplifting bird story. As a consequence our great metropolitan journals have their bird hounds tracking down news of the feathered world from Africa to the South Seas and back again to City Hall.

• • • •

CONSIDER the rough cull of a single week, for example. Well, there was that one about the Nigerian parrots. We had it in a modified version last fall and now we get it again this spring dished up with fresh trimmings.

James E. Abbott a year ago was selling bonds on Wall street. He wasn't catching much in that vicinity so he caught parrot fever, that is, he decided to go to Africa and catch parrots. It appears that there is a gray parrot in the Nigerian jungle that will learn swear words from sailors quicker than any other variety. His first collection of parrots held him up six weeks on Hoffman Island, a speck of land below the narrows, where he played nursemaid and chef to his squaking proteges while Uncle Sam's experts in Washington were making up their minds that the birds were healthy. There isn't even a Man Friday on Hoffman Island and Robinson Crusoe Abbott almost decided that parroting as a profession was on the fritz.

But he was finally admitted to his native land and did well at the pet stores. On the capital thus acquired he promptly sailed for Africa again. Now he is back with a second load headed once more for Hoffman Island. He and a boy friend managed to snare 103 of the psittaci erithaci in the tropical jungle. But, whereas, he lost only one on the first voyage, this trip he is minus 79 and has only 26 left. It appears that the seeds he provided for their diet stuck in their craw, or they are cannibal parrots or something. Mr. Abbott still thinks there is a fortune in parrots, however, and plans another African odyssey next November. He yearns to be acclaimed as the world's first Parrot Pirate.

THEN there is the one about the djahns. It sounds just like Johns when you read it out loud, but they are South Sea owls whose hoot means death in the nearest community.

In the case at bar the nearest community was that of the djahns themselves, in a cave of Manus Island in the Admiralty group, and so a dead djahn is going to be stuffed and exhibited at the Museum of Natural History, thanks to the William F. Coultas expedition.

The natives on Manus were pretty surly and secretive about the djahns and only one friendly chief was willing to show the explorers where the birds of doom hung out—hung out is right for a djahn. The chief stuck around for two days but developed a bad case of the jitters before they reached the cave. In fact, he got so sick he had to be left in the nearest village.

Mr. and Mrs. Coultas proceeded alone and shot a beautiful male djahn. They returned to the village to pick up Chief Metawari but were horrified to learn that he had died in the night. Of course, the djahn which the white hunters so foolishly coveted put the bug on him. Superstitious islanders kept popping up all over the jungle with a comprehensive collection of threatening gestures and Mr. and Mrs. Coultas had a tough time making their way to the coast. But they kept their djahn.

• • • •

OF COURSE, djahns are all right in their way but they are not the type you would feel comfortable in calling Jack, for short. A sparrow is much more homelike.

And that brings us to the sparrow who tried to show Arturo Toscanini how to run the Philharmonic concert last Sunday night. The pert little music lover got in somehow, though it has been definitely established he had no ticket. Probably a friend of One-Eyed Connelly, the gate crasher.

At first he was content with standing room on the cornice of the proscenium arch. But when he decided to tour he promptly grabbed the spotlight from Toscanini. Waving arms discouraged him from a free seat in the parquet, the boxes and the balcony. He was quite persistent about a perch on a woman's spring hat but she objected vigorously and he finally retired to the cornice where he remained throughout the concert, listening intently, but not even attempting a solo. Toscanini says a sparrow at the Philharmonic is nothing but a feathered bull in a china shop.

• • • •

THE sparrow is a smart bird in his way, but even smarter is a woodcock, a recent visitor to this city who hung up an all-time record for sagacity. The first part of the story doesn't sound like it, for Mr. Woodcock, flying by night, smashed full against a window in the General Motors Building on Broadway and so completely stunned himself that he fell unconscious to an extension on the fourth floor, just outside another window. And what window, do you suppose? Why the window of the National Association of Audubon Societies. Naturally this was the exact spot for a woodcock to secure recognition and care. He got both and now, leg banded, he is flying north for the summer.

• • • •

SAGACITY for a woodcock and pugnacity for a robin. Down at Cedarhurst, Long Island, there is a robin who has been pecking at his reflection in a windowpane for the last three weeks. He—pardon us, it is a she—has selected the home of Mrs. Norton Perkins for his (her) pecking and the Perkinses have concluded they would just as soon live in a telegraph office.

Miss Robin, and we say Miss because he is so evidently unmated, has the persistence of her sex. When Mrs. Perkins, thinking the robin wanted to come in for a visit, opened the window the bird flew to an upper pane and resumed her pecking there. Mrs. Perkins tried staring the robin out of countenance and a week ago the small visitor abandoned the dining room window, only to resume her labors on a library window on the other side of the house. From time to time she fortifies herself with a meal of worms and then goes after the reflection again.

Scientists tell us there is a scandalous side to this story, concerning the sex life of the robin. This particular bird, obviously a wall flower among her own kind, is seeking a mate. She has found one in the window pane and is not to be deceived by appearances. What a sad example of the Narcissus complex!

Male robins will sometimes fight their reflections to death in a glass but there is something even more pathetic in this lovelorn little female. Yet, with true robin's fighting blood, she continues to battle for her ideal.

Decadent Suburban Robin Airs Her Sex Life At Window Panes.

No End of Books

Thomas Boyd's "Roll River," A Novel Of Simple And Moving American Life, 1880 On.

By Theodore Hall.

THOMAS BOYD, the author of "Drums," "Long Hunt," and "Marching On," can set down scenes of Americana beautifully, with a full, tireless precision of recording, with a flow of indubitable inner life to them. But the trouble with his latest novel—"Roll River" (Scribner, $2.75)—is that there is just too much of such scenes. Scenes, I must put in at once, which do have their point in telling the life story and antecedents of Thomas Rand, but which, for each page of true worth to the structure of the novel, run on to 5, 10 and 20 pages of the book.

But perhaps it is too bad to complain of plethora when the plethora is good.

"Roll River" is one of these hospital recapitulation novels. That is, the hero is laid up in a hospital bed—where, why, or how old he is, we do not learn till the end—and by that device Mr. Boyd has him recall and run over for some 595 pages the life of his Aunt Clara and then his own life. Not, after a heavy and philosophical first chapter, an overly obtrusive method.

Thomas Rand's very earliest recollection—that pet theory of psychologists who say it symbolizes our relation to all our after life—was of a slim, very lovely lady on a lawn bringing him a little sparrow in her hat. That was Aunt Clara, ever afterward closer to him than his own mother. And Aunt Clara's life paralleled and gave an omen to his own. So we have half the book on her.

• • • •

BEHIND all these gentle and nostalgic scenes of life in the 1880's in a small Pennsylvania town—boating parties, the skating on the river, picnics into the hills by means of a "brake" or coach, the set and solid families of small-town aristocarcy—there is one theme: almost simply and literally, the devastating effects of Victorian sex education. By no means, understand me, has Mr. Boyd written a "sex novel." Here is a gentility which would have beseemed the Good Queen's own parlor.

Yet underneath is the fact that Clara's exceedingly lovely romance and marriage to the charming young gentleman, Fitz-Greene Rankin, goes to smash on a simple thesis of What Every Young Bride Should Know. Mr. Boyd, quietly but with deadly effect, has his guns out for the "frigid woman," and through a tragic misunderstanding between the young couple he causes Fitz-Green to commit suicide. Anything else, he makes us see, was "impossible" in the 1880's.

And then young Tommy Rand grows up, goes to Yale, comes home heroic and all-conquering—and marries the same type of woman. It takes an excursion to the war—well told; Mr. Boyd is at his best in such scenes—to make Rand realize the import of his mistakes. Home again, busy in the family coal business, his inner conflict gets worse and worse. But it takes Aunt Clara to tell him that he had deceived Julia, his wife, into thinking he was all she wanted, and deserved "a stuffed shirt," to show by her own story that something good and lasting could be rescued from failure.

And what is that? Only, as I see it, a quiet heroism. To symbolize it, Mr. Boyd closes the book with a mine disaster where Rand, now middle-aged, goes down in the shaft to labor at the rescue himself. Gassed, and with heart strain, he lies alive in his hospital bed just long enough to hear that his son is in love, to think of his own life and Aunt Clara's: "It was all fine."

There is, among these less and less pastoral scenes and this gallery of characters, a most patient but persuasive illusion of living. "Roll River" is a slow, expansive, softly rolling novel which bears three American generations down its current, which has, like a river, like life, one simple direction. Mr. Boyd's finest, I'm sure.

JUST because I chuckled over them and enjoyed them so thoroughly, I want to reprint a few authors' dedications here—borrowed with a bow from the May Reader's Digest, that little magazine now in its fourteenth year which was always good and which, surprisingly, seems to get better all the time. That's a heads-up crew of editors in Pleasantville, N. Y.

Why do most authors merely inscribe their tomes to "A. B. C." when they might have but in such neat fillips as these?

Thus, Francis Hackett dedicated his "The Invisible Censor":

"To my wife
Signe Toksvig whose lack of interest in this book has been my constant desperation."

Johannes Kepler, famed German astronomer, expressed his sentiments thus:

"The die is cast; the book is written, to be read either now or by posterity. I care not which. It may well wait a century for a reader, since God has waited 6,000 years for an observer like myself."

The composer, Pietro Mascagni ("Cavalleria Rusticana," etc.) put the following as the dedication of his opera, "The Mask"—perhaps because he was a bit sick of the critics:

To myself, with distinguished esteem and unalterable satisfaction.

And how is this for a neat one on an old theme, written by Henry Watson Fowler ("Modern English Usage," etc.) as the dedication of "Some Comparative Values?"

To the instructress who has been teaching me for 20 years
how the ideal wife may be surpassed by the real.

But this is the one I liked best. It's our old friend, P. G. Wodehouse, dedicating "Golf Without Tears:"

To my dear daughter without whose unflagging interest and constant assistance this book would have been written in half the time.

Ickes Urges Measures To Control Park Zones

Secretary Ickes yesterday issued a statement urging favorable action on the pending bill which authorizes the Interior Department to acquire rights within and adjacent to areas administered by the National Park Service.

The measure is aimed at elimination of nondescript buildings, offensive billboards and insanitary shacks in close proximity to national parks. Ickes pointed out that, although the proposed legislation contemplates outright purchase in some cases, its main advantage lies in the power it would give the Government to take certain control rights.

Representative Rene L. DeRouen, of Louisiana, introduced the bill in the House.

Best Plays

By

Wm. Lyon Phelps

THE accomplished drama critic, Mr. Burns Mantle, has for the sixteenth time performed an invaluable service to playgoers and to students of the modern drama, wherever they may live. He has recently published "The Best Plays of 1933-1934," which contains a list with abundant excerpts, of the leading ten plays of last season's New York theaters—together with an account of every play put on at New York, with date of opening, list of players, length of run, etc.

• • • •

At the end of the volume, there is a list of Pulitzer Prize winners since the prize was established, a list of long runs on Broadway, an account of the previous volumes of this series, biographical information of every dramatist and actor, etc.

The two longest runs were "Abie's Irish Rose," with 2,532 performances and "Lightnin'," with 1,291.

The ten best plays for the last season are:

"Mary of Scotland," "Men in White," "Dodsworth," "Ah, Wilderness!" "They Shall Not Die," "Her Master's Voice," "No More Ladies," "Wednesday's Child," "The Shining Hour," "The Green Bay Tree."

I saw all of these except "Wednesday's Child," which had 56 performances.

• • • •

"Dodsworth" is a magnificent realistic comedy, skillfully made by Sidney Howard from Sinclair Lewis' novel; "Ah, Wilderness!" is a delightful comedy by O'Neill, the most cheerful play he ever wrote; "The Shining Hour" and "The Green Bay Tree" were imported from England and were both subtle and impressive; "Mary of Scotland" is beautifully written and is fortunate in having Helen Hayes in the title role. Good as it is, I was delighted when "Men in White" was preferred by the supreme court of judges and given the Pulitzer prize. It is much more original in subject and does not depend on good acting for its success—though the cast was very fine.

Emmitsburg Election Developing Contests

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Emmitsburg, Md., May 1.—A lively campaign is in progress for the election of town officials May 6. Michael J. Thompson, seeking reelection for burgess, is opposed by George Naylor, member of the board of commissioners, whose term expires this year. Charles Keilholtz and Charles A. Harner are seeking the place vacated by Naylor. Thompson and Harner are running together and Keilholtz is alligned with the candidacy of Naylor.

The principal issue is the ratification or rejection of a bond issue for $10,000 for municipal improvements, including street improvement and a sewage disposal plant. Favoring the bond issue are Mr. Thompson and Mr. Harner. The bond issue was authorized by the last General Assembly, provided it was ratified by voters of the town.

Simon, the Rev. H. S. Coffey, Benjamin H. Sincell, H. H. Holt, Oscar Wilt, Frank Cuthbert, the Rev. Walter B. Brock and Sarah B. Huff.

Entrants have already been received from as far east as Hagerstown, Md., and as far west as Parkersburg, W. Va.

Last season 3,000 persons attended and the active participants were 776.

Hagerstown Tax Rate $1.

Hagerstown, Md., May 1 (AP).—The tax rate for the coming year here, barring developments between now and June 1, will remain at $1 per $100 assessed valuation. City officials have announced $1 will be set June 1 as the rate for the next fiscal year.

C. of C. Soliciting Funds To Buy an Armory Site

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., May 1.—A campaign was under way today by the civic interests committee of the Waynesboro Chamber of Commerce to provide a site for a new $65,000 armory for Troop F, 104th Cavalry. The money for erection of the structure would be furnished from Public Works funds.

It is understood that numerous desirable sites are available, but the Chamber of Commerce is concerned now in raising money to bring the Federal expenditure here. Immediate action is necessary, it was pointed out, since Gettysburg is desirous of having a cavalry troop.

May Day Fizzles Out Peaceably in France

Paris, May 1 (AP).—France's May Day fizzled out peacefully today as heavy police and mobile guard forces kept sharp watch over Communist and Socialist meetings.

Paris was calm and quiet after last night's scrimmage at Bagnolet, in which one policeman was killed and five other persons were wounded.

The thousands of police guarding halls where Communists held meetings late in the day had little to do. Up to early evening not one arrest had been made in Paris—and that, the oldest French politician said, was a nall-time record for May Day.

"HEY! Come back here with our POST!"

It's a major tragedy in any Washington household when anything happens to interrupt prompt delivery of The Post to the breakfast table. Father can't enjoy his orange juice because there are no sports pages to read. Mother misses the Woman's Pages. Daughter can not read society news, and Sonny sets up a howl because he wants to know what happened to "Dick Tracy" and "Joe Palooka!"

WE ARE PROUD of our "Alarm Clock Delivery Service" . . . getting The Post to your home day after day . . . leaving it in the exact spot you want it within the same ten minutes each day. When anything disrupts this service . . . whether Fido chews on your copy . . . or the wind scatters it . . . or (rare thing) the carrier salesman neglects you . . . you demand prompt action . . . and within a few minutes after you tell us your plight, a special Western Union messenger delivers a new copy to your door.

We want our delivery service to be as nearly perfect as possible . . . and while we believe our carrier salesman home delivery to be the best in town . . . we want you to telephone us immediately if you should ever miss your Post. heard to comment on the replacement of the traditional soap box by an empty beer case.)

Speakers at the local demonstration were Harold Brown, Roy Landis, Ed Harris, Gertrude Thorp, H. H. Carwile, Florence Playton and Robert Ray. Brown, a young man, was master of ceremonies.

No Hint of Trouble.

Two park police sergeants and four privates mingled in the crowd. A couple of plain-clothes men from the Metropolitan Department's Crime Prevention Bureau looked on with professional interest.

But there never was even a hint of trouble, even when the heckler asked Harris, Negro representative of the International Labor Defense, who slew Horst Wessel. Harris acknowledged the interruption by saying, "I don't know," and about that time his interrogator was hushed by a sergeant.

After that the only outburst was a round of hearty laughter which rewarded the forensic contribution of Carwile, local Socialist leader, who chided his own party for rejecting an invitation to join the demonstration.

Other speakers assailed the American Federation of Labor, the work-relief program, the Civilian Conservation Corps and the Ellenbogen bill for unemployment insurance.

Banners demanded the freeing of Tom Mooney and the "Scottsboro boys," passage of soldiers' bonus legislation and support of the Soviet Union.

Last night the same Communist leaders conducted an indoor rally at 212 H street northwest. The meeting had been scheduled for Typographical Union Hall, but, according to Brown, permission to hold it there was cancelled.

Say Hope Renewed.

John W. Jenkins, chariman, and Gardner Jackson, secretary, signed the plea sent to the White House by the Tom Mooney defense committee of Washington. "There seems to be a renewal of hope that you will use your great influence to hasten the ending of this bitterly unjust imprisonment," the letter stated.

Simultaneously with the Communists' night meeting, a Socialist demonstration was held in Franklin Park and the Washington section of the Social Labor Party heard political speakers at a gathering in Musicians Hall, 1105 Sixteenth street northwest.

Yesterday was primarily child-health day to the thousands of Washington boys and girls who watched and participated in May-pole dances, had their teeth and chests examined, listened to hygiene talks and took part in the various recreational programs arranged by the District playground department.

Four children between the ages of 2 and 5 gave a basket of flowers to Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House. They were Donald Frick, Connie Hough, Dorothy Ferebee and Dierdre Winn. Mrs. Ernest R. Grant, director of the District Tuberculosis Association presented the youngsters to the First Lady.

Children Examined.

Children who will enter school next fall underwent physical examinations at 13 public schools. Parent-teacher associations will sponsor the same service at their various schools today, tomorrow, Monday, Tuesday, May 15 and 24.

Child-health day also saw the inauguration of the anti-diphtheria drive of the American Child Health Association, in cooperation with the District Health Department.

Miss E. M. Geiger was chairman of the committee in charge of the May festival and health pageant at Wheatley School, in which more than 700 pupils took part. Attendants of Miss Lichens, the May Queen, were Mollie Whitney, Dick Helt, Patricia Mahoney, Betty Hayden, Tessie Koutsos, Marcelyn Burke and Jackie Starr.

Order Marks Europe May Day Only 4 Lose Lives in Outbreaks

War Display, Peace Talk, General Festivities Feature Observance in Capital Cities as Police Apply Stern Curb on Violence.

By the Associated Press.

London, May 1.—Europe's once pastoral festival of May Day, ushered in by bombs and scrimmages that took four lives in various countries, developed under stern police precautions into a peaceful observance of the international Labor Day.

Moscow displayed her military might before Joseph Stalin, Russia's "Man of Steel," and Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler exhorted to peace nearly 1,000,000 of his people gathered in a gigantic demonstration at the Templehof airdrome, Berlin.

Elsewhere, the day for the most part was one of festivities—free goulash in Vienna, quiet meetings in Paris, uneventful dances and concerts in Italy, a "fashion parade" of well-dressed workingmen in Stockholm and Jubille preparations in England.

Outbreak in Bulgaria.

The worst outbreak reported was that at Enina, in northeastern Bulgaria, where gendarmes attempting to break up a Communist demonstration were said to have fired on the throng and to have drawn a return fire in which an officer was killed and several persons wounded.

Spain's May Day dawned on incidents related to the celebration in which a policeman died at Madrid and a youth at Barcelona. Another officer died after a scrimmage at Bagnolet, France. But police precautions prevailed generally later in the day.

The roll of drums, the roar of airplanes, the rumble of tanks and artillery caissons, and the tramp of vast hordes of armed men were heard in Moscow, where Stalin stood at Lenin's tomb in Red Square and reviewed the mighty Soviet fighting force as 700 planes droned overhead.

At the same time, hoarse-throated Adolf Hitler stood in the snow at Templehof airfield and shouted: "What we want is not war, not unrest. * * * We want peace abroad."

Contrast in Speeches.

Der Fuehrer's dramatic avowal of peaceful aims contrasted directly to his speech earlier in the day before 100,000 school children in front of the imperial palace.

"As the wind now blows our flags around us," Hitler said, "it may a few years hence gather storm clouds around us, but you will not be frightened."

The Nazis staged another demonstration at Vienna, where several of their number clambered to the highest point of historic Votive Church and unfurled a great swastika banner. Firemen and steeplejacks worked three hours before removing the flag.

Bomb in Austria.

The Austrian government granted amnesties to 600 prisoners, held for political offenses, but 500 more persons were arrested after a bomb explosion last night in which four persons, two of them girls, were injured.

Excitement in England centered on Monday's forthcoming Jubilee festivities rather than May Day. Gayly decorated streets and buildings were the center of attraction for holiday visitors. Hyde Park, forum for all who felt the urge to speak, was the scene of several quiet gatherings.

Polish authorities permitted six Socialist parades in Warsaw, but forbade Communists to demonstrate.

Troops remained quartered in their barracks in the principal Spanish cities, and in Madrid shock police were reinforced by regular army soldiers. Extremists fired on a bus, but no one was injured. Police dispersed Communists starting a street demonstration and arrested several of them.

Elsewhere in the world labor likewise observed May Day quietly.

Tokyo.—Three thousand police escorted 6,000 marchers as Conservatives and Radicals, demonstrating separately, held two uneventful processions. There were similar celebrations in other Japanese cities.

Buenos Aires.—The day was observed throughout South America with festivals of labor syndicates in the larger cities. At Lima, Peru, banks, commercial houses and schools were open as usual, with only tramcars stopped.

Mexico City.—More than 50,000 men and women workers participated in parades, a hot sun failing to curtail the enthusiasm of demonstrators, who maintained, nevertheless, perfect order.

"A great time has begun again for Germany—great tasks which are given only to a few generations," he said.

"Much has been achieved in the last three years. Before there were 6,500,000 jobless. Today there are less than 2,250,000. Think of conditions in other, much larger nations with plenty of money and raw materials with fewer people to the square mile—they have not succeeded in doing it!

"May other nations understand," Hitler said, "that the Germany of today is not the Germany of yesterday. Therefore, fellow citizens, I ask you to bind faster the band of the community. Do not forget that you are members of one people as ordained by God."

Harold Smith Retained As Chamber President

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Front Royal, Va., May 1.—Harold W. Smith was reelected president of the chamber of commerce at its annual dinner meeting last night. Trial Justice Walter G. Olmstead was named again as vice president. The directors elected were L. S. Rohr, H. H. Bowman, P. M. Shirey, Mark B. Turner, Gen. Beverley F Browne, Edw. T. Whitworth and Oscar Ettmuller. Sixty persons attended the meeting, which was addressed by Allen J. Saville, of Richmond.

Secretary L. B. Dutrow announced that an offer of 60 acres of land for a recreational park for Front Royal has been made by a donor who desires his name to be withheld. The land is about 2 miles north of town, fronts on the Shenandoah River, and affords excellent facilities for swimming. It is adequate for a nine-hole golf course. It is expected that the gift will be accepted and developed as a recreational center.

U. of V. Hospital Will Graduate 29 in Nursing

Exercises Will Be Held May 9; Dr. Newcomb to Issue Diplomas.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., May 1.—Twenty-nine students will receive diplomas from the nursing school of the University of Virginia Hospital at exercises in Madison Hall May 9. In addition, 10 will receive diplomas from the Mary Washington Hospital of Fredericksburg, and 11 will receive diplomas from the Sheltering Arms Hospital of Richmond.

Those in the last two categories are transfers from these hospitals to the University Hospital, but receive their diplomas from the hospitals which they originally entered. There are also four one-year affiliates from the Blue Ridge Sanatorium, near here, and four from Catawba Sanatorium who will receive certificates for graduate work at the University Hospital.

The exercises will be opened by an invocation by the Rev. William H. Laird, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, and will be followed by the presentation of graduates by Dean J. Carroll Flippin. Dr. John Lloyd Newcomb, president of the university, will award the diplomas. Pins will be presented to the University Hospital alumnae by Dr. John Henry Neff, professor of urology. Dr. Frank A. Geldard, professor of psychology, will make the address to the graduates.

After the graduation exercises, there will be a tea in McKim Hall for the graduates and their friends. At 9 o'clock there will be a dance in Madison Hall, which will be opened by the Virginia reel, in which, according to tradition, the members of the staff of the hospital will be the partners of the graduates.

Diploma Candidates.

Those who will receive diplomas are Alice Allen, Charlottesville; Josephine Ashens, Norfolk; Lucile Brookins, Orange; Ellen Carter, Halifax; Virginia Cox, Lynchburg; Virginia Drumheller, Schuyler; Carroll Feagans, Culpeper; Dorothy Fitzgerald, Schoolfield; Helen Funk, Greensboro, N. C.; Annie Grinstead, Crozet; Shirley Nash, Salem; Mary Hawthorne, Kenbridge; Lois Hughes, Lynchburg; Elizabeth Irvine, Fishersville.

Phyllis Koogler, Bridgewater; Lois Leonard, Schoolfield; Virginia McGuire, Farmville; Margaret Massie, Roseland; Mildred Neal, Emporia; Lois Nichols, Lynchburg; Jeannette Norvell, Schuyler; Marie Osterman, Laurel, Miss.; Sherrard Parrish, Troy; Lucile Patterson, Narrows; Isadore Poe, Greenville, S. C.; Annie Mae Saunders, Petersburg; Alma Lee Spiers, Prestonat; Vera Williams, Snowden; Mildred Rea, Greenwood.

Those who will receive diplomas from Mary Washington Hospital, Fredericksburg, are Mae Allsworth, Deltaville; Laura Broaddus, Rapphannock Academy; Frances Harlan, Charlottesville; Phyllis Leary, Fredericksburg; Edna Owens, Fredericksburg; Margaret Reynolds, Fredericksburg; Margaret Sherwood, Green Springs; Lucile Thompson, Tatum; Mary Walker, Gordonsville; Frances Willis, Greenfield.

Those who will receive diplomas from Sheltering Arms Hospital, Richmond, are Louise Bynum, Marysville, N. C.; Ellen Daughtr, Kinston, N. C.; Wrau Grant, Hawthorne, Fla.; Dorothy Lassiter, Conway, N. C.; Gladys Mullens, Lincolnton, N. C.; Isabella McKay, Round Hill; Ina Quesenberry, Oakville, W. Va.; Virs Raynor, Benson, N. C.; Frances Trice, Howardsville; Audrey Tulloh, Mineral; Iola Turner, Dunn, N. C.

One-year affiliates from the Blue Ridge Sanatorium are Alice Estell, Richmond, Ind.; Jennie Bersch, Dillwyn; Eoline Lewis, Lively; Gladys Slonaker, Richmond, Ind.

One-year affiliates from Catawba Sanatorium are Laura Haynie, Tibitha; Pauline Heath, Winston-Salem, N. C.; Bernice Lovell, Narrows; Creolya Snodgrass, Glade Spring.

Tax Rate Kept At $1 Per $100 In Hagerstown

City's Financial Condition Excellent; Power Plant Profit Again Looms.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., May 1.—Hagerstown's tax rate will remain at $1 on the $100 for another year, city officials indicated today in announcing that the city's financial condition was in splendid shape.

It was also indicated that the municipal electric light plant again will show a profit, which every year has enabled the mayor and council to keep the tax rate at a minimum. The average annual net profit of the plant for the last three years has been approximately $130,000.

The bill signed yesterday by Gov. Nice also opened the way for the city to increase its annual appropriation to the Washington County Hospital to as much as $7,500. Before the bill became a law, the city's annual hospital appropriation had been limited to $1,000. The increasing number of free cases coming from the city necessitated the hospital board of trustees to request the mayor and council for a larger appropriation and when it was found the city did not have the authority to exceed $1,000, the bill increasing it to $7,500 was introduced.

The city also is planning shortly to retire a number of bonds before their maturity with surplus funds. A bill signed yesterday by the Governor gives the mayor and council the authority to retire bonds before their maturity date. Mayor I. M. Wertz felt that considerable savings could be effected because the city, paying 4 per cent interest on its bonds, is receiving less than 2 per cent interest on deposits of surplus funds.

Russia Parades Her War Might As Peace Club

Defense Chief Is Pacific While Armed Forces Stage Carnival.

By the Associated Press.

Moscow, May 1.—Soviet Russia, professing peace, paraded her military might today in May Day exercises.

Wave upon wave of gray-clad warriors passed before Joseph Stalin in Red Square and nearly 700 military planes zoomed overhead in the most imposing display Russia ever has given of her aerial power.

"War danger has obliged us to increase the strength of our frontiers," Klement Voroshiloff, commissar for defense, told the marching men. "The principal desire of Soviet Russia is peace for the whole world."

The mammoth demonstration went on for hours, with Red Square echoing to the roar of planes, the tramp of feet and the rumble of tanks over the stone paving.

Dictator Much Pleased.

Stalin, dictator of the nation, smiled and waved his approval from a reviewing stand on Lenin's tomb.

The troops, standing at attention before the parade, heard Voroshiloff assert, "Our country is doing everything possible to prevent war and our strong army appears to be the best argument to this end. If war is imposed upon us, the enemy will find there is a difference between the Czar's army and our Red army."

Again after the demonstration, Voroshiloff addressed the throng, asserting that danger of war "hangs like a heavy cloud over humanity."

"If war is imposed upon us," he said, "the enemy will get acquainted with our Red army. They must reproach themselves if that acquaintance is distasteful."

Soviet citizens, waving red banners, packed every inch of the great square not occupied by the marchers and the reviewing stands.

Bullitt Watches Display.

The somber walls of the Kremlin formed the background, with Ambassador William C. Bullitt and the United States Embassy staff viewing the parade from the diplomatic stand, at one side of the mausoleum.

The air parade included all types of airplane, from giant bombers to swift pursuit ships, with emphasis placed on the U. S. S. R.'s preparedness in the air. Fast bimotored bombers with retractable landing gear flew low over the heads of spectators at impressive speed.

Some three dozen stubby pursuit ships, also apparently capable of great speed, climbed and circled over the square in an even more spectacular performance.

Foreign observers counted approximately 400 biplane fighting machines and 135 heavy bombers.

Most of the tanks, estimated to number 300, in the parade were of a heavy type mounting big guns. In addition, there were hundreds of small armored motor cars.

Artillery Looks Imposing.

Mechanized artillery machine-gun detachments turned out an impressive show of force, while the cavalry and infantry paraded for an hour.

Communist workers, making up the volunteer reserve force, followed the troops through the square, with rifles slung to their backs.

Moscow newspapers, meanwhile, made editorial criticism of the German Nazis, accusing them of aggression against the Soviet Union.

The defense commissariat organ, Red Star, asserted Germany has 800,000 men under arms.

Vienna Stirred As Nazis Unfurl Flag on Church

May Day Crowds Throng Before Historic Edifice Topped by Swastika.

By the Associated Press.

Vienna, May 1.—A full and free May Day entertainment for the unemployed came to an unexpected climax today with steeple-climbing Nazis unfurling a 30-foot Hitlerite swastika flag from the highest point of historic Votive Church.

Thousands of pedestrians, including about 1,000 unemployed, gazed skyward for three hours as firemen and steeplejacks, hampered by falling snow, wrestled with the task of removing the banner.

The Nazi flag demonstration was triply annoying to the government because the Votive Church is in the center of Vienna, because it is a Catholic church and because it was erected in memory of the Hapsburg emperors' escapes from political assassination.

Goulash Supply Exhausted.

A Socialist attempt to sabotage the government's free goulash gesture failed in the face of widespread hunger.

The Socialists circulated a slogan, "Rather die than eat (Chancellor Kurt) Schuschnigg's goulash."

Hundreds of destitute widows and orphans, who waited many hours in the snow and rain for a portion of goulash, however, returned to their shelters with empty stomachs after the supply was exhausted by an endless breadline.

600 Granted Amnesty.

The government observed the day by granting amnesties to 600 prisoners, held for minor political offenses, but police arrested 500 more persons in connection with a bombing.

The bomb exploded at midnight last night, touched off apparently by radicals inaugurating anti-government demonstrations, but no serious disorders developed.

Dr. Johann Thanhofer, high official of the chancellery, lost his legs in the blast, but police said they believed he was an accidental victim as he walked by the police station before which the bomb exploded. A policeman and two girls also were injured.

Army Reserves Enter Training At Fort Meade

53 D. C. Officers Among 500 Assigned to Duty With CCC.

Fort George G. Meade, Md., took on a war-time complexion yesterday when more than 500 officers of the Reserve Corps of the Army, including a long list of Washingtonians, reported for active duty with the Civilian Conservation Corps.

All of the officers were drawn from the Third Corps Area, including Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia. Fifty-three of them were from the District, which now has approximately 200 with the CCC. While at Fort Meade the officers will be put through "refresher" courses in administration, supply, mess arrangement and camp command.

War Department officials said yesterday that a total of 1,276 new camps would be built to care for the 250,000 new men who will come into the Civilian Conservation Corps and the 100,000 replacements expected during June, July and August. It is expected that a total of 600,000 men will be members of the CCC by August 31. At the present time the authorized strength is 353,000 men. These are distributed in 1,640 camps.

10,000 Called to Camps.

About 3,000 additional reserve officers are being called to duty this month throughout the country. This will bring the total of reserve officers with the corps to nearly 10,000.

Officials refused to state yesterday whether any of the new camps would be established in the District. At the present time the 1360th company, under Capt. Joseph T. Moore, is stationed at Twenty-eighth and M streets northeast. The 288th company, under Capt. Harry Myers, is at Benning, D. C. The 1391st company is at the head of the Memorial Bridge, Rosslyn, while the 1371st company is located at Alexandria. These units are engaged in work on the George Washington Memorial highway, battlefield preservation work and general activities.

Men desiring to enlist in the enlarged CCC must be certified to be on the relief rolls by Department of Labor officials. Examination and selection then is conducted by the War Department. The Army recruiting office is located at 1800 C street northwest.

Local Personnel.

The following named local reserve officers are ordered to active duty with the CCC for six months:

Captains—Guy Taylor Bolton, Floyd Henry Harper, Edward Anthony Kane, William Henry Lossman, Claude Hamilton Marshall, Edward Everett Perkins, Joseph Edward Peterson, Orville Fleming Sandefur, Arthur Skarry, and Walter West Woodruff, first lieutenants—Robert Walton Andrews, William Supplee Brady, George Lester Branner, Lawrence Scott Carson, jr., Donald George Dow, F. Leslie Ebersole, jr., John Wilson Haines, Paul Trapsier Hayne, jr., Lester Leonard Kornhauser, Earl Dewey Mallison, Frederick Harndon Marshall, Wilmer Louis Myers, Edwin Carl Pape, Merrill Fulton Phillips, William Edward Roberts, David Abraham Rosenfeld, George Pickett Shelhorse, Meyer Taske, George Carl Updegraff, and John Lindsey Wilkes; second lieutenants—Frank James Bane, Howard Matthew Biggs, Garrett O'Neil Billmire, Theodore Bishoff, Thomas Brashears, jr., James Todd Brooks, William Arthur Connolly, jr., Howard Fletcher, jr., Albert Broder Foltz, John Calvin Grille, Frazer Frost Hilder, Robert William Lockridge, Walter Louis McCaddon, John Adger McCrary, jr., Salvatore Giuseppe Militana, Yorke Custis Mills, Paul Harnish Myers, Thomas Edward Naughten, John Kerfoot Souther, Paul Gorman Travers, Henry Hall Waller, jr., Lewis Hall Ward, and William Howard Warren.

Alabama Ready to Act On 'Scottsboro' Retrials

Scottsboro, Ala., May 1 (AP).—Sheriff M. C. Thomas said today Mrs. Victoria Price, of Huntsville, complainant in the "Scottsboro Case," had arrived to swear to new warrants against the nine Negro defendants in the case.

This presaged the first step by the State to reindict the nine Negroes preparatory to retrials. The original indictments, the United States Supreme Court ruled, April 1, should have been quashed because of "systematic exclusion" of Negroes from the jury rolls of Jackson County.

Texas Legislature Orders Repeal Vote

Austin, Tex., May 1 (AP).—The Texas Legislature voted overwhelmingly today to submit repeal of State-wide prohibition to popular action. The Senate vote was 29 to 1, while the House approved it 116 to 19.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest, it just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, Amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Strikers Are Fools, Mencken Asserts

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 1.—The picketing of the American Mercury office by seven striking employes was enlivened today by an exchange of repartee between H. L. Mencken, former editor, and Edith Lustgarten, discharged as editor's secretary.

Miss Lustgarten, whose dismissal engendered the strike, asked Mencken if he ever had found her inefficient.

"Did I fire you?" countered Mencken. He assured the girls, however, that he regarded them as "a lot of damn fools."

Miss Lustgarten returned his damn, whereupon the former boss put a handkerchief to his eyes and pretended to weep.

As he walked away, he confided to reporters that he thought the office girls were foolish to strike. They are too small in number, he said, and besides, office jobs on a magazine are too easy to fill.

Mail Pilot Killed In Colorado Crash

Earhart's Former Teacher Dies Trying to Land.

By the Associated Press.

Walsenburg, Colo., May 1.—James G. Montijo, veteran pilot who was one of Amelia Earhart's first instructors, was killed today when a Pubelo to El Paso mail and passenger plane he was flying alone crashed in attempting to make a forced landing near here.

Montijo was flying the first southbound trip of a revised schedule of the Varney Air Lines.

Apparently experiencing motor trouble the pilot attempted a landing at Rattlesnake Buttes, 25 miles east of here. A school teacher and 12 pupils saw the crash.

Rita Rubinstein Gives Recital Tomorrow Night

Sylvia Kaplowitz will present Rita Rubenstein in a piano recital tomorrow night in the Homer L. Kitt Studios. John Laurence, a vocal student of Eleana Paige, will assist.

Miss Rubinstein will play Beethoven's "Sonata Pathetique," Chopin's "Revolutionary," Etude in C sharp minor, Fantaisie-Impromptu; Liszt's "Rhapsodie Hongroise" No. 2 and "Liebestraum" No. 3, and the Grieg concerto with Mrs. Kaplowitz at the second piano.

Mr. Laurence will sing "The Soul's Departure" (Taylor), "In the Silence of Night" (Rakhmaninov), "Omnipotence" (Schubert) and "Still wie die Nacht" (Bohm).

Contractors to Discuss Part in Relief Work

Plans for the general contracting business' handling of that industry's part in the expenditure of the $4,880,000,000 work relief program will occupy the attention of the governing and advisory boards of the Associated Contractors of America, which will meet here today and tomorrow at the Willard Hotel.

Representative contractors from building, highway, heavy construction and railroad divisions of the industry will participate. Discussion will center upon the method of facilitating contracts in the various construction fields included in the ERA set-up.

Nick F. Helmers, St. Paul, Minn., president of the association, will preside.

Executive of Carnegie Tests New Air Device

In a second balloon flight at St. Louis Sunday C. H. Gish, assistant director of the Carnegie Institution's department of terrestrial magnetism, successfully tested apparatus for measuring the electrical conductivity of the upper stratosphere, it was announced yesterday.

The balloon, containing Capts. Anderson and Williams, rose to 26,000 feet. The apparatus showed that at that height the conductivity of the air for positive electricity was 22 times greater than at the surface. Conductivity for negative electricity was 25 per cent greater than for positive.

Soil Tillers Embark For Alaska New Deal

San Francisco, May 1 (AP).—Colonists from unproductive lands in Minnesota boarded the transport St. Mihiel here today to sail for a promised land in interior Alaska.

Eagerness for what might lay ahead was written on the faces of young and old alike as this strange army of 274 soil tillers gathered at the pier. Since their arrival Monday from St. Paul they had been feted by the city and by civic clubs. They were the first group of colonists to head northward in the Government-sponsored project.

Oklahoma Jury Acquits Miner of 'Torturing'

Vinita, Okla., May 1 (AP).—Charles Penny, 31, a miner, was acquitted today by a jury of the "torture" robbery of two farmers near Picher last September.

Penny, supported by two witnesses, presented an alibi.

He had been named by three members of the Bill Cleveland family as one of the three men who came to their home and burned Cleveland's feet, then went to the home of Earl Seward, 65-year-old neighbor, and tortured and robbed him.

Seward said the trio burned his feet with hot irons, shot him through the hands and poured whisky on his wounds when he begged for water. He was unable to identify Penny.

Capital to Be Host to 1,500 Physicians

More than 1,500 physicians, specialists in the treatment of nervous and mental diseases from the United States and Canada, will come to Washington May 13-17 for the ninety-first annual meeting of the American Psychiatric Association, the oldest national medical society in the country.

During the five-day period of the meeting more than 100 scientific papers will be read, giving the latest reports of investigation and experimentation in the field of psychiatry.

BUYS THE

Gas Refrigerator-

ELECTROLUX

The Only REFRIGERATOR with NO MOVING PARTS • EVERLASTING SILENCE

Last year hundreds of people bought Electrolux Gas Refrigerators on these liberal terms. Here it is, again, the same easy-payment offer on the refrigerator that is fast becoming America's choice because of its SILENCE, NO MOVING PARTS, LONG LIFE and UNUSUAL ECONOMY.

Always ahead in performance, Electrolux this year has stepped ahead in beauty! Juries of women have called it "The Best Looking Refrigerator of Them All"—another powerful reason why many people who already have automatic refrigerators are saying, "my next refrigerator will be an Electrolux."

A tiny gas flame takes the place of all machinery in Electrolux, circulating the refrigerant which provides the finest protection you can give the food you and your family eats.

Why delay buying longer? No matter how you buy it Electrolux PAYS FOR ITSELF with its many savings, but now only 13c a day is needed to buy one. Visit our showrooms!

EVERY CONVENIENCE THAT A WOMAN CAN ASK

FAST FREEZING

Only a touch is needed whenever you wish to speed up the action of Electrolux. It is just as easily defrosted by turning the control to the proper position. It will defrost itself, then automatically resume normal operation.

TWO-WAY DOOR LATCH

Arriving at the refrigerator with both hands full presents no problem at all with the new Electrolux. Just push on arm lightly against the door handle or lift the latch. It releases either way.

TRIGGER TRAY RELEASE

No pounding or prying are needed to loosen ice cube trays, in Electrolux. Simply lift the handy trigger and the most solidly frozen tray releases instantly without effort.

TILTING SHELF

This new Electrolux feature is the simplest, quickest answer to the need for room for tall bottles. A section of shelf is hinged—pivots up to permit bottles to slip into place, then helps to protect them against breakage.

House Inquiry Finds D. C. Crime Rate 'Disgracefully High'

Comparison With Other Cities Shows Capital Is 'Abnormal'

Murderers, Thieves and Gamblers Incessantly at Work Here, Report Says, With Law Enforcement Inefficient.

Herewith are the essential comment and recommendations of the sub-committee on crime of the House District Committee on the three most important phases of its inquiry, namely, crime conditions in Washington, the police department and the office of the United States attorney for the District. Other phases of the committee's report are dealt with elsewhere in summarized form.

CRIME CONDITIONS IN WASHINGTON ARE ABNORMAL.

1. Erroneous impression prevalent.—Up to the time of this sub-committee's investigation, there was a widespread impression among officials, as well as citizens, that Washington's crime record was low and that the efficiency of law enforcement in the District of Columbia was high.

This appears to have been due to two primary causes; first, the District Commissioners, the major and superintendent of police, the United States District attorney and others have repeatedly made public statements tending to discount the seriousness of crime conditions; and, second, the absence of coordinated records has made it impossible for the public accurately to gauge the extent of crime or the efficiency of law enforcement.

2. Crime rate high.—This investigation has established, on the basis of fact, that Washington has a disgracefully high crime rate and that law enforcement here is neither aggressive nor efficient.

3. City must face facts.—No improvement can be affected until the people of Washington become convinced of the unpleasant truth, and, until the city, facing the facts of the situation, determines to wage unceasing warfare against the forces of vice and crime.

Nothing could better suit the purposes of the lawless elements of the community than the present apathy of officials and citizens toward the crime problem.

Murderers, thieves, gamblers, and other law violators work incessantly 24 hours a day and 365 days a year. For them there are no seasons. They are cruel and relentless in their depredations.

4. Comparisons with other cities.—There are, in the United States, eight cities of approximately the same size as Washington. The following tabulation of crime rates, based on the number of crimes for each 100,000 inhabitants, proves that Washington's crime rate is abnormal.

In comparison with these other cities, Washington stands second in murder, first in robbery, second in burglary (housebreaking), first in grand larceny, and second in auto theft.

In proportion to population, Washington has two and one-half times as many murders as New York, and 40 per cent more murders than Chicago.

The following figures, which cover the first nine months of 1934, are taken from the Uniform Crime Reports of the United States Department of Justice (Vol. 5, Nos. 1, 2 and 3).

Table 1.—Based on the number of crimes per 100,000 of population, the 9-city comparison is as follows.

City	Pop.	Murder	Robbery	Burglary	Grand larceny	Auto theft
Pittsburgh	669,117	2.5	89.8	113.3	58.2	278.5
San Francisco	634,394	2.3	32.7	289.4	(1)	404.0
Milwaukee	578,249	.4	9.5	110.6	50.7	104.5
Buffalo	578,076	2.2	34.3	114.0	34.3	188.9
Washington	486,869	10.3	99.7	393.2	168.8	480.8
Minneapolis	464,356	4.1	97.3	305.6	29.6	490.4
New Orleans	458,762	10.1	15.5	139.1	(1)	157.8
Cincinnati	451,160	12.9	49.6	185.0	92.3	201.9
Newark	442,337	3.6	95.0	691.5	(1)	417.1

(1) No report available.

5. Statistics prove conditions.—The most impressive proof that Washington is tolerating an excessive amount of crime, gambling, and vice is to be found in the above Table I, and in the other summaries of official statistics, together with pertinent comparisons, in Tables 2 and 3.

6. Transitory results inadequate.—During the period of an investigation or a special "drive" by officials, there might be a temporary lull in the frequency of lawlessness. That is proven by the decrease in crime which has occurred during this investigation (see Table 3, this section). Such transitory results, however, are scarcely worth while.

The big objective—and the only worthy objective—is a substantial and definite reduction in crime that can be maintained permanently. This objective can be achieved only by an uncompromising, unrelenting, and continuing offensive on criminals and crime causes.

7. Rise and fall of crime.—During the 21 months ended April 1, 1935, there was 15,827 felonies committed in the District of Columbia, not counting those that were never officially recorded.

The record of felonies for those 21 months, classified as to the several offenses, is shown in the following tabulation:

Table 2. Felonies recorded in the District of Columbia from July 1, 1933, to April 1, 1935:

Felonies recorded	Fiscal year 1934	Last 6 months 1934	First 3 months 1935	Totals for 21 months
Persons murdered	81	28	13	122
Persons killed, manslaughter by negligence	36	22	9	67
Persons assaulted, with dangerous weapons, with intent to kill, etc.	239	125	52	416
Persons robbed, storekeepers, bank clerks, pay roll messengers, etc.	970	550	228	1,748
Cars stolen	2,764	1,414	612	4,700
Homes and other places entered by Automobiles stolen, for criminal and other purposes	3,392	1,941	700	6,033
Grand larceny, thefts (except autos) $50 and over in value	1,303	814	331	2,448
Rape, mayhem, forgery, extortion, and other felonies	880	87	26	293
Total	8,875	4,981	1,971	15,827

8. Analysis.—An analysis of the figures in table 2 proves two important things: (a) That during the last 6 months of 1934, crime in Washington was increasing at the alarming rate of 91 felonies per month. A total of 546 more felonies were recorded for that 6-month period than were averaged by the two 6-month periods immediately preceding; (b) that during the first 3 months of 1935 (after this investigation had been announced and put into effect), crime suddenly decreased at the rate of 173 felonies per month. During those 3 months, 338 fewer felonies were committed here than were averaged by the six 6-month periods in the year and a half previous to this investigation.

The following analysis, table 3, graphically shows the rise and fall of crime in Washington for the 21 months ended April 1, 1935:

Table 3.—Felonies, 21 Months Ending April 1, 1935.

Period	Total	Mthly. aver.
Fiscal year 1934 (July 1, 1933, to June 30, 1934)	8,875	739
Last 6 months 1934 (July 1 to December 31)	4,981	*830
First 3 months 1935 (January to April 1)	1,971	†657

*An increase of 91 felonies per month. An increase of 546 felonies for the 6-month period.

†A decrease of 173 felonies per month. A decrease of 519 felonies for the 3-month period.

Who Commits the Felonies?

1. Race, Sex, and Age.—A breakdown of arrests into classifications showing the race, sex, and age of persons arrested and charged with felonies committed in Washington in 1934 shows that of the 4,919 persons arrested 64.9 per cent were colored and 35.1 per cent were white.

It is worthy of note that only 4.7 per cent of those arrested for felonies were women, and 95.3 per cent were men.

Most of those arrested were between 21 years of age. Arrests in this group accounted for 70.6 per cent, while 23 per cent were between 17 and 21 years of age. The balance of 6.4 per cent were juveniles under 17 years of age.

Law Enforcement Is Lax.

1. Chances of punishment slight. All who have studied the problem of crime are agreed that crime diminishes as apprehension and punishment become more certain and speedy. An analysis of the felonies recorded in Washington during the fiscal year 1934, together with the action of the police, the grand jury, the United States district attorney's office, the courts and the parole board, shows that those who commit felonies have approximately a 2-to-1 chance that no one will be arrested. The chances are 6 to 1 that no one will be indicted, 10 to 1 that no one will be convicted and 15 to 1 that no jail sentence will be served. In the event that a felon is sent to jail, the chances are 2½ to 1 that he will be released on parole. (See summary below.)

During the fiscal year of 1934, the courts in Washington sentenced 586 persons to jail for felonies, while, during the calendar year of 1934, there were 225 persons released from jail by the Parole Board.

If there is any doubt as to the accuracy of the odds, as stated above, one need only to analyze the figures in the following summary to arrive at exactly the same conclusions:

Summary.

Felonies and disposition of felony cases, fiscal year 1934:

Felonies	8,875
Unsolved	2,499
Persons arrested	4,919
Indicted	1,454
Not indicted	3,465
Plead guilty	755
Tried and convicted	168
Tried and acquitted	49
Not prosecuted (at close of fiscal year)	484
Sentenced	586
Placed on probation	335
Paroled (during the calendar year 1934)	225

GAMBLING, VICE AND MINOR OFFENSES.

1. Gambling.—The illicit activity of gambling in the District of Columbia has been given such wide and devastating publicity by the five Washington newspapers that the community has been aroused to demand the abolition of this menace to the peace and good order of the city. Public indignation over gambling and its associated lawlessness in Washington has been given added impetus because of a number of murders committed here during the past year which, it is said, were caused by feuds among gambling racketeers.

The authorities have complained that present laws are inadequate to enable them to cope with the problem. However true this may be, it is a fact that the so-called "big shot" gamblers have, to a large extent, either left Washington or curtailed their activities since an irate public demand caused authorities to take the most aggressive action possible under existing law.

The sub-committee is convinced that the people of Washington are anxious to have enacted into law, H. R. 3460.

In view of the wish of the people of Washington that the gambling laws be strengthened, it is urged that the Committee on the District of Columbia hold hearings at the earliest possible date to provide an opportunity for any who oppose the passage of this legislation to come forward and state their objections.

2. Vice.—As is true in the case of gambling, conditions of commercialized vice in the District of Columbia have reached a deplorable and disgraceful state. The penalties provided under existing law for the offense of pandering, keeping a disorderly house, soliciting prostitution, and similar offenses, are unquestionably inadequate to effectively discourage the prevalence of this type of lawlessness.

On January 9, 1935, the Hon. Mary T. Norton introduced a bill (H. R. 3466) to prevent enticement for lewd purposes in the District of Columbia, which amends the existing law to the extent of increasing the penalty and making provision for added possible penalty for repeat offenses.

The sub-committee is in complete accord with respect to increased penalties for the offense of enticement for lewd purposes, but suggests that the law should be made sufficiently broad in scope to include increased penalties for any and all persons who may be in any way profiting from or connected with the practice or encouragement of commercialized vice.

It is, therefore, recommended that H. R. 3466 be redrafted so as to provide (1) increased penalties not only for those who might be found guilty of soliciting and/or engaging in prostitution, but also for any and all persons guilty of in any way profiting from or being connected with the offense, and (2) the pending resolution should carry a clause specifically stating that the conduct of prosecutions for this offense should be by the Corporation Counsel in the name of the District of Columbia, as at present.

3. Minor offenses.—The primary purpose of the sub-committee has been to find a means of checking the alarming growth of major crime and to provide a means of reducing gambling and vice. As a consequence, the first three subdivisions of crime, namely, felonies, gambling and vice, have been given the sub-committee's concentrated attention. There are, however, additional phases of the crime problem which need continued study and analysis. Of chief importance among these are the types of cases handled in the so-called "lower courts" in the District of Columbia. These include misdemeanors, juvenile cases, violations of the municipal regulations, and violations of traffic regulations.

During the fiscal year of 1934, 57,958 such violations of the law were committed in the District of Columbia. Of that total, 25,602 were traffic cases, and 29,221 were so-called "D. C. cases." This latter figure included 2,261 juvenile offenses. The record of minor criminal cases for the fiscal year of 1934 showed an increase of 7,528 over the fiscal year of 1933.

As previously stated, the sub-committee did not attempt an exhaustive study of the problems presented by the unwieldy total of almost 60,000 minor law violations in a single year. However, many of the recommendations embodied in this report, if adopted, will assist in the enforcement of minor as well as major laws, thus affording a measure of relief in this field. The whole matter of crime control is a problem for constant study and continuing supervision. It is in full realization of that fundamental fact that the sub-committee recommends the creation of a crime commission as set forth in Section 6 of this report.

Called Incompetent by Sub-Committee

U. S. ATTORNEY LESLIE C. GARNETT.

THE METROPOLITAN POLICE DEPARTMENT.

1. Essentials of good police work lacking.—The analysis of crime conditions in the District of Columbia, explanations of which are set forth in Section 2 of this report, conclusively indicates that the Metropolitan Police Department is not being satisfactorily administered. There are weaknesses in the administration and supervision of the department, there is a lack of morale and esprit de corps, lack of energy and drive, and the rank and file of the force has become perfunctory and supine.

The sub-committee was definitely impressed, and it might be added adversely, by the defensive attitude of almost every police official who appeared as a witness. There was an amazing absence of any effort to bring to the attention of the sub-committee instances or records of achievements in which it would be natural for the department to express normal pride.

This leads to the inevitable suspicion that no such records exist. In any event, it indicates an absence of fighting spirit and good morale.

2. Initiative and energy needed. Before substantial progress can be hoped for in the battle against crime, those charged with the protection of the community must realize and keep constantly in mind that their criminal enemies are neither supine nor perfunctory. In order to subdue criminals, it is necessary that the police at least match the lawbreakers in intelligence and aggressiveness.

The need for more men has been given by the department as a principal cause for weakness in law enforcement. Another excuse advanced is the alleged inadequacy of existing law. The people of Washington have convincingly demonstrated their desire that the police be given more men, better equipment, and more stringent laws. There is beyond any question of doubt, ample proof that more men are needed, additional and more modern equipment is needed, and that certain laws should be made more stringent. It is equally evident that increased efficiency is needed, perhaps more urgently than anything else.

3. More men and new laws recommended.—The sub-committee, realizing the immediate need for strengthening the department, submitted to the full Committee on the District of Columbia a partial and preliminary report recommending that sufficient appropriations be sought to enable the Commissioners to add 141 officers and men to the Metropolitan Police Department.

Legislation designed to make apprehension and punishment of criminals more definitely certain and speedy is recommended elsewhere in this report.

4. Better police force as important as larger police force.—At the same time, it is clearly recognized that merely strengthening the police department, and enacting new laws, will not remedy the city's crime situation. It is, of course, impossible to legislate against inefficient and incompetent officials. It is, however, always possible to remove such officials.

5. Present high command exhausted.—Purely in the interest of affording the people of Washington the best possible police protection, it is nothing more than good judgment to take the administration of the police department out of the hands of officials who have given to the city the best years of their lives and who, because of advancing age, are no longer able to provide the character of energetic leadership that must be had if the department is to be operated at its maximum efficiency.

The work of a good police officer is arduous and exhausting. Those who have risen through the ranks by virtue of their devotion to service and because of their ability to assume increasing responsibilities are the ones who have probably exerted the greatest amount of physical and mental energy. These officers have given to their tasks not only the best years of their lives, but their service to the community has exhausted their physical and mental resources.

It is not only fair and just to these officers that they be retired, but from the standpoint of good common sense and self-protection, the District of Columbia should place them on the retired list and replace them with younger and more vigorous men.

6. Immediate retirement of high ranking officers.—Translating the foregoing into definite opinion, the sub-committee suggests that the Commissioners of the District of Columbia immediately retire from active service at least all officers, above the rank of captain, who have reached the age of 60 years, and who, in accordance with the existing law, as found in Title 20, Section 584, page 238, of the Code of the District of Columbia, compete to March 4, 1929, may be retired in the discretion of the Commissioners.

The sub-committee feels that in connection with the appointment of a successor to the major and superintendent that careful and serious consideration should be given to the advisability of selecting a competent and qualified person who is not now a member of the police department. The sub-committee is of the opinion that the force at the present time is seriously suffering not only from a lack of morale, but from a breakdown of discipline, predicated upon a widespread lack of respect for superior officers.

The appointment of a person of proper ability, who is now connected with the department, might bring to the administration of the force an impartial viewpoint, modern and scientific methods, and a reestablishment of discipline and morale.

7. Headley censured on "gentlemen's agreement" and laxity.—While Inspector Albert J. Headley comes within the category of police officials over 60 years of age, and by virtue of that fact subject to retirement, at the discretion of the Commissioners, the sub-committee is impelled to comment specifically on the service of Inspector Headley as revealed by his testimony, the testimony of others, and additional information in its possession.

The sub-committee recognizes the fact that under our present form of government, the practice of political indorsements is generally accepted. It does not comment upon the propriety or impropriety of this practice. However, it does find that the conduct and attitude of Inspector Headley in his quest for promotion, was, to say the least, prejudicial to the best interests of the department.

Furthermore, his attitude toward his subordinates, his neglect of duty as District inspector, as indicated by his failure to take action in connection with the deplorable conditions in Precinct No. 5, and his evasiveness and lack of candor when appearing as a witness before the sub-committee, all contribute to the conclusion that his services have been unsatisfactory and conducive to a lack of efficiency and harmony.

It is the hope of the sub-committee that its censure of Inspector Headley may be construed by all members of the force now and in time to come as a condemnation of so-called "gentlemen's agreements" of the type in which Inspector Headley participated, and which was revealed during the hearing.

8. Abolition of sinecure urged.—The position to which Inspector Headley aspired and which he sought to attain through the "gentlemen's agreement," was created by the insertion in an appropriation bill for the purpose of increasing by $500 the annual salary of a former inspector. This position was not created at the request of the major and superintendent of police (S. T. p. 1006).

The sub-committee fails to find any extra service rendered the city or any reason at all for the salary increase, and therefore recommends that this position be forthwith abolished.

9. Political indorsement.—Subscribing to the theory that the local police department should be absolutely free from politics, and with the view of eliminating the practice of political indorsements, which has a tendency to undermine the merit system, the sub-committee strongly suggests that the Commissioners of the District of Columbia formulate, adopt, and insert in the police regulations, a rule to the effect that it shall be the duty of the major and superintendent of police, when a political indorsement is received for any member of the force, to make the fact and the substance of such indorsement public.

10. Police Trial Board.—The Police Trial Board, in many respects is much like an Army courtmartial. The problems involved are peculiar to the type of service. The committee does not feel that the average civilian would be adequately equipped, either from the standpoint of background or interest in the service, to serve in a judicial capacity on the Police Trial Board. Furthermore, no good reason suggests itself to the committee why members of the police force should not be tried by their superiors. The elimination of trial by superior officers would undoubtedly have a tendency seriously to interfere with the maintenance of discipline. This committee has given careful study to the records of the cases considered by trial boards composed entirely of police officers, those composed partly of civilians and police officers, and is of the opinion that no change should be made in the present system of having the Police Trial Board composed exclusively of police officials.

11. Intoxication on duty.—Having in mind the potential danger to law-abiding citizens, resulting from the intoxication of a member of the police force when on duty and clothed with the insignia and weapons of authority, the sub-committee is strongly of the opinion that the offense of intoxication on duty should carry with it mandatory dismissal.

13. Civil Service.—If the Police Department is to be retained on a merit basis, it is absolutely essential that civil-service examinations be required both for entrance to and promotion in the Police Department.

15. Traffic Bureau.—There is quite apparently a wide divergence in the views of high-ranking officials of the Police Department as to whether or not the central traffic bureau should be decentralized or maintained on its present basis.

The sub-committee is of the opinion that enforcement of existing traffic regulations in the District of Columbia is not as efficient as it should be. Having approached the subject, however, simply from the viewpoint of the contribution of traffic enforcement to that of general law enforcement in the District of Columbia, and not having made a comprehensive study of the matter in all its aspects, the sub-committee is disinclined to express any definite opinion as to the appropriate remedy.

16. Women's Bureau.—The work being done by the Women's Bureau, under the direction of Acting Capt. Rhoda Milliken, is most gratifying. The bureau should be adequately housed. It is not at the present time. The bureau should be given additional means of transportation and other needed equipment. The sub-committee feels that the value of the work being performed by the Women's Bureau is minimized by the present police administration and that, for this reason, it may not have been accorded the consideration which it deserves. It is, for this reason, that the sub-committee stresses the value to the community of the Women's Bureau and urges a greater appreciation in order that the splendid results available through this bureau may be increased rather than curtailed.

UNITED STATES PARK POLICE.

By section 1, chapter 46, Compiled Statutes, paragraph 1, act of Congress, approved June 8, 1906, the Metropolitan Police district of the District of Columbia is coextensive with the District of Columbia.

By section 3, chapter 46, Compiled Statutes, act of Congress, approved June 11, 1878, the duties and authorities conferred upon the Commissioners for police purposes extend to and include all public squares and places, and the Commissioners are authorized and required to make appropriate rules and regulations in relation thereto.

Without in anywise casting any reflections upon the personnel or efficiency of the United States Park Police, the sub-committee finds that the activity of the United States Park Police in the District of Columbia is substantially identical with that being performed by the Metropolitan Police Department. The sub-committee is unable to find any logical reason for the maintenance of these two separate forces and it recommends that the personnel of the United States Park Police, doing duty within the territorial limitations of the District of Columbia, be merged with and placed under the command of the Metropolitan Police Department, care being taken to preserve the rights of those transferred.

THE OFFICE OF THE UNITED STATES ATTORNEY FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

1. Vigorous prosecution needed. In order to check the growth of crime in the District of Columbia, it is vitally important that all criminal cases be fearlessly, vigorously, and speedily prosecuted. So long as it is possible for criminals of financial means or influence to evade prosecution and delay judgment, crime will continue to increase.

2. Ideal qualifications cited.—The person charged with the grave duties and responsibilities of the United States Attorney for the District of Columbia should be (1) an attorney who possesses a creditable record as a trial lawyer; (2) he should have a broad knowledge and thorough understanding of Federal and District of Columbia laws and procedure; (3) he should possess the vigor and energy to personally prosecute dangerous criminals; (4) he should command the confidence and respect of the bench, the bar, his subordinates, and the citizens of the community; (5) he should, by his official conduct and his personal behavior, personify the dignity and the majesty of the law; (6) he should, by persistent and adamant prosecution of criminals, symbolize the power of the Government to condemn and punish enemies of society; (7) he should possess the executive and administrative ability and the qualifications of leadership to organize a capable, hard-working, and efficient staff that would emulate his own courageous and competent conduct.

3. Garnett should be removed. The immediate replacement of Leslie C. Garnett by a prosecutor possessing the attributes described above would do much to reduce the frequency of crime in Washington as would the adoption at this time of any single remedy.

Removal Urged

Harris & Ewing.

ASSISTANT U. S. ATTORNEY KARL KINDLEBERGER.

Mr. Garnett's testimony before the sub-committee, and the testimony of his assistant, Mr. Karl W. Kindleberger, clearly indicate that the affairs of the office of the United States Attorney for the District of Columbia are being conducted without adequate knowledge of the law, without proper or efficient supervision, and minus an attitude conducive to public confidence and respect.

4. Condemned by citizens.—Citizens and representatives of organized groups, who testified before the subcommittee, either openly criticized Mr. Garnett in his official capacity or conspicuously failed to indorse his administration of the office.

(Editor's Note—The report then proceeds to quote at length from testimony given by civic leaders and representatives of civic organizations at the hearings conducted by the committee. Mr. Garnett's testimony also is liberally quoted and the report then continues.)

23. Garnett and Kindleberger Found Incompetent.—The foregoing detailed testimony of Mr. Garnett, contrasted with the inserted facts, proves beyond peradventure, that the United States attorney for the District of Columbia is not only incompetent, but that he is indifferent to the responsibilities of his office.

With such a person in charge of the prosecution of criminal cases in Washington, it is not possible to afford the people of this city the protection against crime for which they pay and to which they are by right entitled.

The sub-committee wishes at this point to emphatically reiterate its opinion that Mr. Garnett should be removed without delay, and that a competent official should be appointed to succeed him.

There are undoubtedly many faults which should be speedily corrected in the administration of the various departments of the United States attorney's office. It is the opinion of the sub-committee that the assistant United States attorney in charge of police court, Mr. Karl W. Kindleberger, is totally unfit for the office he now holds, and that he should be immediately removed. It is not deemed necessary to go into the detailed testimony of Mr. Kindleberger. It was established to the entire satisfaction of the sub-committee, through his testimony and that of other witnesses, that Mr. Kindleberger is hampered in the proper discharge of his duties and that he does not command the confidence and respect of the community.

It is believed that a successor to the present United States attorney would, upon assuming office, reorganize the staff and rid the office of any who may be unfit to continue.

24. Report Should Be Transmitted to the Attorney General.—In behalf of the people of the District of Columbia, this report should be officially transmitted to the Attorney General of the United States.

Derby Day Will Be Lure For Throng

Exodus to Start Today for Turf Classic in Louisville.

Party on Private Car Will Include Rosso and Farleys.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

There will be a general exodus from Washington today when the special trains, private cars and day coaches pull out of Union Station bound for Louisville, Ky. Thousands from all over the country will meet at Churchill Downs Saturday to see the greatest horse race in America.

Of all the races run in this country, the Derby is probably the best known and the most popular. The famous traditions of Kentucky come to the fore when the Derby is mentioned; Kentucky's beautiful women, its splendid horses and, last, but not least, its mint juleps. So many parties have been organized, and in gay holiday mood thousands will set out this afternoon for "the blue grass country."

Two years ago the glamorous aspect of Churchill Downs was enhanced by the presence of Edward George Villiers Stanley, seventeenth Earl of Derby, known to his friends as Lord Derby, who came to this country to attend the race of which he had heard so much. He was eager to know why the Kentucky Derby, named for the English racing classic instituted by an Earl of Derby in the days of George III, was pronounced by Americans as if it were a bowler, which, to the British, is a hat.

Rosso and Farleys to Attend.

This year the genial Englishman who made himself so popular during his stay in this country, will not be there to enjoy the race, but among the Washingtonians who will make the trip are the Italian Ambassador, Signor Augusto Rosso, an ardent horseman, who will go in a private car which will carry the Postmaster General and Mrs. James A. Farley. With Mr. and Mrs. Farley will be Miss Beth Leary, of New York, also the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Lawrence W. Roberts, Jr., Col. Marvin McIntyre, secretary to the President, his daughter, Miss Marie McIntyre, and Col. Edwin M. Watson, military aid to the President. In the same party will be Mrs. James F. Curtis, Mrs. Evelyn Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Daniel, and Mr. and Mrs. James Robinson, of Atlanta, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Springs, of South Carolina, and Mr. Jackson Dick.

Norrises to Take Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Norris will take a party on their private car, which will include Mrs. Robert V. Fleming and her daughter, Miss Alice Fleming, and with Mr. and Mrs. Urey Woodson will be Senator and Mrs. Alben W. Barkley, Senator Joseph F. Guffey and his sister, Miss Pauletta Guffey; Mr. and Mrs. J. Bruce Kremer and Miss Lola Stiles.

Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse, who have always been interested in the Derby, are going and Miss Marion and Miss Elizabeth Shouse, daughters of Mr. Shouse, are eager to see if their father's horse will be entered in the race. With them will be Miss Mary Parrish Bradley. The Misses Shouse and Miss Bradley will go into the mountains of Kentucky near Louisville Sunday to visit the headquarters of the Frontier Nursing Service. Miss Marion Shouse is much interested in the work of the service and was a courier from Washington last year.

Miss Laurson, William Norton Nuptials Held

Bride Given in Marriage by Maj. Graham; Reception Is Given.

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Thurston Laurson, daughter of Mrs. Graham, wife of Maj. George W. Graham, U. S. A., and Mr. William Joseph Norton, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Norton, of Boston, Mass., and Upperville, Va., took place Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Grahams' apartment at 2400 Sixteenth street. The rooms were decorated with fruit blossoms, arranged against a background of palms and ferns.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Maj. Graham, wore a gown of white lace. Her tulle veil was simply arranged and she carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Miss Elizabeth Gallagher, of Plainfield, N. J., was the maid of honor. She was attired in yellow lace with a large hat of matching Baku straw. Her bouquet was of spring flowers. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Charles Cushman, of Shrewsbury, N. J., and Miss Meta Saunders and Miss Dorothy Harrison, of Washington, all of whom wore garden frocks of yellow cross-barred net with hats of matching tulle. Their arm bouquets were of spring flowers, with pansies predominating.

Mr. Charles Cushman served as best man and the ushers were Mr. Leo Norton, Lt. Col. Guy Cushman, U. S. A., retired, and Mr. Melville Bearns, of Warrenton, Va. Following the ceremony there was a reception. Later in the evening Mr. Norton and his bride left on their wedding trip, the latter wearing a yellow tweed suit with chamois accessories. They will make their home in Upperville.

Andre Popovici Back From West

Rumanian Diplomat Gave Talks in Universities During Trip.

The Secretary of the Rumanian Legation, Mr. Andre Popovici, has returned from California. With Mme. Popovici he left by motor for St. Petersburg, Fla., later sailing through the Panama Canal to the West Coast.

While in Hollywood, where he made his headquarters, Dr. Popovici lectured at several universities, and also traveled through southern California.

Mme. Popovici is in St. Petersburg, where she is visiting Mrs. George Walker. She will return the middle of May.

Portia Club Holds Its Annual Dinner

District Legislation Topic of Next Meeting.

Members of the Portia Club met at the Shoreham Hotel last night for their annual dinner. Pending legislation for the District of Columbia will be discussed at the next meeting in June. Miss Etta L. Taggart is president of the society. Arrangements for the dinner were made by Miss Nina I. Thomas.

The club, now in its third year, is an organization of women lawyers engaged in practice and maintaining their own offices. The purpose is the promotion of legislation that may be of special interest to women and children of the District, and the promotion of good fellowship among women lawyers. Judge Mary O'Toole was a special guest at last night's event.

Miss Emeline C. Roche, of New York City, is at the Carlton for a brief stay, accompanied by Miss Helen Arthur, also of New York.

Skin Stimulant Restores Glow To Complexion

Preparation Is Especially Fine for Women in Late 20's and 30's.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

IT often happens that as a woman grows older her skin becomes dull, sallow, pasty and lined. Once upon a time she accepted this as inevitable, but now the modern woman looks to science to step in and whip up the lagging blood and restore the youthful glow to her complexion.

Soignee European women have long appreciated the necessity of a skin stimulant, but it is only recently that Americans have come to realize the necessity of a preparation to vitalize the skin. And it is comparatively recently that stimulants have been added to the beauty mart.

An especially fine one for women in the late twenties and thirties is a certain gentle stimulant which may be used on the finest, most delicate skins. The beauty specialist who originated it explains its efficacy in this way: "It actually reaches the nerve endings that control the blood supply. As a result it quickens and stimulates the circulation of the blood in the face, thereby restoring the glow of youth!"

To use this stimulant most satisfactorily put a little of it on a cotton pad and press lightly against the skin. First across the forehead, then on either cheek, around the mouth, on the chin, and down over the neck. Now you will find that your skin is literally tingling. The blood is pepped up and circulating freely through the muscles of your face and neck.

After such a treatment you will be delighted with the vital glow of your skin!

New Razor Kit.

There seems to be no end of bargains this week. A certain razor kit is another. It includes a handy little razor with an easy-grip handle, a package of five blades, and a generous tube of shaving cream.

This shaving kit ordinarily sells for 50 cents. Now it's only 37 cents!

Mothers will find it an excellent buy for the adolescent youth who is just beginning to shave.

For the Young Philatelist.

The young stamp collector will be intrigued with the surprise packages of stamps sold in a local store. A one-pound package containing 3,000 stamps will give him something to work with for a long time to come.

When he has finished sorting these, he can buy smaller packs for 10 or 15 cents. These contain such treasures as the 1919 issue of Azerbaijan, old issues from Canada, and some from Lebanon. And, hundreds of others

A Shoe for Many Occasions.

Three yodels for the ingenious Swiss who brought slackers to the fore! Have you seen them? And have you priced them? They exercise a mighty appeal to your economic instincts, for where were there ever such delightful little shoes for only $1.99? And right off, they'll appeal to your love of comfort, for they're absolutely the best little foot coddlers in shoedom.

They have crepe leather soles, sailcloth uppers, and suede throats. All things considered here's a shoe you'll find indispensable all summer long. You can wear it to the beach, on the golf course, to the tennis courts, on all your outings from spring to frosty fall.

They come in sizes 3 to 8 and in all white, white and blue, and white and brown.

Dog Washers Featured.

The season is well under way so isn't it time you gave your canine its spring cleaning? You'll find it a simple undertaking, if you use one of the new dog washers featured in an F street store. They cleanse, massage, and rinse, all in one. There's no mess, and no splash.

If Doggie is a little reluctant about its bath don't fail to try this simple easy method. You'll be surprised at the time and trouble it saves.

Dog washers cost only $1.

The GAME of LIFE

By Priscilla Wayne

Ellen Mallory's new title, "tennis queen of the Northwest," is flattering, but it means nothing without the approval of Michael Dale, her fiance. Mike frowns on Ellen's ambition to enter the national tournament. He insists that she must give up tennis at once so that they can be married. Ellen stubbornly refuses to forsake a promising career.

Ellen's mother is pleased when they quarrel. She selfishly wants Ellen to keep on working, to support the family, and to gain fame at tennis. But when Ellen discovers that her mother has intercepted a phone call and a letter from Mike, who has had to go out of town, she insists that she's going to marry Mike right away. Then Mrs. Mallory plays her trump card. She is in debt to the tune of $2,700—and the bank is reluctant to renew a note for more than $500. Ellen is stunned, but decides the only thing to do is clear up the debt. She signs a new note and promises to pay $20 a month plus interest until it is paid.

Saturday noon at the real estate office where she works Ellen gets a call.

THAT telephone call was exactly like Michael Dale—dynamic, insistent. There was no bridging of the weary days in between; just a determination that would not brook no for an answer.

"I want to see you. Afternoon off? O. K. Then I'll be down in front in half an hour. Right?"

Ellen went back to her letter writing. Forced herself to get the letter perfect this time.

"Well," rotund Mr. Benson said as she laid it before him, "so you've got a Saturday afternoon date!"

"Yes," joyously.

"Have a good time and drive carefully. That's what Mrs. Benson and I always say when our boy starts out on his dates. We want him to pay at least as much attention to his driving as he does to his lovemaking."

Mike was wating impatiently at the curb. He reached out, drew Ellen into the car.

A Joyous Threat.

"I suppose," he said as he started the car, "that just common, ordinary street etiquette demands that I drive out of traffic before I stop to kiss you. But when I get on a side street, young lady, believe me, you're going to get the kissing you deserve."

That joyous threat was carried out. In Mike's arms, close to his heart, it seemed to Ellen that the weary days since she had seen him receded from memory. Again she was Mike's—all Mike's—and there were no dreary explanations to make.

"We're going down to Bethany, Mo," Michael said, "down to visit the Clarence Grays. How will you like that?"

To visit the Clarence Grays? Lou Henry had been her best friend in high school and she'd been Lou's maid of honor when Lou married her Missouri farmer sweetheart whom she'd met at the State agricultural school. It would be an ideal week-end. They'd planned to go for ages and Clarence and Lou would be as glad to see Michael and Ellen as dear friends could possibly be.

A Wonderful Ride.

"I'll telephone home," Ellen said.

"You'll be there in three hours," Michael substituted. "Your mother doesn't expect you home Saturday afternoon. Telephone from Grays. I'm taking no chances."

It was wonderful to ride off in the glorious sun of noonday with Michael. And Michael was in the best of good spirits. "Sure, I loved the trip to Detroit. Only it seemed long—especially when you didn't answer my letter or my telegram."

So there had been a telegram? But Ellen did not mention it. How can a girl tell her sweetheart that her mother disapproves of him so intensely that even his letters and telegrams are not safe?

"We brought eight cars back with us," Michael explained. "But what's the use of my trying to wait to tell you the good news? I'm just like a 10-year-old. I meant to wait until lunch. But I can't. I've got to tell you right now. The truth is I'm going to be a partner down at the Highway Garage."

A partner? Mike had always wanted a business of his own.

"Not only that, young lady, but I'm going to be a senior partner. Lloyd Brown isn't very well, you know, hasn't been for some time. Dad says he has a bad throat condition that may lead to something serious if he doesn't get out of this climate. So he's going.

"I've bought him out. I signed the papers this morning. How's that, young lady, we're half owners in the best paying garage on this section of the Lincoln Highway, or will be when we make all the payments, and that's not all—"

Not all? And Ellen was dizzy trying to comprehend that much.

"I got the car agency I wanted. It means we've got a life sized job on our hands but if we make good at it we're sitting right on top of the world."

Couldn't Worry Her.

He brought the car to a quick standstill off the pavement. "Doesn't that bit of news deserve a few kisses?"

It did. Not for worlds would Ellen have unloaded her worries on Michael when he bubbled over with enthusiasm about his own plans.

They had a hurried lunch in a sandwich shack that stood at the roadside. "Just forgive me for this, darlin'," Michael said. "But I want to get there by 1:30. I've got a date at two."

"You've got a date with me, sir." All the worries of the days just passed seemed to be lifting from Ellen's mind. It was as though she rode in a new and different world.

"You bet I have, sweetheart. But I've got a date with a man, too, in Bethany. I said I'd meet him at two."

"Going to sell him a car?"

Michael Was Sweet.

Michael's hand settled firmly over hers. "Something a lot more important, Darlin'. You'll see. Time enough."

The barbecue sandwiches and the coffee in great thick mugs tasted like ambrosia and heavenly manna.

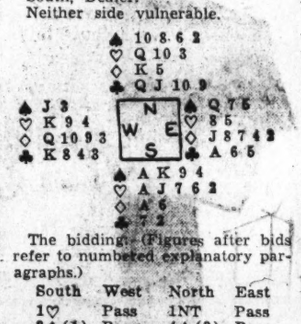
A Miscarriage of Bidding.

Bidding systems and such-like tactical principles are based upon average probabilities. A miscarriage of the bidding due to the occurance of a freak situation should not be taken as an indictment of the bidding system.

The North-South players in the following deal felt justly aggrieved when they arrived, by perfectly correct bidding principles, at the wrong contract, but they should have vented their spleen on the Goddess of Chance rather than on the bidding tactics employed.

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	1NT	Pass
2♠(1)	Pass	4♠(2)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—South is strong enough to show his second suit.

2—It is the duty of the responding hand, after a rebid, to bid the limit of his cards in confirmation of one suit or the other, taking full account in valuing his hand of the extra strength shown by his partner.

The Play.

West led the three of diamonds. Declarer saw that he was bound to go down unless either the heart finesse won or he miraculously cleaned up the spade suit without loss. To find out whether he would have to play for the latter, he took the opening lead with the King of diamonds in dummy and immediately led the Queen of hearts for a finesse. When the finesse lost and no miracles occurred in the spade suit, he was down one.

Comment.

Observe the upset of normal expectations by the abnormal high card situation in the North-South hands. While four spades can not be made, four hearts is a laydown! Whatever West opens, declarer can at his leisure knock out the Ace and King of clubs and the King of hearts and discard his own two spades on dummy's established clubs, thus avoiding the loss of a spade trick.

At spades he is bound to lose the inevitable three tricks plus a spade trick. The reason for this paradoxical superiority of the 5-3 suit over the 4-4 suit is to be found in no ruffing values developed by the 4-4 suit. At hearts the two good clubs in dummy yield two discards, the second of which is gainful as it disposes of South's third-round spade loser. At spades, the two clubs are useless, as the heart loser is a second-round trick.

Kitchen Shower Is Most Practical From the Bride-Elect's Point of View

Find Out Color Scheme Before Purchasing the Presents.

By Dorothea Duncan.

FIRST UP in your calendar of social events for May will be a shower for the June bride-to-be. These showers can be very harum-scarum events unless the needs of the bride are given considerable thought beforehand.

The engaged girl usually has been collecting her own linens, her silver pattern has already been chosen and partly assembled. She would prefer to choose her own china and crystal. A miscellaneous shower means a group of gifts chosen at random; so a kitchen shower is the most practical from the prospective bride's point of view.

The kitchen shower holds unlimited possibilities, especially if the engaged girl is going into a small house or a two-room apartment and expects to do her own kitchen work. Somehow, when she is planning her future home, she skips over to more glamorous ways of spending her money, so a shower of really practical gifts will be doubly appreciated.

This business of planning a shower beforehand or getting together on the idea can't be stressed too much. If it is to be a kitchen shower, find out first what color scheme the bride is planning to use. Even kitchens today are blossoming out with an eye to color. Then have a little conference before any shopping around for gifts is done. If the bride-to-be wants red and white kitchen accessories, make your gifts conform to this color scheme.

The new containers for staples are charming and they come in an array of colors, red and white, green and yellow, smart black and white, green with knobby red handles, or sometimes white patterned with a small red floral design. What bride wouldn't be pleased to accept these accessories for her kitchen? There are small containers for salt and pepper or other spices, larger ones for sugar, flour and dry cereals, bread boxes, wastebaskets and garbage receptacles all in matching lines and colors.

Clock is Excellent Gift.

The possibilities among the smaller accessories are interesting too. A colored electric clock to tack up on the wall is a gift that will never go amiss. Tea towels of fine glass linen, in checks or white with colored borders, gay printed aprons, pot-holders that fit into a bag that will hang near the oven—the new housekeeper will have a place for all or any of these.

There are bowls and bowls and still more bowls—small wooden ones for chopping, larger ones for mixing salads (these have matching spoon and fork), striped or gayly flowered nests in graduating sizes for mixing, and covered glass ones for storing leftovers, four or six of them on a little tray that carries them to the refrigerator and spins around like a top which eliminates the shuffling of bowls when the refrigerator is chock full.

The little towel box that can be replenished with paper towels is a much more practical arrangement than the old roller towel. The cake boards with high metal covers are attractive. Chopping boards, measuring spoons, a nest of graduating measuring cups, egg beaters, a rolling pin, a metal tray gayly painted with a veneer that is spotproof—all of these small gadgets are acceptable kitchen shower gifts.

Dorothea Duncan will be glad to help you with your culinary problems. Write to her, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope, in care of The Washington Post.

Cedar Red Leather Bags Are Chic Accessories

Paris (AP).—Cedar red leather bags are smart accessories to new spring tailleurs. They come in smoothly polished leather in the brownish red of the cedar and are often cut on the new squared shape which is so much in vogue.

Perfect Maternity Record.

Of the 614 patients who attended the prenatal clinic before entering the maternity ward at Woman's Hospital in New York in 1934, not one died in childbirth, according to the hospital's annual report. This establishes a record for the hospital's 25-year-old obstetrical service.

Scarlet Fever Prevention Outlined

Physicians Are Equipped to Make Tests for Susceptibility.

More Than 50 Per Cent of Cases Appear at Ages of 3 to 7.

WITHIN recent months scarlet fever has been unusually prevalent. In fact, the number of cases has considerably exceeded the average yearly total.

Scarlet fever can be controlled through public cooperation, and one way in which it can be held in check is to discover which children are susceptible. Physicians are now equipped to make tests for susceptibility. It is probably within reason to prophesy that within the next few years the Dick scarlet fever test will be as generally used as is the Schick test for detecting those who are likely to become infected with diphtheria.

Just as there is a toxoid that will protect against diphtheria, so there is a scarlet fever toxin that will immunize against scarlet fever. No child should be knowingly exposed to the disease, but if exposure has occurred or if scarlet fever is present in the school or in the neighborhood, a skin test should be made (the Dick test) and cultures taken from the nose and throat. If the skin test is negative the child is probably immune, but if streptococci are found in the throat and nose it is wise to use proper nasal and throat hygiene for the elimination of the organisms.

Complications Cause of Deaths.

If the skin test is positive, however, the child should be given a preliminary (preventive) dose of scarlet fever antitoxin and later active immunization should be carried out, using the five-dose plan.

Deaths when they occur are usually the result of complications, and therein lies the dangerous character of the disease. The complications that follow an attack of scarlet fever are often exceedingly serious and stubborn, and may leave the child with a physical handicap that will endure throughout life. Infection of the middle ear (otitis media) and mastoid disease may require operation or may result in meningitis or brain abscess. Sometimes the joints are affected and not infrequently there is permanent damage to the heart and to the kidneys.

3 to 7 Dangerous Age.

More than 50 per cent of the cases of scarlet fever occur between the ages of 3 and 7. It seems reasonable, therefore, to insist that testing for this disease shall be carried out some time before the child is 3 years of age. There appears to be no contra-indication to the use of the Dick test in the early ages, and immunity may be established in young children through the use of scarlet fever toxin with safety.

Public Clings to Discussion of Saleswomen and Shoppers.

By Mary Haworth.

EVIDENTLY the public is not content to relinquish the discussion which preempted this column for over a week, concerning who is most to blame—saleswoman or shopper—in the event of personality conflict across the counter.

• • • •

Each day's mail brings to this desk more letters marshaling evidence in favor of first one, then the other side, despite the fact I had prefaced last Saturday's symposium with a suggestion that we consider the balloting closed.

• • • •

The barometer of public opinion convinces me, then, that the question is of sufficient general interest to justify our presenting some additional opinions. Two letters follow and there will be others tomorrow. M. H.

Young Mother Speaks.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I am a mother with very little money, very little spare time from my household duties and three very active children who are growing very rapidly! I am breathless trying to keep them from sticking out of their clothes, so I budget my buying by getting shoes for John one month; his shirts together with shoes for Kate the next month; and a dress for Kate with shoes for George the following month, so that I won't lose control and find myself completely swamped.

• • • •

I dash into town knowing exactly what I need and the price I can pay. My time is short and my needs are few. Yet often I have to beg a clerk to wait on me. She is most indifferent. She belittles my demands for an article at a certain price and insists I buy something else at a higher price; or she doesn't know her stock and won't even look for the size of the very thing I want! If they would only know what they have on their shelves so I wouldn't be delayed while they half-heartedly glance here and there!

• • • •

I really am not hard to please and I buy good things at good stores. I simply want a little action and business-like interest from the clerks I approach. Buying for my family is a necessary business and I am not interested in personalities that I meet in such business transactions. Often I do meet a sweet, business-like girl who is efficient, and I always return to her for my needs.

MRS. "MOTHER."

Department Buyer's Voice.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: As a buyer in one of the largest department stores in Washington, naturally I am interested in a discussion which places either saleswoman or shopper on the defensive.

I've had many years of dealing with the problems of salespersons and customers in my department. Yet I can't recall a single instance when a saleswoman was unhappy through feeling herself socially inferior to a customer.

• • • •

To begin with, the average saleswoman in a better store is not inferior. She is in no sense the old-time "shop girl." On the contrary, she is usually a high school graduate, very often a college woman. And always she is an intelligent person who wants to give the best service she is capable of. She knows that competent salesmanship is the groundwork for advancement in the retail business and she does her best for that reason, if for no other.

• • • •

A saleswoman tries to make a pleasant impression on the customer not only for completion of the current sale, but also with an eye to future business. She is always delighted when a former customer comes into the department and asks for her.

I have complaints, of course. They come from both salespeople and customers. But I'm happy to say they're in the minority. For every disgruntled remark I hear there are at least ten tributes to the efficiency of my girls. And for every salesperson who tells me how disagreeable Mrs. A. is, there are several who tell me about the friendliness of Mrs. B., Mrs. C. and Mrs. D. This is our situation and I'm sure it's typical of the situation in other stores. Sincerely,

M. R. (BUYER).

19th Century Mode In Jewels Returns

Endearment Terms Spelled in Precious Stones.

London—Revival of the nineteenth century jewelry fashions, now becoming more and more popular, indicates a return of the mode which saw terms of endearment spelled in precious stones.

The favorite engagement ring of those days was set with gems whose initial letters formed a word of endearment such as "dearest" made up of diamonds, emeralds, amethysts, rubies, sapphires and turquoises.

The idea of a sentimental message conveyed by the stones of a betrothal ring especially appealed to the Victorians. In 1862, when the Prince of Wales tendered his engagement ring to Princess Alexandra of Denmark, it was set with stones whose initial letters spelled "Bertie," the prince's pet name. There was no gem beginning with the letter I, but the court jewelers substituted the jacinth.

Men Becoming Subtle Sex, Mrs. Johnesse Observes

Underwood & Underwood.

Mrs. Frank E. Johnesse, above, colorful Idaho pioneer and the Nation's only woman Democratic State chairman, says men in business and legislation revel in innuendo, veiled promises and political coquetry, while women waste neither time nor words.

Feminine Speech Turning to Frankness and Directness, Says Idaho Democratic Chairman, in Capital for Parley.

By Mary Greiner Kelly.

MEN MAY YET be termed the subtler sex. With thousands of women now filling public offices, feminine manners and speech are becoming frank, simple and direct. Emotionalism and inconsistency are out. Mastering the art of rapid-fire decision on important issues, women's proverbial changeability of mind is now a misnomer.

But the men? They're polishing up since their mates have begun to share the heavier responsibilities. To the men are being left the instruments of ingenuity the fancier oratory, the more deliberative planning. Women with an ultimate goal in sight now waste neither time nor words. Men engaged in business and legislation still revel in innuendo and veiled promises.

This, accompanied by an amused chuckle, is the way Mrs. Frank E. Johnesse, colorful Idaho pioneer and only woman Democratic State chairman in the United States, sizes up the situation. Mrs. Johnesse is spending this week in Washington. She will be joined here by Gov. Ben Ross and other Idaho leaders for a conference on State business.

Women Executives Efficient.

"I'm afraid," continued the Western leader, "women may soon be accused by the men folks of being too blunt and ruthless, and women will have to counter with the complaint they can not follow the whimsical vagaries of the masculine mind.

"But in the meantime, it's a delight to contact the busy woman executive of today. She has facts and figures at her fingertips, dispenses necessary information courteously and assumes that your time is just as valuable as her own."

Mrs. Johnesse who has achieved political distinction nationally, was accorded the unique privilege recently of speaking from the floor of the Idaho House of Representatives, although not a member of the legislative body. Granted five minutes to explain a bill hanging fire, namely the 50-50 plan of political representation, she presented her facts in three. The bill passed by 11 votes and the Idaho woman was praised in a later burst of masculine oratory for her brevity and effectiveness.

Mrs. Johnesse disagrees with those who preach against women mixing careers with domesticity. Having reared two daughters, both of whom are now launched in successful careers, she believes a mother is cheating herself and her family by losing contact with important events outside her home.

Age Is Denied a Factor.

"Every housewife," she said, "no matter how large her family, has a certain margin of time she could and should devote to constructive endeavor. If she doesn't, she not only runs the risk of boring her husband and children but warps herself mentally and spiritually.

"Women who wait until their families are completely reared before taking a hand in public affairs are apt to be inflexible in their outlook and utterly incapable of coping with the swift-moving changes of the future."

Age, Mrs. Johnesse, believes, is no factor in a successful political career; early training, however, is an asset. Experience in surmounting obstacles in one's domestic life, provides a woman with a broader, more tolerant and sympathetic attitude in the realm of public service, she said.

"The hard knocks suffered by women and their families during the depression, for instance," Mrs. Johnesse said, "has made them more keen to the needs of social service legislation. The women of the drought areas are awake to the part they must play in legislation affecting the farmer."

Mrs. Johnesse's own early experiences on the uninhabited plains of Idaho have not only made her appreciative of all modern progress, but have endowed her with a colorful background.

Hazardous Coach Trip.

Married to a mining engineer 35 years ago, Mrs. Johnesse left a school teaching job in Illinois for the life of a Western pioneer wife and mother. She reveled in it. Hardship and inconvenience and long, lonely separations from her husband left her undaunted. She found plenty of work to do and she did it.

"My idea of a good time," she reminisced, "was saddling my pony, and with my baby in my arms, riding over the hills and plains for hours at a time. There were business trips too, when I'd ride horseback from 7 in the morning until 10 at night. The nearest postoffice was 11 miles over narrow trails, the nearest town 45 miles away. Neighbors were few and far between but they somehow all seemed worth knowing."

Monotonous? On the contrary, Mrs. Johnesse found it exciting, sometimes even melodramatic. Take for instance her ride with a sick baby in a stage coach through a hazardous storm. They were the only passengers. The driver with a bottle at his side was growing more and more insensible to the dangers of the situation.

He slumped in his seat. The youthful mother, her heart in her mouth, grabbed the reins of the six-horse team and drove the remaining seven miles through the blinding rain into town. The incident is still one of the favorite reminiscences of pioneer residents of that section. To Mrs. Johnesse, it was her first valuable lesson in self-reliance. Having successfully coped with that situation, she suddenly caught the trick of turning obstacles into milestones. Thus far, in true pioneer fashion, she carved out her career.

Helen Keller Scores Lack Of Eye Safeguards Here

Noted for her courage in living a full life in spite of being deaf, dumb and blind, Helen Keller, above, believes many persons today are inclined to whine instead of making the most of their resources.

By Virginia Lee Warren.

WASHINGTON, usually considered a progressive, modern city yesterday was termed "incredibly backward," by Helen Keller, one of the most noted of contemporary women. Her charge against the Capital was uttered when she learned there is no law here requiring infants' eyes to be treated at birth to prevent blindness.

"Think of Washington, the first city in the land, being so backward in such a vital matter!" Miss Keller exclaimed. Her voice was rather high but not unpleasant. Her unseeing eyes were turned frequently upon her interviewer. By her side in the living room of her old friend, Mrs. Philip S. Smith, at 3249 Newark street northwest, sat her constant companion, Polly Thomson. Nearby was Elizabeth Bain, of Scotland, who is spending ten days in this country as Miss Keller's guest.

A desire to show Miss Bain the beauties of the Capital prompted Miss Keller's visit. Yesterday morning they went sightseeing. In the afternoon they attended the garden party at the White House.

Favorite Among Cities.

Washington has long been one of Helen Keller's favorite cities. That is one reason she was pained to learn it is not taking every precaution against blindness for its children.

"Why, Massachusetts and New York passed laws 30 years ago for the protection of new born babies' eyes," said Miss Keller, herself blind since infancy as a result of scarlet fever. "And here is Washington, far behind, when it should be setting an example for the whole Nation in all public-spirited work."

She is intensely interested and well-informed upon everything being done to aid the blind. The new talking-book, she believes, is the greatest invention since Braille. As she told of its blessings her speech became so rapid with excitement that Miss Thomson had to explain it to the others in the room.

"The talking-book," Miss Keller said, "brings to the blind the pleasure of listening by ear instead of the slow, wearisome method of reading with the fingers. Besides, there are many people who are too old to learn the braille system. But the talking-book will enable them to read. Can you imagine what that will mean to them?"

She smiled.

Praises Seeing-Eye Dogs.

The Seeing-Eye dogs, trained to lead and guide the blind, are also a great blessing, in her estimation.

"I wish it were possible," she said, "for every blind person to have one of these dogs. It would give such a sense of independence. Have I ever had one? No. You see, I can not hear. I can never go any place alone." And she gave Polly Thomson an affectionate pat on the arm; Polly Thomson, who is Helen Keller's eyes, and often her voice.

Interested as she is in promoting the welfare of afflicted persons, Miss Keller finds time to study humanity as a whole. She believes people are more inclined to complain than they used to be.

"Many persons seem to be waiting for the return of prosperity without doing anything about it," she said. "I'm afraid we've lost the splendid individualism and courage of our forefathers. By individualism I mean developing one's own resources and consecrating one's life to the public weal. If there were no difficulties to be surmounted this would be indeed a stupid world."

What TODAY Means

"Taurus."

IF MAY 2 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a. m. until noon, from 2:15 to 4:15 p. m. and from 7:15 to 9:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:15 to 10:15 a. m., from 12:15 to 2:15 p. m., and from 4:15 to 6:15 p. m.

Any display of pomposity or egotism will be an error of judgment on this date, as any exaggerated idea of self-importance is likely to be exploded by sparks of angry resentment. Any attempts to evade responsibilities by trying to shift them upon someone else are not likely to succeed, and probably will only lead to complications.

The business "go-getter" should have no trouble in negotiating new deals and satisfactory interviews. Events of a social nature should prove very interesting, so invitations can be accepted without much fear of becoming bored or having to make any special effort to get enjoyment out of them. A friend may be responsible for your being made very happy today in a very unexpected way.

If a woman and May 2 is your birthday, it is very likely to be a turning point in your life in the direction of much better luck and happier days. If you will have faith in yourself and your own ability to overcome obstacles, you probably will be surprised at the ease disappointments can be turned into advantageous realities.

If a man and May 2 is your natal day, and you wish to use good judgment, never be ostentatious in the way of dress or display of personal possessions, as a wrong impression of your real worth may be created. Engineering, educational work, manufacturing, merchandising, as well as industrial selling may enable you to find the type of work you will like best.

Styles Abroad Show Influence Of the Orient

By the Associated Press.

Paris.—The mystery of the Orient has invaded European dressmaking salons this spring, laying its mark on modern 1935 clothes.

Some evening clothes are designed to swathe the figure in a manner reminiscent of the women of biblical times, others draped like those of maharanees. Indian saris are draped over heads, designed to slip off the head when the wearer enters the drawing room and become a cape or a train. Nautch-girl sandals of gold kid appear on bare feet.

Oriental Jewels Make Debut.

Oriental jewels are here, too—bracelets and necklaces of beaten gold circles set with Indian sapphires and rubies—and Oriental perfumes have made their debut.

Alix makes an evening gown of gauzy wine-red mousseline with a sari bordered in shimmering gold braid which strongly recalls the robes worn by Indian maharanees.

Schiaparelli fashions frocks of soft yellow or "noonday sun orange" rahnee crepe and "desert rose" Ramadan satin draped on spiral folds about the figure and finished with a veil draped over the head reminiscent of the paintings of women of biblical times.

Gowns Demand Grace.

The mannequins who display them in the salons and the women who wear them walk with a soft, gliding grace like that of the women of the East.

Not every woman can wear these gowns. They demand grace, sophistication and poise and are at their best when worn by the woman of 30 rather than the debutante. A few fashionables are wearing them with heelless sandals, which add a picturesque touch to the costume.

Senate Breaks Lynch Bill Jam, Calls Up Bonus

Borah Attack on Measure Precedes Collapse of Week's Filibuster.

seek to attach to the Harrison compromise plan.

Robinson Happy.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson, grim-jawed majority leader, smiled broadly as yesterday's adjournment motion swept to passage, automatically clearing the bitterly contested anti-lynching motion from the Senate slate.

Robinson has been target for good-natured twitting from colleagues ever since the President chided the leader for Senate delay at a recent White House conference. This break in the log-jam will give him a chance to hurry the Administration's docket in the Senate.

Hedged in by Senate rules, hampering his every effort for speed, Robinson nevertheless has admonished committee chairmen to take every short cut toward enactment of pressing measures. The modified NRA extension resolution, or the AAA amendments, will promptly follow the bonus resolution to the floor.

Charges "Federal Invasion."

The Borah oration, which preceded the adjournment vote, was called down on the head of Senator Edward P. Costigan, of Colorado, co-author of the anti-lynching bill, at Costigan's own invitation. Costigan had asked Borah his opinion of a comparable bill, which was defeated by filibuster in 1922.

The independent Idaho Republican answered the question with a speech seriously damaging Costigan's foothold.

Borah denounced lynching as intolerable, but declared the pending anti-lynching measure would right a wrong only by dangerous inroads on the Constitution. Likening it to "Federal invasion of State's rights" under the NRA and AAA acts, he said these were products of "troubled" times. He predicted return to "sound" lawmaking.

"To my mind, if this kind of bill can be passed and sustained by the Supreme Court, we have utterly annihilated all State sovereignty," he told the Senate.

"We have broken down State lines completely. I can see no escape from that conclusion. Remember, John Marshall once said that no dreamer ever dreamed of eliminating State lines, and contracting our country into one whole, but that is precisely what this kind of a measure does."

The motion to sidetrack the anti-lynching issue was phrased by Senator Robinson, to adjourn the Senate from 3:17 to about 3:30 p. m. It was supported by 43 Democrats, 4 Republicans and 1 Farmer-Laborite, with 14 Democrats, 17 Republicans and 1 Progressive voting "no." Seven Senators switched their position from earlier votes to make the maneuver possible.

When the Senate reconvened at 3:30, the bonus resolution was called up immediately. Temporarily, however, the veterans' issue was laid aside to permit rapid consideration of non-controversial bills on the calendar.

Thomas Plans Amendments.

The Harrison bonus compromise will be the first order of business when the Senate convenes today. Reported by the Finance Committee in preference to the Vinson and Patman plans, it provides for payment of the bonus in cash or in bonds, with the 20-year certificates dating from Armistice Day, 1918, instead of 1925. Experts estimate that an average $1,000 certificate cashed on this basis at the present time would bring about $775. Full maturities under the bill would not be reached until about 1942. A premium is provided for those who hold their certificates until the old maturity date—1945.

A move to substitute the legion-sponsored Vinson bill, providing immediate cash payment under financing to be worked out by the Treasury, is expected to be made by Senator Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri, former legion commander. As the Harrison compromise is offered as an amendment to the inflationary Patman cash payment bill, approval of the Patman plan may only be had by defeat of the Vinson substitute and the Harrison amendments.

Meantime, Senator Thomas will move to revise the Harrison bill with the following amendments:

1. Dating the certificates from April 6, 1917, the date America entered the war, instead of Armistice Day.

2. Restoration of $60 deducted from the bonus for payments made to soldiers on discharge.

3. Retroactive removal of all interest charges on bonus loans.

4. A liberal amendment for immediate payment, minus an interest discount.

Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), of New York, co-author of the Wagner-Costigan anti-lynching bill, insisted displacement of his measure by the bonus does not kill it for the session.

"We will renew our motion again, once the bonus and major Administration measures are out of the way," he said. "The argument can not then be made that we are holding up the Administration's program."

If the motion is renewed, Southern Democrats retorted they would "talk it to death."

Borah was aided in his assault on alleged Federal invasion of State rights by Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, conservative Democratic independent. Citing favorable Supreme Court decisions on New Deal cases, the Virginian invoked the shade of Thomas Jefferson, who once called the Supreme Court "the sappers and miners of the Federal Constitution."

introduced in the Senate just before adjournment. It provides:

1. No price-fixing shall be permitted or sanctioned under any code, except in codes of mineral natural resource industries now embodying the principle.

2. No trade engaged wholly in intrastate commerce shall be placed under code.

3. The President will be given 30 days in which to review the present codes, to revise and adjust each so they will conform to provisions of the new NRA resolution.

Controversial Item Gone.

Although a direct slap at President Roosevelt and his New Deal coordinator, Richberg, the amended resolution appeared to remove an item of controversy that may have extended the "deliberative" Senate sessions by weeks.

Even Chairman Harrison, who has striven feverishly for a fortnight to work out a compromise plan satisfactory to the President, viewed the resolution as a quick solution of Administrative difficulties.

"I think this is the best way out," Harrison told reporters. "I feel certain we can pass this resolution without a great amount of debate. It would give NRA time to adjust itself, and give the courts time to rule on the various questions of NRA valadity."

Asked if the measure was satisfactory to the President, he "preferred not to say." President Roosevelt is understood to have informed Administration Senators, however, he "would have to take what they sent to him."

"Ninety per cent of the criticism of NRA can be cured by Administrative processes," commented the mild-eyed, deep-browed Finance Committee chairman, whose reputation as a legislative 'hoss-trader" is renowned in the Senate.

"I haven't the slightest doubt that NRA authorities under direction of the President, if the act is extended, will make such changes as will cure these defects.

"When Congress meets next January we will proceed again to consider NRA. Meanwhile I hope that in administration of the act NRA authorities will make many changes to popularize the law."

2 CCC Camps To Be Located At Beltsville

Enrollment for State of Maryland to Be Raised by 6,700.

Two of the new Civilian Conservation Corps camps allotted to Maryland under the $220,000,000 Federal appropriation will be located at Beltsville, it was announced yesterday.

Officials at the Beltsville Research Center, where two camps have been in operation since the establishment of the CCC work program, said the new units would house 216 men each.

They also announced the continuation of the camps for Negroes at Cedarville, Prince Georges County, and Indianhead, Charles County. Registration for the entire State will begin June 15, providing for opening of the new camps about July 1.

To Add 6,700 Recruits.

Enrollment for the entire State will be increased to 6,700 men. There are 15 camps now in existence. Twenty-five of the 28 additional have already been approved by Third Corps Area headquarters, and approval of the other three is expected shortly.

With the close of this year's enlistment period, the men will be eligible for reselection if they have had not less than five months' service and not more than 18 months. The age limit, also, has been increased to 28 years.

Certain members of the various camps, who have had several months' service, will be scattered throughout the new camps to coordinate and balance the incoming companies.

Assigned to Coast.

Forty-one companies from the Third Corps Area, which comprises Virginia, District of Columbia, Maryland and Pennsylvania, will be assigned to work in the Ninth Corps Area, on the Pacific Coast.

Just how this will affect Maryland has not yet been announced. Other States in the corps area have been allotted the following number of men: 2,600 for the District of Columbia; 48,700 for Pennsylvania; and 8,300 for Virginia.

Lord Fairfax Patron Saint In Apple Belt

Pre-Festival Honors Due "Father of First Orchards."

Fruit Grower Reveals How Industry Was Started in 1748.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., May 1. — The northern Shenandoah Valley and the City of Winchester, often referred to as the "capital of the Eastern apple kingdom," should pause tonight on the eve of its twelfth annual apple blossom festival, to pay homage to His Lordship, Thomas VI, Lord Fairfax. According to Phil H. Gold, local horticulturist and president of the Fredericks County Fruit Growers' Association, it was largely through the persistence of Lord Fairfax that the early settlers cultivated fruit at all.

Frederick County and, more particularly, Apple Pie Ridge was settled largely by Quakers as early as 1740. As Mr. Gold points out, citing data provided by Dr. S. W. Fletcher, director of the Pennsylvania Experiment Station, Lord Fairfax, who was proprietor of the northern part of Virginia, stipulated in all deeds issued after 1748 that at least 100 apple trees be set upon each grant of land. This injunction not only was complied with, but also was enlarged upon by the Quakers who settled along Apple Pie Ridge and to this day the descendants of these pioneers take pride in the quality and beauty of their apple orchards.

Present to the Queen.

Other interesting data pertaining to early days of the apple industry provided by Mr. Gold and Dr. Fletcher include the assertion that none other than Benjamin Franklin laid the foundation for the export of Virginia apples when he distributed northern Newtown pippins at the British court. In 1837, Andrew Stephenson, of Albemarle County, who was Minister to the Court of St. James, received a supply of home-grown apples and he presented several barrels to Queen Victoria, who was so delighted she called for more from the same source.

Thomas Jefferson and George Washington sought successfully to apply scientific methods of their day to the production of fruit, but it remained for Commodore Matthew Fontaine Maury, Virginia scientist, to make the first observation with thermometers of the difference in temperature between the valleys and slopes above them. His experiments were made in Amherst, Frederick and Albermarle counties.

Tells of Ridge.

"In Frederick County," he wrote, "there is an elevated ridge of land on which apples are so generally safe when all others in the neighborhood are killed by frosts, that it has acquired the name of Apple Pie Ridge." The name has been retained.

During the remainder of this week, many of the thousands who visit Winchester will view the magnificent orchards, which stretch for miles along the famous ridge.

Stage Set for Annual Apple Festival to Open at Winchester Today

Winchester, Va., yesterday completed arrangements for the Twelfth Shanandoah Apple Blossom Festival which opens there today. The main events today include a parade of 3,000 school children, the coronation of Mlle. Nella Veverka, daughter of the Czechoslovakian Minister to the United States, as Queen Shenandoah XII, and a pageant of springtime by 3,000 school children. The fete continues through tomorrow with a second presentation of the pageant and a feature parade. Upper left, wisteria girls of the pageant rehearse their lines, the group including (left to right) Ethel Trenary, Lena Robertson, Evelyn Garber, Phyllis Fowle, Bernice Largent, Natalie Browne, Marjorie Lafollette, Jane Purtlebaugh, Dorothy Ann Robinson and Mary Choucleris. At the right, little Miss Dorothy Turner Hawthorne, one of the queen's train bearers, wears the crown with which her majesty will be crowned and holds other emblems of royal authority, the sceptre, golden apple and key to the city of Winchester.

Peery Party Will Inspect State Parks

6-Day Trip Starting May 19 to Include Shenandoah.

Trip Planned to Gain View of Work and Future Needs.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., May 1.—For the announced purpose of gaining a "comprehensive view of accomplishments and future needs" of the State parks under jurisdiction of the conservation and development commission, a party of State and national officials and newspapermen, headed by Gov. Peery, will make a six-day inspection tour of Virginia parks and the Shenandoah National Park beginning May 19, Chairman Wilbur C. Hall of the commission announced today.

This will be the first such inspection trip by the present commission, which took office January 1, and will be the first time the Governor has accompanied the inspecting party.

A valuable by-product of the tour, Chairman Hall indicated, would be a renewed presentation to Virginians of the recreational advantages of natural beauty spots "in their own backyards."

No Unscheduled Stops.

The itinerary has been arranged to cover a maximum territory in a limited time, R. A. Gilliam, executive secretary of the commission, pointed out, and the schedule can not be changed for stops not already planned.

Assembling at the Cavalier Hotel at Virginia Beach for lunch May 19, the party will take an automobile trip through the seashore park in the afternoon and spend the night at the Cavalier.

On Monday they will leave Virginia Beach at 8 a. m. and arrive at Westmoreland Park at noon, taking lunch at the park. Following inspection of the park, they will attend the unveiling of the William Pitt portrait at Montross at 3:30 p. m., and will be guests of a group of citizens at dinner. Immediately after dinner, they will leave for Fredericksburg, to spend the night at the Stratford Hotel.

Will View Rapidan Camp.

Leaving Fredericksburg at 8:30 a. m., the party will devote most of the day to inspecting Shenandoah National Park and the President's camp on the Rapidan, taking lunch at Skyland. The party will leave the Shenandoah at 4 p. m. for Douthat State Park near Clifton Forge, where they will spend the night in cabins in the park.

Wednesday morning will be devoted to a survey of Douthat, which the group will leave at 1 p. m. for Hungry Mother Park at Marion. The night will be spent at the Lincoln Hotel, Marion.

On Thursday inspection of Hungry Mother Park will occupy the morning until 11, when the schedule calls for departure for Fairystone State Park, which is expected to be reached at 3:30 after lunch at Wytheville. After viewing Fairystone, the travelers will go to Martinsville to spend the night.

Episcopal Session Held.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., May 1.—Spring session of Eastern Convocation of the Episcopal Church was held today at Mount Zion Episcopal Church, Hedgesville. The opening sermon was given by the Rev. Paul Micou, new rector of Nelson parish, Jefferson County. Bishop-Coadjutor R. E. L. Strider, of Wheeling, presided at the all-day meeting.

Four in Hospital After Auto Crash

Fifth Person Slightly Hurt in Largo, Md., Accident.

Four persons were in Casualty Hospital last night as the result of an auto accident at Largo, Md., early yesterday. Another was released after treatment for lacerations.

Miss Vera Sweeney, 28, of Upper Marlboro, was said to have a fractured skull. Miss Mabel Sweeney, 19, of the same town, was suffering severe lacerations; Lee Fleishman, 29, Riverdale, lacerations of hands, and George McKenzie, 21, Landover, Md., lacerations of the scalp.

Raymond Bell, 22, of Hyattsville, was treated for lacerations of the face. Police said the car struck a telephone pole and overturned.

6th Waynesboro Fair Ready to Open Today

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., May 1.—The sixth annual Waynesboro Y. M. C. A. Community Fair will open tomorrow night and continue three days. Products of Waynesboro industries will be exhibited and an automobile show will be held.

The lobby, gymnasium and assembly room of the Y. M. C. A. are being used by exhibitors. Booths were completed yesterday and decorators began work this morning. A band concert will be held nightly, D. J. Keener, general chairman, said.

Winchester to Condemn Land for Road Project

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., May 1.—The city council today authorized the city manager and city solicitor to act to condemn property needed to complete the Millwood avenue (route 50) entrance into the city.

Two pieces of property are involved. For some months relief workers under supervision of city officials have been at work on preliminary phases of the project. Straightening of the route, widening and macadamizing have been approved by the State highway department and are awaiting Federal approval.

Shippers Argue For New Rates In W. Virginia

Claims Presented Here for Adjustments of Apple Schedules.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., May 1.—Robert Bly, of Charles Town, and John W. Willen, of Martinsburg, both members of the rate committee, West Virginia Hortcultural Society; John Y. McDonald, Charles Town, president of the society, attended a conference Monday in Washington at which lowered freight rates on apples from this four-State belt were sought to meet the two recent reductions granted the Northwestern apple shippers, which cut their rates into the mid-West and deep South from $1.50 per hundredweight to $1.

The Eastern growers asked at the conference for a reduction of approximately one-sixth.

The conference was presided over by W. S. Campfield, secretary of Virginia Horticulture Society. The Pennsylvania Horticulture Society was represented by R. T. Criswell, Chambersburg, and Maryland Horticulture Society by A. F. Vierheller and Dr. J. H. Beaumont.

The railroad men present were W. B. Hopkins, general freight agent for Pennsylvania; H. G. Settle, G. F. A. for the B & O; F. H. Pitman, for the Norfolk & Western; E. L. McCaulley for Western Maryland; W. T. Turner for Southern Railway, and W. S. Beale for the Chesapeake & Ohio.

The railroad freight heads promised to consider the claims of the growers and advise the societies of their decision.

Willen and Campfield went on to New York to attend a hearing before freight heads concerning the proposal to increase the estimated loading weight on peaches from 50 pounds to 52 pounds per bushel and to combat the proposed increase in icing charges for peaches and apples shipped in refrigerator cars.

Lumberman Is Sought In Death of Girl, 7

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Grafton, W. Va., May 1.—Armed with a warrant charging manslaughter, Taylor County officers are searching for Marion Williams, 45, lumberman employed by the Maryland Coal Co. at Wendel.

A coroner's jury held Williams responsible for the death of Barbara Sheets, 7, daughter of Dewey S. Sheets, of Flemington, who was run down Friday as she was returning home from school.

Herring Runs Started On Wicomico and Coan

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Heathsville, Va., May 1.—The long-waited run of herring on the Great Wicomico and Coan Rivers appeared Monday, when trap fishermen on the Great Wicomico caught as high as 60,000 or more to the rig. Packing houses here paid from $3.50 to $5 per 1,000, which is considered a good price at this season.

Herring have been exceptionally scarce, with a small pack resulting.

Trout Put in Evitts Creek.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., May 1.—A thousand brown trout were placed in Evitts Creek today. They measure from 4 to 6 inches in length and will not be of legal size during the present season. If the experiment proves successful and the trout propagate, the stream may be heavily stocked next year.

Harford Justices Lose Commissions

Secretary of State Recalls All Appointments.

By the Associated Press.

Bel Air, Md., May 1.—All Harford County justice of the peace commissions were recalled today by Secretary of State Thomas Dawson.

No reason was assigned for the action. Only one magistrate, Frank Aaronson, of Aberdeen, received his commission before Winfield Cain, clerk of Harford County Circuit Court, received the order to return all the commissions to Dawson. No other magistrate in the county qualified.

About 20 commissions were included in those returned.

Baltimore, May 1 (AP).—Gov. Harry W. Nice, conducting a meeting of the board of public works today, said the recall of the commissions of justices of the peace of Harford County was for the purpose of "making a few changes."

Shepherdstown Road Now Being Surfaced

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Shepherdstown, W. Va., May 1.—Work has been resumed on surfacing of the new Martinsburg-Shepherdstown highway after a delay of three months, forced by inclement weather.

The road is being surfaced by the Pendleton Construction Co., of Wytheville, with labor furnished from relief rolls. Starting at the west end of town, the road is routed in a direct line to the outskirts of Martinsburg, cutting distance between these two towns 5 miles. Present distance is 13 miles by way of Kearneysville.

Sewer at Westminster To Be Finished Soon

Westminster, Md., May 1. (AP).—Part of a $300,000 construction program begun last year in Carroll County. The $278,000 sewerage system here, will be completed soon.

Other work in the program includes a dormitory at Western Maryland College, road and paving work and a $200,000 school building program is to be started soon.

'Blue and Gray' Today Re-enact Famed Civil War Engagement

historic "cracker box" conference held by Lee and Jackson in their council of war on the eve of the first major Wilderness battle. In the depths of the thick woods, they sat alone and fixed the disposition of their 51,000 men. Gen. J. E. B. Stuart, commanding the cavalry, rode in with word from Fitz Lee that Hooker's right was "in the air," unprotected by adequate cavalry or any natural barrier.

Lee thereupon ordered a turning movement. He approved Gen. Jackson's plan to take his whole Second Corps—28,000 men—and fall on the weakened wing. Only two divisions were left to Lee. Early was at Fredericksburg, 12 miles east, facing Sedgwick.

The two armies the winter long had faced each other across the Rappahannock after Burnside's failure in December. With the coming of spring, Hooker, massed opposite Fredericksburg, moved most of his army up the river to the fords and began a movement against the Confederate left.

Union Line Folds Up.

Gen. Lee, leaving Early with 10,000 men, moved to meet the threat. His divisions of McLaws and R. H. Anderson encountered the Federals near Chancellorsville the afternoon of May 1, and after a sharp skirmish the Blue withdrew to strong positions.

Early the next morning Gen. Jackson marched his corps down the narrow bypath to take Gen. Oliver O. Howard's Eleventh Corps in flank. The operation was eminently successful. The Union line was folded up, and Jackson gained Hooker's rear.

Next morning the two sections of the Confederate army struck together, and after sharp fighting—33,000 was the roll of casualties in the battle—Hooker retired across the Rappahannock.

It was about 2:30 a. m. on May 3, only a few hours after the thunder of the surprise assault of Jackson had died away, that Gen. Lee was informed by Capt. R. E. Wilbourn, Jackson's signal officer, that Jackson had been wounded three times when he rode forward to reconnoitre the Union position.

Nine days later Gen. Jackson died.

Perhaps the most glamorous episode in the pagent will be the participation of the entire student body of V. M. I. In 1861 the boys of this famous institution followed the example of their Prof. Jackson, and left for the war. They officered and drilled recruits—scores as young as themselves—and led them forth to battle. At Harper's Ferry, first and second Manassas, Antietam, Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville they acquitted themselves with valor.

Battle's Reenactment Features 'Rebel Yell'

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., May 1.—Visitors to the Chancellorsville battle reenactment tomorrow will hear the old "Rebel yell" repeated by Virginia Military Institute cadets. An old veteran described it as near as possible today as a short "w-o-o-o," a long "who-o," followed by a sharp, shrill "e-e-e." "Wo-o-o who-o-E-e-e" is the way it sounds.

It originated with old fox hunters of the South, signifying that the fox had been sighted. They took it to the army, and it became the "Rebel yell."

Oil Painting Lost In Landmark Fire

$20,000 Damage Reported to James E. Hart Home.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, May 1.—Valuable oil paintings and antiques were destroyed by fire which swept the historic home of the late James E. Hart today on the Reisterstown road adjoining the Hannah More Academy at Reisterstown. Firemen succeeded in saving a few of the valuable paintings, including one by Peale.

Flames spouting from the roof of the three-story frame structure were seen by an employe of the academy, who turned in the alarm. With the arrival of the first fire Company, additional calls for assistance were sent in to save the 12-room house.

Welfare Group Closes Annual Maryland Rally

2-Day Session at Frederick Has Record Registration, Totaling 544.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., May 1.—Addresses by Dr. George H. Preston, of Baltimore, State commissioner of mental hygiene, and Miss Edith Abbott, dean of the school of social service administration, University of Chicago, and round-table discussion concluded yesterday afternoon the annual meeting of the Maryland State Conference of Social Welfare, in session two days. The registration, covering nearly every county in the State, reached 544, the largest in the history of the conference.

Speakers included Miss Ruth Blakeslee, Federal social worker, Washington; Miss Margaret E. Rich, New York, assistant general director of the Family Welfare Association of America; Mrs. Pauline Miller, executive secretary of the Frederick Relief Board; Miss Isabel Carter, Baltimore; Ray A. Huff, executive, Board of Parole, Department of Justice, Washington; Miss Katherine Griffith and Miss Mary Godley, Washington; Miss Anita J. Faatz, director of social service, Board of State Aid and Charities, and Miss Eleanor Richardson, Baltimore; Miss Ethel Bowers, New York, and Miss Helen Woods, social service department, University of Pennsylvania Hospital, Philadelphia. Miss Anna Ward, Baltimore, retiring president, addressed the students of Hood College.

Dr. Preston, the new pastor, will appoint a standing committee. The executive committee will select a time and place for next year's conference.

Ruth Draper Thrills Audience by Vivid Realism of Her Sketches at Single Matinee

Reveals Gifts That Make Her A Rare Artiste

Skits Are Fine Creations; New Films Open Today; Amusement Notes.

Reprinted from yesterday's last edition.

By Nelson B. Bell.

After an absence of several seasons, Ruth Draper returned to the National Capital for a single matinee performance of her extraordinary character sketches in the National Theater yesterday afternoon and sharpened vivid memories of her genius for creative writing and diversified character delineation.

Since her last visit, some four or five years ago at the Belasco Theater, other feminine artistes who dedicate their talents to the exposition of what, for want of a better name, has been denominated "solo drama," have been seen locally, but none occupies quite the position of unique eminence that Miss Draper can claim as exclusively her own.

Hers is a peculiarly individualized form of artistry. She does not people the stage with an extensive gallery of invisible characters, but she does imbue the single personality she represents with a realism, a forcefulness and a dramatic integrity that are as inimitable as they are personally stylized and varied.

Miss Draper's character studies are not fleeting glimpses of bizarre and unfamiliar persons, but minutely accurate and comprehensive illuminations of types we know intimately from the casual contacts of the business of living. Yesterday's program embraced four major items, involving the depiction of many feminine figures and requiring, in all, six distinctly differentiated "scenes."

No Material Investiture.

One feels the necessity of quoting the word "scenes" because Miss Draper's sketches are unadorned by stage settings and are played without costume or makeup beyond the simple expedient of utilizing shawls of various hues and patterns to accentuate certain aspects of the characters being portrayed.

Miss Draper, incidentally, beyond any of her contemporaries in the field of one-person drama, makes pantomime and mobility of features a vital part of her performance. She is as dramatically eloquent when silent as in the intervals of her original character creations during which she makes use of speech as an index to personality.

But to revert to the vehicles in which this gifted artiste rekindled the Capital's enthusiasm over her distinctive capabilities yesterday, they were "Opening a Bazaar," "Three Generations in a Court of Domestic Relations," "Three Women and Mr. Clifford"—the private secretary, Mrs. Clifford in the motor car with her husband returning from the theater, and an evening at Mrs. Mallory's, understanding inamorate of a wealthy gentleman not too happily married—and "In a Church in Italy."

Something of the completeness with which these sketches have been written and are acted may be gathered from the fact that with two brief intermissions they comprised a program that filled almost three hours.

"Opening a Bazaar" is a deliciously comic recapitulation of an elderly member of the British aristocracy's going seriously about the business of performing an habitual charity. It is alive with humor, gentle satire and the garrulity of a woman who takes herself and her dedicatory speech a little more seriously than they deserve.

The Piece de Resistance.

"Three Generations in a Court of Domestic Relations" has to do with a 79-year-old grandmother, a 45-year-old mother and a 19-year-old daughter who have come to the parting of the ways, domestically. The third generation has been supporting the other two for a matter of three years and now she wishes to be married and take up a new life in the expansive acreages of the Far West.

Miss Draper's transition from old age to middle age and finally to ebullient youth in this subject is a marvel of sheer interpretative power, unaided by any of the customary tricks of makeup, costume or lighting. It would be my inclination to nominate this as the masterpiece of yesterday afternoon's widely variant and richly engrossing examples of authentic characterization.

"Three Women and Mr. Clifford" offers a triolgy of character studies that illuminate the character of Mr. Clifford quite as brilliantly as they do the personalities of Miss Nichols, his private secretary—and an extremely efficient one, by the way—Mrs. Clifford and Mrs. Mallory. Mrs. Clifford, quite deservedly, gets a bit the worst of it as one sums up the extended examination into the lives of these three people which Miss Draper has so cleverly and discreetly contrived.

"In a Church in Italy" is perhaps the most flexible of all the delightful sketches which Miss Draper included in yesterday's program. It blends humor, romance, clandestine love and the poignant tragedy of a repentant Magdalen in perfect proportions and irresistible pantomimic power. The last scene is wordless, but tremendously moving in the simple exposition of an exquisite anguish.

Yesterday afternoon's audience, which for the first half of the program included Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, was as demonstrative as it was obviously charmed by the versatility and dramatic vitality of a distinguished artiste. It was reminiscent of an earlier day in the theater that a sheaf of seasonable flowers was passed over the footlights to Miss Draper following the fall of the final curtain, when she easily could have taken twice as many curtain calls as she elected to accept before the house lights were flashed on.

Word comes to the dramatic desk that, having returned to New York, Daniel Frohman, president of the Actors Fund of America, to which the opening performance of the National Theater Players in "Accent on Youth" was dedicated last Sunday night, dropped in for an act and a half of the New York production of the play in the Plymouth Theater just to see how Panjandrum Cochran's troupe sizes up with the original. Mr. Frohman whispers confidentially that he thinks the performances here of Forrest Orr and Raymond Bramley both surpass the interpretations of the roles of the butler and the playwright being offered Broadway. That, take it or leave it, is high praise. "Uncle Dan" in such circumstances seldom makes a mistake.

Be On Time!

The Columbia Players especially request their subscribers and all others who will be in attendance tonight at their production of "Rope's End" in Pierce Hall, Fifteenth and Harvard streets northwest, to be present on time, as no one will be seated during the first 20 minutes of the play.

The Players explain that the action demands complete darkness in the auditorium and no interruptions during the opening scene. In consequence, the doors will be closed when the curtain rises at 8:30 and will remain closed until the end of the first scene.

This distinguished acting group has promised that "Rope's End" will prove one of the most unusual "horror" plays ever produced in the Capital. An all-star local cast has been assembled for its interpretation. The players will include Robert S. Miller, Richard Kreuzberg, S. Allen Foster, Bunnie Skinner, Dorothy M. White, B. A. P. Doehrer, George Edwards and Wade Robinson.

Jane Lasater Rubey has directed the production and designed the set against which it will be played. The play will be repeated tomorrow night.

Along with the other changes that are currently occuring in the matter of opening days for new pictures, the Belasco Theater seems to have shifted its inaugurals from Thursday to Saturday. Feodor Chaliapin, famous Russian barytone, will be seen for the first time on a local screen in the title role of "Don Quixote" at the Belasco on Saturday. In this subject, one of the most notable of the foreign importations to date, by all report, Chaliapin sings in English and acts with a finesse and understandability that are universal. If you have seen the "trailer" being shown on the Belasco screen you will have had a tantalizing foretaste of the excellence of this pretentious picturization of the Cervantes yarn.

A Friend Helps Out.

One who encountered Hope Ridings Miller, of the Woman's Department of this estimable family journal, at yesterday's matinee performance by Ruth Draper, could not but be the beneficiary of as close an approach to a personal interview as Miss Draper ever concedes. Miss Draper doesn't give interviews, being, for some inexplicable reason, averse to being quoted in the press. However, those who surround her in secretarial, advisory and other capacities sometimes let something slip.

So, during one of the entr'acte waits, my helpful associate disclosed that her backstage jaunt had revealed that Ruth Draper played Washington yesterday as a sort of stop-gap engagement between her recent visit with Mrs. Dwight Morrow in Mexico City and her impending season in London, where she always plays to capacity—which she should have done here yesterday, had Washingtonians remembered the superb artistry of the woman. There was an intermediary pause in Havana that shortened itself somewhat and left two open weeks to be filled. So Miss Draper elected to appear here at one matinee with that partial end in view.

Perhaps those well-known—I hope—dots and dashes will prove efficacious at this point.

Miss Draper is the granddaughter of the late Charles A. Dana and the daughter of a distinguished New York physician . . . Belongs to both the Hay and Adams families—which does not necessarily make her any relation to the Hay-Adams House . . . Was never "stage struck," in the usual sense . . . Began her present activity when called upon to do a "bit" at a Long Island house party and recalled having seen Beatrice Herford do one of her engaging character skits . . . Beatrice Herford was a sister of Oliver Herford and made brief vaudeville tours . . . Although she has "written" 35 sketches, Miss Draper never really writes them . . . That is to say, there are no scripts of her solo-dramas . . . And they are never played twice alike . . . Miss Draper "feels" her audience and varies her performances to coincide with the mood of those she encounters on the other side of the footlights . . . This probably explains the intense vitality of everything she does on the stage and its infallible appeal to an audience . . . Has only written two sketches that are based on fact . . . All the others are purely imaginative creations . . . Uses, as we have already remarked in the review of her performance, no makeup, no lighting and no costume changes . . . An "occasional piece" in the form of a shawl is the only material aid to realistic characterization . . . Is a diseuse and pantomimist of the first rank . . . And am I grateful to Mrs. Miller for having gone back and then given me the fruits of her expedition . . . I'll say I am!

More Vacations.

Audrey Sieber will have another week's vacation from the Earle Theater, according to an announcement made yesterday by Production Manager Guy Wonders. Gus Arnheim, who brings his orchestra and radio stars to the stage at the Earle on Friday, acts as master of ceremonies and presents his own show.

Herb Cook and his Three Little Words, Washington's newest favorites, also will be absent from the Earle, since Arnheim presents a complete revue. They will broadcast their weekly program on Monday night over WJSV, however, and will return to the Earle the following week to continue their stage appearances.

Sudden Realization Note.

So this is Wednesday—all day!

And that dratted broadcast in the middle of the night over WJSV at 12:15 p. m. (Adv.)

Postlude

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Twelfth annual festival of the Washington Pianists' Club; Calvary M. E. Church, Recitals Nos. 3 and 4 by Elizabeth Rankin King and Helene Finnacom. Miss King's program: "Little" Organ Fuque in G minor (Bach-Samarov), Sonata, Op. 10, No. 3 (Beethoven); "Edward" Ballade in D minor (Brahms), Pastorale (Dohnanyi), Tarantelle (Chopin), "Spanish Rhapsody" (Liszt). Miss Finnacom's program: Overture to twenty-ninth Church Cantata (Bach-Saint-Saens), second movement of Sonata, Op. 31, No. 1 (Beethoven); Nocturne in B major (Chopin), Concert Etude in Q flat major (Liszt), "Music Box" (Sauer), 'Feux d'Artifice" (Debussy), third movement of Concerto in B flat minor (Scharwenka). Concerto orchestral parts played by Fanny Amstutz Roberts and LaSalle Spier.

Appearing as a new active member of the Washington Pianists' Club, Elizabeth King displayed considerable keyboard fluency of an unemphatic quality. To use an oratorical metaphor, her musical speech flows a little too evenly over the points of her discourse, with insufficient stress on the significant words and too mild an inflection of the rhetorical phrases. Her playing is agreeable but unexciting, and one feels that she is withholding personal emotions which she would do well to release.

This reticence, amounting almost to emotional quiesence, made some of her readings curiously pale in character. Beethoven, through her fingers, was but a shadow of himself, and the rondo of his sonata sounded as though it might have been written by Czerny. One missed the somberness of tragedy in the "Edward" ballade of Brahms, and the Chopin tantelle seemed a study in perpetual motion, the whirling of the dance without its frenzy.

There was more inner vitality in the Liszt rhapsody, although the rhythmic accents were not marked strongly enough to evoke the Hispanic illusion. While Miss King has a sound technical basis, she should put more personality in her tone and lose herself more completely in the music.

In the matter of interpretation, Miss Finnacom was a more voluable and expressive player, not always revealing the full content of the compositions but striving toward that end. She, too, left the essential passion of Beethoven undisclosed, and her reading of the sonata movement held no glow in its heart. Her finger technique is dextrous and her phrasing has clarity. Her range of dynamics needs extension, for she relies too much on lightness of touch, a pleasant thing in itself but only a part of pianistic eloquence.

Danville, Va., May 1.—An air tour by State authorities is planned early in June to visit all State airports receiving Federal appropriations for improvements, Ivor Massey is planning the tour which will require 3 days and in which it is tentatively proposed to have 30 Army, Navy and commercial planes.

Hollywood

By Sidney Skolsky

Author . . . Author.

Hollywood, May 1.

THE movies, despite the number of big name authors they lure to Hollywood, can not hope to compete with the stage until they can compensate the writer, to a degree, as the stage does. All the movies offer a writer is money. You may ask, "Isn't this enough?" Authors are vain. They desire applause and prestige, and the respect of the critics and their fellow writers. The movies give few, very few, this opportunity.

The result is that the big-time writers come to Hollywood, and if they get an idea while here they save it. They don't give it to the pictures. They hide away and do a play. Here are a few hasty examples: Samson Raphaelson was and is under contract to Fox. He got an idea for an original, and hurried to Broadway with "Accent on Youth." The movie producers quickly acquired respect for him. Paramount purchased the play for $51,000.

• • • •

Norman Krasna worked for Metro and several other companies, doing the usual rewrite tasks. He did write the fine original, "The Richest Girl in the World," but when he got a notion which could be fashioned into a play he looked eagerly toward Broadway. His "Small Miracle" was submitted to stage producers, not screen producers . . . Robert E. Sherwood worked on an assignment at Metro for $2,500 a week; S. N. Behrman is at the factory now—but the ideas they got were quickly converted into plays . . . Maxwell Anderson wrote the screen play, "Washington Merry-Go-Round," several years ago. He felt the main idea of that flicker was too good to be wasted. He took the same idea and wrote "Both Your Houses," and won the Pulitzer Prize. The stage supplies an author with other rewards besides money.

• • • •

IT IS from this angle that the flicker, "The Scoundrel," is one of the most important talking pictures yet produced. It is the white hope of the screen writers, for Ben Hecht and Charlie MacArthur are fighting the battle of the film writer on film. After the studio preview of this picture, a group of Paramount executives could be heard saying: "It's a fine picture, a great picture—but will it make money?" Every writer in Hollywood is rooting for the success of "The Scoundrel," for it means a chance of the writer coming into his own. Of having something to say concerning the filming of his story. I know, personally, of an instance where an author wasn't permitted to come to a story conference because they were discussing his story.

• • • •

On the credit slide on the screen there often appears the names of four or five writers, but that really doesn't tell the number of authors who work on that script. The rules, and perhaps the lack of space, forbid the naming of the rest. When many writers have contributed additional dialogue and special sequences they actually flip a coin to see which one will get screen credit. The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences publishes a bulletin which lists the names of all the writers who worked on the finished scenario. This is strictly for the trade, for producers judge authors by the amount of screen credits they have. It would surprise you to know how many writers it takes to prepare a bad picture.

TO GIVE you an idea, let us take a little program picture called "After Office Hours," with Clark Gable and Constance Bennett. On the screen you were told that the screen play was by Herman J. Mankiewicz. But the Academy Bulletin, trying to give credit where it is due, states: "Other main participants: Laurence Stallings, Dale Van Every. Contributors: To treatment: Howard Emmett Rogers, Robert Hopkins. The dialogue: Robert Hopkins, Ethel Borden, Joseph L. Mankiewicz." . . . Another is "Love in Bloom." The screen credit read: "Original screen play by Frank R. Adams. Adaptation by J. P. McEvoy and Keene Thompson. Additional dialogue by John P. Medbury. In addition, there were contributions made by these writers: Louise Long, Mary Flannery, Virginia Vann Upp, Harlan Thompson, Charles Brackett, Laurie Brazee and Frank Partos."

It is no wonder that the screen writer seldom boasts or is proud of the work he does for the movies. He doesn't get the opportunity to do a complete job and be an individual.

• • • •

The best method of writing for the screen that a few smart producers now favor is to allow an author to work on and discuss the story with the director. Then, both the writer and the director can know what they are doing. This is the Frank Capra-Robert Wiskin method. It was also employed by Director Van Dyke and Writers Albert Hackett and Frances Goodrich for "The Thin Man." A more recent example is the fine picture, "The Informer," where one writer, Dudley Nichols, worked with the director, John Ford. Hecht and MacArthur worked with their director-cameraman, Lee Garmes. But in all these instances, one writer, or a pair, were allowed to write the screen play. The authors were permitted to have something to say about the story. Hecht and MacArthur, who produced their own story, are the bold example and experiment.

Bolton and Powell Star as Nats' 3 Runs in Ninth Beat Yanks, 7-6

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich

New York, May 1.

PEOPLE are beginning to talk about the Braddock-Baer fight . . . the Garden's build-up of Braddock has begun, with the publicity force letting it be known slyly that Baer is having trouble with soft hands . . . despite the fact that Baer is having no trouble with his hands . . . it is a bad match, and the Garden knows it . . . Mike Jacob's Louis-Carnera bout the same month will draw double at the gate . . . even with no title at stake . . . the best show in town is the circus at the Garden . . . when they shoot that fellow out of the cannon it is tops in the mad search for a thrill.

MAX BAER.

The Yankees don't know whether they miss Babe Ruth or not . . . their attendance for the first ten home games was higher this year than in any of the past ten seasons . . . but there's always the chance that Ruth's presence might have sent it soaring still more . . . baseball's big noise here is the series between the Giants and the Dodgers . . . the games with Brooklyn are raising hod with the attendance at the Nats-Yankees series . . . Casey Stengel and Bill Terry hit it off like the cobra and the mongoose . . . those pictures showing them posing together at the last winter meeting were phonies . . . they refused to pose, but smart photographers dragged Walter Johnson into the picture, prevailed upon Terry and Stengel to pose with Johnson and then cut Johnson off the end of the picture.

Bill Tilden's tennis troupe is holding forth here again . . . but the attendance has hit a sharp decline since the German Hans Nusslein was substituted for the sick Lester Stoeffen . . . seems some New York people don't like anything that smacks of Hitler, particularly as a box-office attraction . . . up in Binghamton the troupe was forced to cancel an engagement because the advance sale didn't cover the breakfast tips . . . Tilden walked out on Gov. Lehman after five minutes' conversation.

Lew Tendler, the former Philadelphia lightweight contender, who beat Jack Dempsey into the restaurant business by a couple of years, visited Dempsey's place today . . . he laughed about the time he had Benny Leonard almost knocked out at Boyle's 30 acres in the eighth round and let Leonard talk him out of the fight . . . he had Benny down twice for no counts when the champ came up off the floor smiling and said, "You're getting too fresh. I'm going to knock you out in the next round" . . . Tendler became cautious and Leonard stayed the route to save his title.

Dempsey is on duty daily at his eating place across from the Garden on Eighth avenue . . . he's the original well-met guy, the perfect host, glad handing the yokels and bantering with his friends . . . 17 years in the big time have knocked the rough edges off Dempsey and given him polish . . . his associations have done wonders for him . . . as has been the case with other sports headliners, notably Babe Ruth, Max Baer and Bucky Harris, who have acquired a certain polish from intellectual friends . . . the big shot who has profited least from his experiences in the big time of sports is Lefty Grove . . . he came into the big leagues as a Maryland farmer lad and has been holding his own ever since.

Tom Zachary, the only Quaker in the big leagues, was a visitor at the Nats' hotel today . . . Ossie Bluege and Bucky Harris are the only Nats remaining with the team which Zachary helped to pitch to pennants in 1924 and 1925 . . . Zachary was tabbed as through when the Nats released him on waivers seven years ago . . . the other day he won his first start of the season for the Braves.

New York turf writers are trying to brand the Wood Memorial as the equivalent of the Kentucky Derby as a racing test . . . thus, they are touting Whitney's Today as a cinch to win the Derby . . . all things considered, the fillies' record on the Derby is not too bad, despite the fact that only one filly has won the classic . . . since it was inaugurated 60 years ago, only 20 fillies have been entered in the race, compared to 580 colts . . . Col. Bradley still offers 5 to 1 that no filly will win the Derby, despite the fact that Nellie Flag's odds are 4 to 1 . . . 46 per cent of the Derby favorites have won the race.

Jake Weber, Fordham's veteran trainer, predicts that the mile will be run in 4 minutes 4 seconds . . . but that Cunningham will never do it . . . Nurmi could have done it, Weber believes, if he had concentrated on the mile run . . . Lefty Gomez is the cut-up of the Yankees' locker room . . . he's moaning about the fact he has not made a hit yet this season . . . normally his batting average is .072 . . . two years ago Lefty Grove knocked the bat out of Gomez's hand and the ball bounced into short right field for a two-base hit that won the ball game.

Baer 8-1 to Beat Braddock; Loafing Seen His Only Danger

By Paul Gallico.

A Special Correspondent.

NEW YORK, May 1.—The current quotation on World's Champion Baer to beat Child-of-Fortune-Braddock is 8 to 1, which gives you an idea of the forthcoming title fight and its probabilities. But I wouldn't be surprised if there weren't a deputation of the gentlemen laying the eight coconuts visiting Asbury Park, N. J., pretty soon for the purpose of setting Mr. Baer on some sort of a scales.

There has been no accurate weigh-in of Mr. Baer since the night he demolished Carnera, not quite a year ago, and when you see him in his pictures he looks a little porky around the jowls. If it were to develop that the young man suddenly weighed in the neighborhood of 230 pounds or more there might be a sudden rush to reduce the number of coconuts that might be earned by betting on Braddock.

I heard Baer over the radio the other night and even his voice sounded a little obese. I am going to visit Mr. Baer myself as soon as I return from the Kentucky Derby and remind him that his old friend and bridge opponent, Col. Gallico, is kind of out on a limb for him.

As the crow flies, Baer has exactly six weeks to get in shape for his so-called fight with Braddock. This is sufficient time if he works at it. The only danger I can see is that Baer may loaf to such an extent that he won't be able to climb the ladder leading into the ring. If I can just get him up there and in shape to let one punch go at James I think everything will be all right.

But if the stories I hear are true, there is a chance that he won't be able to get up those steps to let the punch go. It seems to be up to the gentlemen laying the coconuts and to myself to see that he at least runs up and down a couple of flights of stairs in Asbury every day. I do not think that is too much to ask. Even if he starts to fall over when he squares off in the ring he can hit Braddock one clout on the way down and win.

I am afraid that these opinions of mine will be regarded as insulting to the powers of James J. Braddock. This I regret, but that is the way of opinions. I think Jimmy is a swell kid and a good stiff puncher, as game as they come. But also I think that he is fighting out of his class in weight, punching power, speed and skill.

Nobody ever has hit him as hard to chin or body as Baer will hit him. And there is always the chance he has to knock Baer into my lap, or somebody else's lap, then lean over the ropes and give vent to insulting noises. They say there is no sweeter sensation.

It would thrill me to see the underdog come through, even if it made a mugg of me. I have been such a mugg before, and often, but the thrills that come to one when one sees a topheavy favorite, reeling around the ring and finally collapse for the full count come few and far between.

But I vision this brawl as a rather desolate affair and one that will give but little pleasure to the customers.

Gomez Fails To Hold Off Uprising

Catcher's Tap Drives In Two Markers; Mate's Gets Winning Hit.

Tamulis 'Blows Up' and Bows Out in Battle of Pilots' Wits.

By Shirley L. Povich.

A Staff Correspondent.

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, May 1.—The first of the month saw the Nats meet their obligations and avoid being wiped out in the three-game series here with a rousing three-run, ninth-inning rally that offset a two-run deficit and jolted the Yankees out of the ball game.

Little Cliffy Bolton, whose fielding sins are overlooked because of the power that reposes in his bat, was present in the grand manner today, and it was his slugging that lifted the Nats to their 7-6 victory.

Out of a situation knee deep in managerial strategy evolved a sizzling single to center field by Bolton that averted the final out and drove across the two runs necessary to reprieve the Nats from defeat. Victory came a half minute later when Jake Powell, the local boy who is making good, smashed a screaming double into left field to score the decisive run.

The game went strategic in the ninth when Vitatutas Casimirus Tamulis, the Yankee pitcher with a name like a rug merchant, and a wind-up like a cross between a Dutch windmill and an Indian club Kansas twister as the Nats made act, blew up like a parasol in a their first motions toward tying the score.

Malone Takes Mound.

The upshot of it all was that Acting Manager Art Fletcher of the Yankees sent in Pat Malone to pitch to one batter, and then entrusted Lefty Gomez, the big shot of the Yankee staff, with the final out as Manager Bucky Harris produced his fifth pinch hitter of the game.

It was against the left-handed Gomez that the equally left-handed Bolton smacked out his fourth hit of the game, the single that tied the score, and it was against Gomez that Powell slapped his game-winning double into left field.

Little Leon Pettit, starting his first game in the big leagues, had departed the scene in the eighth inning, but Tamulis, a Newark graduate, had manifested no signs that he was not in control of the situation—until the ninth.

There was no undue concern among the scant 2,000 in the stands when he walked Buddy Myer to commence the inning, especially when Ossie Bluege contributed the first out with a grounder to Rolfe, but when Tamulis walked Heinie Manush to place the tying run on base, Fletcher deduced correctly that he was weakening.

Fletcher inserted the veteran right-hander Pat Malone, to pitch to the right-handed Red Kress, and Bucky Harris met this move by inserting the left-handed Johnny Stone to pinch hit. Fletcher and Malone won when Stone lofted a harmless fly to left field for the second out.

But when the Nats' fifth pinch

J. Dean Checks Reds; Cards Win, 5-2

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, May 1. — Dizzy Dean held down the Reds until it was too late for them to catch up and the Cardinals made it two out of three in the series by defeating Cincinnati, 5 to 2, today.

Dizzy limited the Reds to three hits until the eighth, when he weakened enough to walk two in a row and grant a double, but pulled through in the ninth after Byrd tripled and Kampouris singled him in.

Saved during early wildness by the Reds' twenty-third double-play of the season, Si Johnson was hit freely after Medwick broke the ice with a homer in the fourth.

Eligibles for Derby End Severe Training

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 1.—The few chosen thoroughbreds considered worthy to start in the sixty-first running of the Kentucky Derby ended severe training periods today, leaving high hopes and heartbreaking disappointments among owners of 110 original nominees announced two months ago. Only two days remain before the big race at Churchill Downs Saturday.

C. V. Whitney's brown colt, Today, loomed as probable post time favorite. He breezed a mile and one-eighth in 1:55 1-5, and then galloped out the remaining eighth of the mile and a quarter derby route in 2:08 4-5.

Trainer Jack Healey's only observation was, "Today's done everything we've asked of him and done it easily."

Chance Sun Out.

Another splendid colt, Joseph E. Widener's Chance Sun, beat a sad retreat back to Elmendorf farm in the Bluegrass, a victim of what was believed to be a ringbone. His owner said positively Chance Sun, the winter book favorite, would not start in the derby.

Col. E. R. Bradley's Boxthorn furnished what trained observers said was the standout effort of the pre-Derby training grind at Churchill Downs, a spin today over the full Derby route of a mile and a quarter in 2:06 4-5. "Derby Dick" Thompson, trainer for the Idle Hour Farm, appeared satisfied that Boxthorn measured up to Col. Bradley's specifications for a Derby winner—ability to stay in the running and cover the last quarter in 25 seconds. Boxthorn's last quarter of the workout was run in exactly that time. Jockey Don Meade was up, and kept a snug hold on his mount until he had reached the mile in 1:41 4-5.

Plat Eye Goes Route.

Plat Eye, from the Greentree Stable of Mrs. Payne Whitney, also went the full Derby route. Jockey Silvio Coucci had the leg on the Chesapeake winner as he breezed the 10 furlongs in 2:10.

Bartell Stars As Dodgers Bow, 8-3

By the Associated Press.

BROOKLYN, May 1.—With great sighs of relief, but amid the deepest of Brooklyn gloom, the Giants finally crowned their jinx today, beating Casey Stengle's Dodgers, 8 to 3, for the first time since the Flatbush Fusiliers knocked them out of the 1934 pennant last fall.

Brooklyn's faithful did their part to attend—18,000 of them all told—filling the air with raucous cries, torn paper and the smoke and boom of big cannon crackers, known locally as Brooklyn greeting cards. But it was no use. The athletes couldn't hit Leroy (Bud) Parmelee for anything much but home runs, the Giants hit the Brooklyn hurlers for just as many, and lots of other things besides, and so the three-game series was all evened at one each. The Giants were farther ahead in first place, and to their great joy will escape from here, possibly with all their arms and legs, holding at least a half-interest in the league lead, no matter who wins the third game tomorrow.

Tribe Boosts Lead; Routs Sox, 11-5

Pound Sad Sam Jones as Hudlin Takes Thir-' Game of Year.

Averill Leaves Slump, Amasses Three Hits, Including Homer.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, May 1.—The Cleveland Indians strengthened their grasp on first place in the American League today by scalping the Chicago White Sox, 11 to 5.

The Tribesmen drove Sad Sam Jones from the mound in the fifth inning. He had yielded nine hits that produced eight Cleveland runs. Willis Hudlin went the route for the Indians, allowing eight hits in chalking up his third straight victory.

Earl Averill hit his first home run of the season for Cleveland, and Hal Trosky knocked out his fourth. After scoring three runs in the third inning the Indians worked a double steal, Hale scoring for the fourth run of the frame.

Hudlin had one bad inning, the sixth, when the Sox combined four singles with a helpful wild throw by Hale to score four runs. In the ninth inning, Shea's grounder bounced over Berger's shoulder for a single, Appling scoring the fifth Chicago run.

Averill, who had been in a batting slump, pounded out a double and a single in addition to his home run.

By winning, the Indians put themselves a game and a half ahead of the second-place Chicago team.

Workman Rides Triple, Including Ladfield in Pimlico Feature

ores Over Identify; Daily Double Pays Bettors $50.10.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md., May 1.—"Sonny" Workman, the Washington jockey who is warming up to ride C. V. Whitney's Today in Saturday's Derby, wiggled the kinks out of his legs and arms here today as he played a prominent part in Ladfield's victory over Identify by a head margin. The occasion was the running of the feature race, the Pimlico Graded Handicap, class A, and it afforded chills and thrills to the backers of both horses as Workman and Sammy Renick rode head and head through most of the stretch drive.

As it should be, the winner was the favorite at a $4.90 mutuel. Workman's presence in the saddle, as well as Ladfield's excellent record, was the lure for the chief money. This was Workman's second winner of the day, the Capital rider having jogged to the wire with Grand Slam in the previous race.

Rides Third Straight.

Workman rode his third straight winner in the seventh race, bringing Zay to the wire in front of Dancing Cloud and Currants.

While there was not a concerted rush for daily double tickets, there was a steady play, and when the windows closed and the cash had been counted, it was determined that $14,164 had been sent to work. The winning combination, Gilt, in the first race, and Miss Snow, in the third race, rewarded the faithful with a $50.10 pay-off.

The crowd was an improvement over yesterday. Some 8,000 were out today, out to see the sport run over a fast track. Both favorites and long-shot players had their innings.

As far as the No. 1 position in the feature was concerned, it was a two-horse race with Ladfield and Identify fighting it out. Identify, carrying the Vanderbilt colors, had the lead approaching the stretch turn, but Workman brought Ladfield up in the straightaway and the real battle began.

Gilt proved a bright spot for those who wagered in the first race, and scored another victory for the popular Vanderbilt forces. Ridden by Johnny Bejshak, Gilt made every post a winning one and paid a $12 mutuel. Flaming Swords, a first-time starter from the Glen Riddle Farm, was always second. Festoon was third, from a ragged beginning. The race was run in the mediocre time of 0:56 flat.

Spinach Is Winner.

Spinach, the aged gelding which has been earning his way around Maryland race tracks for years, gave a splendid exhibition in taking the day's steeplechase from a field of a dozen jumpers and would-be jumpers. Spinach's odds mounted rapidly and he paid $22.50. For the steeplechase Mr. R. McKinney, the gentleman rider, was second. He was aboard Nesconset. Teakwood was third. W. Tracey, who rode Senador to victory here on the opening day, was one of the two riders to hit the grass. He tumbled off Capstan and J. Gilt did the same from the back of Luckite. Spinach had the lead after the third fence and was capably piloted by the dusky C. Brooks.

Miss Snow, one that couldn't get out of her own way at Havre de Grace, defeated the favorite, Bright Bird, in the third race. At that, Miss Snow had to get some help from Apprentice Lindberg, who rode Bright Bird. The boy pulled the gelding back to third at the head of the stretch, came again and then let his mount bear out, losing the race by a nose. Yellow Metal was third from far back. The winner paid $10.70.

J. Yancey Christmas, of the Marlboro Christmases, saw his Rough Party win the fourth race in a driving finish from Red Badge. Spixi was third in the field of eight. Sun Erwin, installed the favorite, was nowhere in particular. The unfashionable Sidney Trenchard rode the winner, which paid $24.50.

Triolet, at 10 to 1, hung on long enough to offset the closing rush of Zembla as horses trained by the Christmas brothers finished first and second in the final. Hereward was third.

Gilt Sparkles at Pimlico in Winning Opening Race

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Gilt, the A. G. Vanderbilt entry, held on gamely through a gruelling stretch drive to win the first race for maiden 2-year-old fillies yesterday at Pimlico. The winner is shown leading Flaming Swords by a length crossing the finish line. Festoon was third.

At the Post . . .

with Bill Bennings.

Dear Al,

Although the play on the daily double reached $14,164 today, the wagering on the twin bet has not come up to the expectations of track officials. It isn't hard to find the cause of this situation. One has but to note the caliber of races that are offered for the double. Generally, a very uncertain juvenile test and a cheap claiming race are placed in the "double" positions on the program. Tomorrow, for instance, Maryland bred 2-year-olds of the cheapest sort and a field of unreliable sprinters are offered the fans. These are not the kind of events that race goers can play with any feeling of confidence. That is why many pass up the "double." Today, the combination of Gilt and Miss Snow paid less than a parlay. Bobby Merritt may ride Morpluck in the Derby. Many of the boys who seldom get mounts will be seen in action here Friday and Saturday while most of the stars are at the Kentucky classic. "Skinny" Fallon is the most improved rider at this track. Star Porter, the horse that habitually finishes second, is not a quitter. Elmer Trueman, the Washington trainer, says he is game to the core. Small and sore feet are Star Porter's trouble and each time the horse runs, he comes back to the stable aching with pain. It's like running on two stone bruises, says Trueman.

BILL.

First race—Maryland bred juveniles will compete in the day's opener and they are a very bad lot. Balcony, a solid-working filly, seems to have the edge. In Front and Challephen for the place, and show. This is a good race to watch, unless you just must get a wager on the daily double.

Second race—Old Bachelor has schooled well for this test over the fences and I understand that an effort will be made to get him home a winner. Gaston and Cold Punch, the last named a stablemate of Old Bachelor, should complete the money circle.

Third race—Army Game is a cheap thing at best, but he may find this field to his liking. Can pack a punch in the stretch when the money is down. Star Chase's last was a beaut and this is the one to beat. Justa Jones was played heavily last out and might have been short.

Fourth race—Vee Eight failed in his first Maryland test but this is another day and another track. Was shipped here for a killing and might get it tomorrow providing the price is right. Good Cheer and Bull Fighter to take care of the others.

Fifth race—Tartan Betsy gets in this with feather weight. A mighty shifty miss with a Maryland win to her credit. Retribution came in for a close watching last out and this cheap one might surprise with a shift in riders. Fluffy Lee, beaten a nose last out, is dangerous.

Sixth race—Hug Again gets a nice break in the weights and Georgie Watson to do the piloting. I expect no mistakes. War Stripes must be respected off that last, Dokas has been running into shape.

Seventh race—Frederick is among the also eligibles for this. Will be home if he sees action. Bonsoir and O'Neill for the rest. Clocker Mike favors the last named.

Eighth race—Popo, Brains and Flight of Gold is the way I prefer them in the last. Flight of Gold is better than rated and a possible surprise.

Molloy Trims Burton, 4 and 2, to Win East Potomac Title

Golf Victory Is His First Since '32

Ex-Municipal Champion Only Three Over Par for 16 Holes.

By Dave Herman.

GEORGE MOLLOY, the little fellow whose golf in the East Potomac spring tournament has been as hot as his red hair, yesterday defeated Bobby Burton, 4 and 2, to win the championship—his first victory since he won the District municipal title three years ago.

Two over fours and three over par for the 16 holes the match lasted, the 22-year-old Molloy, a brewer, pumped out the full alcoholic contents from his golf sticks to stop Burton in the finals.

Molloy was in rare form in his morning match with Bob Leapley, winning handily, 5 and 4, and needing par on the last four holes for a 70. Burton, conqueror of Herman Allen and Claude Rippy in overtime battles Tuesday, eliminated Charlie Beall, 6 and 4, without so much as exerting himself.

Burton's Game Off.

Burton's fine approaching and putting that saved him in his first and second round matches failed to click against Molloy on the back nine. Meanwhile, Molloy plodded along methodically, driving straight and true, holding the green well with his approaches and putting up to standard.

Burton won the first hole with a par, and then halved the next six holes, the fifth in birdie 4s and the seventh in bird deuces. Molloy almost reached the 348-yard eighth green in one blow, and played safely for his par 4 and a win. They rounded the turn all-even, both having 36s.

Loses Tenth, Wins Eleventh.

Molloy lost the tenth to par golf, won the eleventh when Burton was short in 2 and failed to pitch close, took the twelfth with a par 5 to a 6, the thirteenth with a par 3 to go 2 up.

On the fifteenth, Burton went haywire with his third shot and George took the hole with a 5. Molloy ended the battle on the sixteenth by sinking a 10-footer for a par 4 to beat Burton's 5.

Par out	4	3	5	3	5	4	3	4	4—35
Molloy out	5	4	5	3	4	5	3	4	4—36
Burton out	4	4	5	3	4	5	2	5	4—36
Par in	4	4	5	3	4	4	3	4	4—34—69
Molloy in	5	4	5	3	4	4	3	x	x
Burton in	4	5	6	4	4	6	3	x	x

Results:

First Flight.

George Molloy defeated Bob Leapley, 5 and 4; Bobby Burton defeated Charlie Beall, 6 and 4; Molloy defeated Burton, 4 and 2.

Second Flight.

P. R. Phenix defeated Cleve Miller, 1 up; Pat Axtell defeated Lee Madison, 3 and 1; Phenix defeated Axtell, 1 up.

Third Flight.

Tom Blunt defeated B. Milner, 3 and 2; Al Holmes defeated Joe Alkons, 5 and 4; Holmes defeated Blunt, 2 and 1.

Hard Work Ends For Derby Hopes

garded as a "dark horse," stepped a mile in 1:39 3-5 very handily and galloped out the extra quarter in 2:08 1-5. Trainer Alex Gordon said he was immensely pleased with the workout, and that Jockey Paul Keester was on the way from Texas to ride his charge. The Bulldog colt's fractionals were 0:23 3-5, 0:47 1-5 and 1:13.

Mrs. Charles Hainsworth's Blackbirder was put down as a "sleeper," when, under guidance of her husband jockey-trainer, the Bostonian colt breezed 10 furlongs in 2:08 handily.

Omaha Works Out.

Omaha, William Woodward's hope to repeat the 1930 victory of Gallant Fox, breezed a mile and an eight in 1:55 4-5 and galloped out the additional furlong in 2:10. J. H. Louchheim's Morpluck rattled off a mile in 1:40 2-5 and pulled up a mile and an eight in 1:54.

Roman Soldier was not called upon for a speed trial today, nor were Nellie Flag, sensational filly, and Whiskolo, winner of yesterday's preparation race over a field of lesser Derby eligibles. Jouett Shouse's Weston was reported ready for withdrawal, after disappointing trials this week.

Richmond U. Netmen Defeat Roanoke, 7-2

Richmond, Va., May 1 (AP).—University of Richmond netmen lost only one match in a tennis tournament with Roanoke College here today and defeated the Maroons, 7 to 2. The second Maroon tally was a forfeited doubles encounter.

The summary:

Dickinson (Richmond), beat Deane (Roanoke), 6—2, 6—2; Chalmers (Richmond), beat Holt (Roanoke), 6—4, 6—3; Ruding (Richmond), beat Muse (Roanoke), 7—5, 6—2; Brown (Richmond), lost to Glass (Roanoke), 6—3, 5—7, 6—3; Norfleet (Richmond), beat Shackleford (Roanoke), 6—4, 6—2; Leitch (Richmond), beat Spinney (Roanoke), 6—1, 6—2.

Doubles—Dickinson and Chalmers (Richmond), beat Dean and Holt (Roanoke), 3—6, 6—2, 6—2; Ruling and Brown (Richmond), forfeited to Spinney and Glass (Roanoke); Fonda and Leitch (Richmond), beat Shackleford and Husse (Roanoke), 6—4, 3—6, 15—13.

Cumberland Pitcher Signed by Reds' Farm

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., May 1.—William "Boots" Miller, youthful southpaw twirler of this city, has gone to Cincinnati, to join the Monessen, Pa., baseball club of the Pennsylvania State Association, which opens a ten-day spring training grind at Crosley Field, home of the Cincinnati Reds, of the National League.

Frank Lane, who is director of the Cincinnati "chain store" system, ordered Miller to report. Monessen is one of the new "farms" acquired by the National League club.

Indian Spring Event Opens

35 Expected to Compete in Tourney; Houghton Drives 15th Green.

PLAY in the Tribal Bowl golf tournament, considered next in importance to the club championship, will begin Saturday at Indian Spring Country Club. Leroy Sasscer is the defending titleholder.

The tournament is restricted to players with handicaps of 10 or less. There will be one week of qualifying over the 18-hole route. Match play will start May 11.

Al Houghton fired one of his titantic tee shots yesterday on the fifteenth or "punch bowl" hole at Kenwood, and the ball, hole high, stopped 15 feet from the pin. He missed his eagle, but got his birdie, and became the first to drive this 291-yarder this year.

Russ Hollebaugh, Bob Barnett, Chevy Chase pro, and Dick Lunn, former District titleholder, played with the Kenwood pro. Houghton and Barnett finished with a 72 each. Hollebaugh had a 76 and Lunn a 78.

Leopold Freudberg, Woodmont Country Club tournament chairman, announced that the course would be open Monday for practice rounds for the invitation event scheduled to start next Tuesday. Entries, closing tomorrow, should be made with the pro of entrant's home course or over phone at Bradley 647.

An Indian Spring quartet composed of Roger Peacock, his father, Harry C.; Tom Belshe and Jules Henderson, had a tune-up round yesterday.

A golf match at 1 p. m. to be followed by a meeting at 6 and dinner at 7, will feature next Monday's get-to-gether of the Mid-Atlantic Association of Greenkeepers at Belle Haven Country Club.

Indian Spring and Kenwood are favored to win Sunday's semifinals matches in the Maryland State team championship. Indian Spring will use an entirely different team than the one which walloped Argyle last week. Roger Peacock, Levi Yoder, Louis Fuchs, Volney Burnett, Craig McKee, Earl McAleer and Tom Belshe will be among the experienced golfers who will play. Chevy Chase won by a toss of the coin after being tied with Beaver Dam last week.

Kerkow Advances In Hot Springs Golf

Trims Anderson, Medalist; Has 72 to Rival's 75.

By the Associated Press.

Hot Springs, Va., May 1.—Spence Kerkow, of Washington and Lee, defeated Cy Anderson, medalist, in the quarter-finals of the Old Dominion Golf tournament here today.

Kerkow shot a 33 coming in to offset a 39 going out. His was 72, over par. Anderson had 75.

James O. Watts, W. and L., defeated Al Dollins, Covington, 2 and 1.

Fay Ingalls, Hot Springs, defeated C. C. Gibbs, Cleveland, 5 and 4, and R. G. Miller, Cleveland, won from Wilmer Allison by default.

In the semifinals tomorrow Kerkow will meet Watts and Ingalls will oppose Miller.

In the women's division, Mrs. Norman Holmes Bronxville, defeated Mrs. C. C. Gibbs, Cleveland, in the play-off for medalist this morning, 100 to 104.

Nats In West, Open Series Tomorrow

Play 3 Games in Chicago; Won Six, Lost Three on Eastern Trip.

By a Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, May 1.—With a record of six victories and three defeats to show for their swing around the Eastern sector of the league the Nats entrained tonight for their maiden trip through the West.

They face an off-day in Chicago tomorrow before launching a three-game series with the White Sox, and Manager Bucky Harris welcomes the respite for his pitchers.

In the East, Harris observed little that alarmed him as as far his preseason estimates of the pennant race are concerned. They encountered only one club—the Yankees—which looms as a serious pennant threat.

Both Unimpressive.

The Athletics and the Red Sox were about as impressive as a Boy Scout at a West Point dress parade. The A's proved conclusively that their pitching is not of championship caliber, and Connie Mack tipped off another weakness when he benched Alex Hooks, the rookie first baseman, for lack of hitting.

The Red Sox also have a first-base problem. Ellsworth Dahlgren, a fancy fielder, gave little indication that he can hit enough to stay in the big leagues.

Joe Cronin is still in need of a second baseman. Max Bishop's aging legs enable him to play only a few days a week, and thus the right side of Cronin's infield is a distinct liability. There also is the item of Lefty Grove, who is no nearer his true form than he was last year.

But the Yankees are tough, with Gomez, Ruffing and their young pitchers, Broaca, Murphy, Deshong and Tamulis. Rolfe is a fixture at third base and Lazzeri is in fine form at second. The Yanks, however, have but one sound outfielder, which is the fly in whatever ointment they happen to have.

Firemen Seek Game.

The Bethesda Firemen's baseball team want a game for Sunday. Manager John Murdock can be telephoned at Bradley 651 between 4 and 5 o'clock.

Rally by Red Sox Defeats A's, 8 to 6

Foxx's Wild Toss Costly; Hits Fifth Homer.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, May 1.—The Boston Red Sox won a see-saw game with the Athletics, 8 to 6, today. The defeat was the fifth straight for the Mackmen.

Boston, which used 20 men, including six pitchers, scored two runs in each of the last three innings to pull out with the decision. Rick Ferrell drove in the winning run with a single in the ninth and scored later on a wild throw by Jimmy Foxx.

Foxx hit his fifth home run of the season with one on base off Dusty Rhodes in the sixth. Roy Johnson hit for the circuit for Boston.

Donovan, Little Wolf In Mat Battle Tonight

JACK DONOVAN, of the rassling Donovans, will hold his coming-out party tonight at the Auditorium.

Y'see, Jack has been horsing around preliminary circles for a few months, but never has he entered that charmed group, which is the feature class. So impressive has the red-haired Irisher been in these "unimportant" scraps that Promoter Joe Turner has been deluged with requests to give him a top spot assignmet, just to see what he'd do.

Anything to oblige, said Turner, so he will present young Donovan to high society this evening through the medium of a one-fall main event with the notorious Chief Little Wolf. Even a respectable showing against the Navajo scalper would definitely establish Jackie as a dangerous matsmith.

This match will pit two of the most sensational holds of the whole rassle racket. Whereas Donovan has perfected a twist known as the Irish flip, the Little Wolf's forte is the Indian death lock.

The real star of the meet is, of course, Chief Little Wolf. Colorful, young, clean and intelligent, the Injun today stands as No. 1 contender for the world's heavyweight title. He has trounced nearly all the outstanding journeymen in the business, with the exception of Jim Londos.

And it isn't because the big, bad little Wolf is afraid of Jee-Mee. They were scheduled to grunt in unison recently out on the Coast. But Londos failed to show.

In a semifinal, youthful Eli Fischer, the Rutgers rough-houser, works the 45-minute route with Ed Meske, a local favorite.

Exhibitors' List For D. C. Show Increased

24 More Entries Received; 3-Day Meet to Open Next Thursday.

OFFICIALS of the National Capital Horse Show have received the entries of 24 additional exhibitors for the three-day meet to be held on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week at the local association's plant near Potomac, Md.

Among the leading members of the new group are Helen and Ruth Bedford, of Wynfromere Farm, Greens Farms, Conn., whose mounts will come here from Virginia, where they have been hunted throughout the recent fox hunting season.

Others Included.

Miss Paulina Longworth, daughter of Nicholas Longworth, late Speaker of the House of Representatives; Mrs. Margo Couzens Chewning and Miss Betty Couzens, daughters of United States Senator James A. Couzens, of Michigan; Maj. Wilfrid M. Blunt, M. F. H., Riding and Hunt Club, and his daughter, Mary F. Blunt, also are included.

Others are Robert Palmer, of Alexandria, Va.; F. Moran McConihe, Roger Bayly, of Upperville, Va.; Ernest L. Redman, of Middleburg, Edward Barker, of Warrenton; Morris S. Clarke's Clifton Farms at Orange, Va.; Misses Louise Herror, Evelyn Walker and Carolyn Wilkins, the Riding and Hunt Club; George P. Plummer, W. Frank Burrows, Mrs. D. N. Lee, of Middleburg; Russell L. Law and Willaim R. Padgett, of Baltimore.

Delaware Secretary.

Also in the new list is Miss Deborah G. Rood, secretary of the Wilmington (Del.) horse show, which will follow shortly after the National Capital.

The new exhibitors' mounts give the show nearly 600 entries, Hubbert R. Quinter, secretary and manager of the meet, said.

The Junior League of Washington, which annually sponsors the event, is planning a program of specialities for the show. Proceeds will be used to help defray the cost of the league's welfare work.

5-2-35

When Christianity was a young and much-misunderstood religion some of its adherents strangely interpreted its teachings to mean that the more they tortured their bodies the more they cleansed their soul. This belief, which is found in many other religions, was prevalent for 200 years of the Christian era, and even today some obscure sects practice self-torture and mutilation.

St. Bessarion seemed to regard sleep as a victory of the body over the soul—hence in his pious way he refused to lie down. For 40 years, it is recorded he stood erect. When he could no longer go without sleep, he leaned against a wall or other object and dozed. Other saints of the period found their religious expression in varied forms.

Strange as it seems, when the harpy eagle is cornered or injured it prefers to fight with its feet. The eagle turns over on its back, enabling it to use both of its powerful legs and its claws to defend itself. The harpy eagle is one of the biggest birds of prey, and carries off a young lamb with apparent ease.

Long before man learned to spin and weave fabrics he learned that closely matted hair would serve well as warm, pliable covering. According to one story, felt was accidentally discovered when ancients put loose wool in their sandals to ease their feet—the wool matted together to make felt.

Loudoun Open Horse Show Season

Dorothy M Wins Class for Hunter Hacks, Feature Unison Event.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

UNISON, Va., May 1.—Loudoun County's horse show season, opening here today with an exhibition for the benefit of the Unison-Bloomfield Community League, brought out some of the leading hunters from this section, many of which will be seen later on the Virginia and Maryland circuits. Leading exhibitors today were Mrs. John Hay Whitney, with 14 hunters; Peach Bros., with 5, and Jack Skinner, Benton Stables and the Wynfromere Farms, owned by the Bedford sisters.

Sharing honors in the hunter classes this afternoon were the entries of Mrs. Whitney, Peach Bros., and the Bedford sisters. Outstanding was the class for hunter hacks, which was well filled. Dorothy M., bay mare belonging to Peach Bros., easily took first place. She was well ridden by George Slater. Gloria Road, ridden by Dick Kirby, and Cypress de Beau, ridden by Blakly Lodge, both Whitney entries, were second and third.

The Bedford sisters, of the Wynfromere Farms, Conn., who are in this section for the horse show season this summer, made a good showing in their first exhibition in Virginia. Their winning hunters included Musketeer, which won both in the best hunter class and the touch and out; Woodfellow, first in the ladies' hunters, and Gray Arno, which also came in for a prize.

Two-horse team, any age—Llangollen Farm entry; mare and foal—first, Bess, C. E. Norman; Purcellville; second, Lady Mary, C. E. Norman; third, Pearl, C. E. Norman.

Heavy draft, 3-year-olds and over—First, Croquet, Llangollen Farm; second, C. E. Norman entry; third, Queen, Llangollen Farm.

Heavy draft stallion—Llangollen Farm.

Half-bred yearlings and half-bred 2-year-olds—First, Cherry Red, Llangollen Farm; second, Dorothy M. Peach Brothers, Upperville.

Half-bred 3 and 4-year-olds—First, Dorothy M. Peach Brothers; second, Own Up, Bedford Sisters, Middleburg; third, Cataract, Peach Brothers.

Half-bred mares—First, Dorothy M. Peach Brothers; second, Primrose, Clifton Simpson; third, War Maiden, Peach Brothers.

One and 2-year-old thoroughbreds—First, Nichols, Llangollen Farm; second, Culzen, Benton Stables; third, Squeaker, Llangollen Farm.

Three and 4-year-old thoroughbreds—First, Prince Carmen, Peach Brothers; second, Woodfellow, Bedford Sisters; third, Flight Night, Llangollen Farm.

Hunters, 4 years old or younger—First, Gloria Road, Llangollen Farm; second, Dorothy M. Peach Brothers; third, Woodfellow, Bedford Sisters.

Light and middleweight hunters—First, Jerico, Mrs. John Hay Whitney; second, Gloria Road, Mrs. Whitney; third, Elray Keno, J. T. Skinner.

Handicap class—First, Salterallo, Mrs. Whitney; second, Budget Boy, William Ziegler, Jr.; third, Memories Pride, Bedford Sisters.

Hunter hacks—First, Dorothy M. Peach Brothers ridden by Gearge Slater; second, Gloria Road, Mrs. Whitney, ridden by Dick Kirby; third, Cypress de Beau, Mrs. Whitney, ridden by Blakly Lodge.

Best hunter—Musketeer, Bedford Sisters, Middleburg; second, Sacrifice, Benton Stables, Middleburg; third, Gray Arno, Bedford Sisters.

Ladies' hunters—First, Woodfellow, Bedford Sisters; second, Gray Arno, Bedford Sisters; third, Spring Hope, Llangollen Farm.

Handy hunters—First, Salterallo, Mrs. Whitney; second, Sacrifice, Benton Stables; third, Cataract, Peach Brothers.

Touch and out—First, Musketeer, Bedford Sisters; second, Salterallo, Mrs. Whitney; third, Tom Collins, C. K. Green.

Ex-Stars Play Cumberland Nine June 5

Crawford and Marquard Among Old Timers in Line-Up.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

CUMBERLAND, Md., May 1.—Sam Crawford, Harry Hooper, Rube Marquard and a host of other diamond stars of a generation ago, now members of the Old Timers Baseball Club, of Philadelphia, will meet the Cumberland Colts here in an exhibition game under the arc lights June 5, it was announced today.

Jimmy Archer, hero of the 1910 world series, when he was the Chicago Cub's ace catcher, will help Jesse Orndorff and Sam Agnew behind the plate for the veterans.

Old Cy Young, about whose ability stories still abound, and Paul Zanhiser, Bob McGraw, Hap Collard and Rollo Maple will help Marquard with the pitching duties, while field berths will be filled by Bill Wambsganns, Larry Kopf, Mike Gazello and Rube Bressler.

Wambsganns made a triple play, unassisted, for Cleveland in the last world series the Indians participated in. Kopf formerly coached at Georgetown University, Washington.

Crawford, Bob Veach, Harry Hooper and Zach Wheat will play in the outfield.

Maryland Nine Winner Over Navy, 5-2

Willis and Merryman Hurl; Keller Leads Attack; Slams Homer.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 1.—With Keller, slugging center fielder, leading the attack with three singles and a home run in four efforts, the University of Maryland defeated Navy here today, 5 to 2. It was the first victory of the Terrapins over the Tars in several years.

Vic Willis, rangy hurler and all-around Maryland athlete, toiled a little more than six innings, retiring in favor of Marryman in the seventh after the Middies got to him for three hits that sent one runner home. Merryman, who went to his relief, was effective during the rest of the game. Griff Sexton, recognized as ace of the Navy mound artists, also went well for six sessions, the Old Liners pounding him for a trio of safeties to get one run in the seventh, and connecting for two more and as many runs in the eighth. It was in the latter frame that Keller made his circuit clout.

Aided by Error.

An error by Gadrow and Keller's single gave Maryland its first tally in the opening frame. The Middies countered with two hits and a lone tally in the same session. The opposing hurlers twirled in airtight fashion for the next five frames.

Roosevelt Stops Alexandria

District Nine Victorious, 12 to 11

MINUS the services of its star pitcher, Frank Baroni, Roosevelt High School scored one of the big upsets of the schoolastic season yesterday by outslugging Alexandria High to win, 12 to 11, on the Roosevelt diamond. Beaten in both its previous starts, Roosevelt was hardly expected to stop the unbeaten Twins, victors over Eastern and Central and winners of six straight games.

Displaying plenty of power with the stick, the Ruff Riders offset the loss of Speedball Baroni by capping a steady attack with a five-run assault in the seventh to put the game away.

Baroni, ill with German measles, will be unable to twirl in tomorrow's interhigh game against Central, but is expected to be in shape to pitch May 10 against Roosevelt. Yesterday's was the first baseball game ever played in the new Roosevelt Stadium.

Neely Goes Route.

With Roosevelt having virtually a one-man mound staff, Coach Leonard was forced to call on Jack Neely, versatile veteran third baseman, for the mound assignment. Although hit freely, yielding 15 blows, the converted infielder went the route, improving as the game progressed.

After both teams had opened with three runs apiece in the first frame, scoring continued intermittently, with Alexandria holding a 10-7 lead going into the last half of the seventh. Then Neely started a rally with a two-bagger. Thompson walked, Robertson doubled, Woodward singled, Bovello doubled and G. Coakley singled, and it was 12-10, with Roosevelt in the lead.

Neely gave up a run in the ninth, but checked the rally before further damage was done. Lee Fones and Brewer, of the Twins, connected for a homer apiece.

Fitzgerald Is Well Equipped To Manage Cherner Co. Nine

IT was an humble role for a former minor-league player, that of being employed as a batting-practice catcher for the seventh-place Washington team, but Joseph "Handsome" Fitzgerald never considered the job from this slant. He was well paid for the job. But he probably would have done it gratis, so much does he love the baseball game.

Undoubtedly many fine points of strategy and baseball observations were added to his general knowledge of the game, all of which makes Fitzgerald admirably suited to his present role as manager of the Cherner Motor Co. nine. The Cherner team is entered in The Post Association competition in the National City loop.

If its showing last Sunday against the strong Arlington club is any criterion of the Cherner outfit's strength, then it promises to play a prominent part in the scramble for championship honors. The Motor Nine shut out Arlington, 5 to 0, which is no mean feat. Most encouraging of all was the mid-season performance of its ace hurler, Heinie Newman, whom Manager Fitzgerald is counting on to bear most of the pitching burden.

Cherner Motor Co. makes its debut Sunday in the National City League against Murphy's 5 & 10 Store team. The following players have signed up on the Cherner roster: Henry Cohen, Nathan Miller, Milton Jacobson, Joe Hudson, James Cohn, Frank Carter, Claude Hill, Joseph Lee, Jake Fradin and Mike Scanlon.

Judge Robert E. Mattingly, No. 1 baseball fan of the District and president of The Washington Post Sandlot Baseball Association, will toss out the first ball to open the Industrial League Saturday on the North Ellipse. All Majestic players are requested to meet at Tenth and H streets northwest at 9 o'clock.

The champion Heurich Brewers and Gichner's Iron Works, the lone survivors of last year's industrial organization, will meet in the initial attraction, starting at 3:15 o'clock. Both teams boast a variety of minor league and college baseball talent in their line-ups and a real battle is anticipated. The Holy Comforter Band will enliven the pre-game ceremonies with popular selections.

Under the present rotating system the Industrial League games will be staged on the South Ellipse on Mondays, West Ellipse on Tuesdays, North Ellipse on Wednesdays, East Ellipse on Thursdays, and on the Heurich field on Fridays. The season's schedule follows:

First Half.

May 4—Heurich Brewers vs. Gichner Iron Works; 6, Washington Coal Co. vs. Gordons Cafeteria; 7, Heurich Brewers vs. Sanitary Grocery; 8, Gichner Iron Works vs. Gordons Cafeteria; 9, Heurich Brewers vs. Washington Coal Co.; 10, Southwest Market vs. Sanitary Grocery; 13, Gordons Cafeteria vs. Southwest Market; 14, Sanitary Grocery vs. Gichner Iron Works; 15, Southwest Market vs. Washington Coal Co.; 16, Gordons Cafeteria vs. Heurich Brewers; 17, Sanitary Grocery vs. Washington Coal Co.; 20, Gichner Iron Works vs. Southwest Market; 21, Sanitary Grocery vs. Gordons Cafeteria; 22, Washington Coal Co. vs. Gichner Iron Works; 23, Southwest Market vs. Heurich Brewers; 24, Heurich Brewers vs. Gordon Cafeterias; 27, Gordons Cafeteria vs. Washington Coal Co.; 28, Sanitary Grocery vs. Heurich Brewers; 29, Gordons Cafeteria vs. Gichner Iron Works; 30, Washington Coal Co. vs. Heurich Brewers; 31, Sanitary Grocery vs. Southwest Market.

Nats Nip Yanks On 3 Runs in 9th, 7-6

Bolton and Powell Stars as Gomez Fails to Hold Lead.

hitter, Joe Kuhel, appeared at the plate, Fletcher withdrew Malone and played his trump card, motioning Gomez from the bull pen in left field. Harris had run dry of pinch hitters and was forced to permit left-handed Kuhel to bat. Gomez eventually walked him.

Then it was that Bolton rescued the Nats from defeat and Powell sealed their victory.

The winning pitcher was Monte Weaver, who achieved his first triumph of the season. Weaver succeeded Pettitt and held the Yankees hitless during the last two innings, although he provided a thrill in the ninth when he muffed Joe Kuhel's toss to first on Saltzgaver's grounder with one out, bringing Gehrig to bat. But with two sensational stops of ground balls, Kuhel turned in the necessary last two outs with forceouts at second base.

Looking back, the Nats went down twice and came up three times today. The Yanks got a one run lead in the first inning with a bit of headwork by Bill Dickey who got his dome in the way of one of Pettit's pitches at a time when the bases were filled, and forced across a run.

The Nats tied the score at 1-1 in the third when Pettit drew a walk and got home on Buddy Myer's double and Manush's fly and they took a 3-1 lead in the third after Bolton banged a double to left field. A pair of walks to Lary and Pettit was followed by Myer's double to left that scored two runs.

For four innings Pettit had held the Yanks hitless but they caught up with him in the sixth when he showed more than a trace of wildness. After Rolfe had beat out a bunt, Pettit hit Selkirk on the arm and a run was scored on Gehrig's single to right. Then when Pettit tried to pick Gehrig off first base, and threw the ball past Kress, Selkirk scored from third. Dickey walked and the Yanks had four runs for the inning and a 5-3 lead when Lazzeri larruped a double to right center.

The Yanks tacked on another run in the seventh and thus Tamulis owned a 6-3 lead which the Nats reduced to 6-4 in the eighth when Hill's two base error followed Bolton's single to left. Then, of course, came the ninth, and you know what happened.

Randolph-Macon Downs Episcopal

Nips Ninth-Inning Rally to Triumph, 9 to 7.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Alexandria, Va., May 1.—Randolph-Macon Academy nipped a ninth-inning rally and defeated Episcopal High, 9-7, this afternoon on Hoxton Field. The visitors were outhit, 10-9, but capitalized on two home runs, a triple and seven errors to turn in the winning margin.

In Episcopal's half of the ninth, two men reached first and second, respectively, by virtue of a pair of singles, and after Hooff had struck out, Wallace walked to fill the bases.

At this point Watson, Randolph-Macon's starting pitcher, who had been chased from the mound in the seventh inning, was recalled from first base. He made a great comeback by forcing Bell to pop out to Stone at first and then ended the game by fanning Royall.

Giants Rout Jinx, Conquer Dodgers

Giants thus ended at three straight—the two games that finished off the Giants and pushed the Cardinals into the World Series last fall, and the first game of the series yesterday.

The No. 1 public enemy of all who hold the Dodgers dear, a Giant shortstop named Dick Bartell, was the particular fly in Brooklyn's soup today. They threw enough cannon crackers at him to blow his legs off, but they couldn't stop him. Bartell, who spiked Linus Frey badly last June, and Joe Judge the spring before, smacked Johnny Babich for a home run in the third, tripled off Frank Lamanske in the fourth, and made an amazing stop and throw off Al Lopez to force Joe Stripp at second and end the game after the Dodgers had scored two runs and were bruising Parmelee freely in the ninth.

Babich Pounded Out.

Babich, the young right-hander who pitched a one-hitter against the Phillies last time out, was belted out in less than three innings as the Giants piled up 11 hits all told. Joe Moore's triple and the first of Bill Terry's three singles scored a run in the first. Bartell's homer, Terry's single, another homer by Mel Ott, his fifth of the season, Hank Lieber's single, Gus Mancuso's double, finished Johnny in the third with four more runs in and brought Lamanske to the rescue.

Bartell's triple, a pass to Ott, Leiber's single and a couple of timely flies accounted for two off Lamanske in the fourth, whereupon the old Dazzler Vance arrived and shut the Giants out with two hits, one a triple by Ott, in four innings. Munns pitched the last inning for Brooklyn after Vance gave way to a pinch hitter.

Parmelee Effective.

Homers by Frey and Danny Taylor accounted for all the Brooklyn runs as the Dodgers hit Parmlee safely only seven times. Frey belted one over the right field wall in the second, only hit off Parmlee in the first five innings, bringing forth a junior World War demonstration from the faithful. Taylor's smash to the same place came with two out in the ninth after Cuccinello singled.

Stocks Suffer Slight Reaction In Dull Session

Silver Shares Drop With Metal Price; Utilities Firm.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 1.—Indifferent is the best word to describe the performance of stocks in today's session. Aside from a few specialties the general list was mildly reactionary.

Turnover in the stock exchange was 820,960 shares, and the Associated Press average for 60 stocks was off .1 of a point at 39.3. The utilities gave a shade better performance than the general average, but even here the gains were mostly of minor character.

Chrysler provided the best corporate news of the day, but it did not arrive until after the close of trading. The stock, which was fairly active during the trading period, ended a shade lower at 37¾.

Silver shares were again reactionary as the New York price of the white metal declined ¾ of a cent an ounce at 75 cents.

Wheat Weaker In Heavy Sales

Cotton 1 to 5 Points Off; Acreage Estimates Are Lowered.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 1.—Material setbacks of wheat prices late today resulted from heavy selling that was associated with reduction of trade estimates of prospective European wheat import requirements.

A leading British authority announced Europe would probably need to import but 404,000,000 bushels of wheat this season, whereas his original forecast was 448,000,000, a total which he had afterward curtailed to 416,000,000. It was also predicted today by him that probable Canadian wheat export shipments would be about 200,000,000 bushels, instead of 240,000,000, his latest previous revised estimate.

Wheat closed weak, ⅞ to 1⅜ under yesterday's finish; May 97⅝ to 97¾. Corn, ⅛ to ⅝ down; May, 89⅜. Oats, ⅜ to 1 cent off, and provisions unchanged to 10 cents decline.

As expected, deliveries of corn on May contracts today were next to nothing, only 15,000 bushels, and the price of May corn went up to 90⅜ cents, as against 45¾ to 45⅞ a year ago, showing values nearly doubled. Breaks in wheat prices, however, had a bearish effect afterward on corn as well as on oats. Provisions eased when grain markets turned weak.

Cotton Market.

New York, May 1 (AP).—Cotton fluctuated within a small range today, closing at net losses of 1 to 5 points. Aside from a little trade fixing in near months and light foreign demand, buying was restricted, but offerings were generally light, with traders awaiting new incentives or clarification of various uncertainties.

Three private acreage estimates were issued pointing to cotton plantings ranging from 30,550,000 up to 32,170,000 acres and all representing decreases from previous estimates by the same authorities.

World Commodity Price Level Measured in Gold Again Turns Downward as Rise Occurs Here, but Deflationary Presure on U. S. Prices Unlikely to Follow.

By a Special Correspondent.

New York, May 1.—Any appraisal of the likely future trend of commodity prices in this country must take into account the fact that the world commodity price level, as measured in terms of gold, still seems to be headed downward. Since the dollar is now tied to gold, any material decline in world prices would normally have repercussions here, despite the fact that our relatively self-contained economy and high tariff policy make American prices less sensitive to changes in the world level than is the case in most other countries.

The world commodity price level, measured in gold, registered a small recovery during the last half of 1934, after a very severe decline during the preceding years. Three factors were responsible for this. First, widespread drought in the northern hemisphere reduced supplies and raised prices of many agricultural staples. Secondly, Government intervention to curtail the supply of various products, as well as heavy purchases of manufactured goods in connection with rearmament, gave an artificial stimulus to prices. Thirdly, improvement in internal business conditions in most countries increased demand, and so had a firming effect on the price level.

This year, however, the world price level has turned downward once again, despite the further rise that has taken place in the United States. Last year's drought was obviously only a temporary influence. Government schemes to maintain prices, if past experience is any criterion, will prove of only temporary significance. Already this year we have had a sharp decline in coffee prices due to the virtual collapse of Brazilian restriction plans and a fall in the price of American cotton below the 12-cent-a-pound level at which the Government sought to peg the staple, through lending this amount to growers.

Currency Depreciation Trade Barriers Deflationary.

Pressure is being exerted on commodity prices by two major influences—currency depreciation and new foreign trade barriers. Devaluation of the belga and weakness in the pound sterling have both tended to depress the world price level as expressed in gold. Reduced buying in world markets by such countries as Germany and Italy, which have placed new barriers in the way of imports in the efforts to balance their trade and thus maintain the quotations of their currencies, has reduced the demand for such staple commodities as cotton, and thus made for weakness in their prices.

The Annalist prepares a composite index of commodity prices, stated in terms of gold, of nine countries, including the United States, Canada, Great Britain, the gold bloc countries, Germany, Italy and Japan. This index declined roughly by 50 per cent from 1929 to the early summer of 1934, when it reached a low point from which a small recovery was made lasting until February of this year.

The Annalis composite index stood at 73.5 it February. It declined by 1.1 per cent in March. The comparison between commodity price indices, as stated in gold, in March of this year and the same month in 1934 was as follows for leading countries:

	March, 1934.	March, 1935	% change.
United States.	64.5	73.1	+13.3
Canada	66.8	66.0	—1.2
U. Kingdom	64.6	60.1	—6.9
France	394	347	—11.9
Germany	95.1	101.1	+6.3
Italy	267.2	271.6	+1.7
Japan	47.9	46.2	—3.6
Composite, 9 countries	72.2	72.7	+0.7

It is thus apparent that, were it not for special factors, especially the drought, which raised commodity prices by 13.3 per cent in the United States during the past year, a sharp fall in the composite gold price index would have occurred.

Prices Here Not Yet Sensitive to World Drop.

If the downward trend in the world commodity price level, as measured in gold, should now be resumed, would they tend to pull down the American price level as well?

One important factor that will affect the answer to this question is the fact that the general price level in the United States is still too low relative to other gold standard countries, and to a lesser degree to the sterling bloc as well. While the dollar has been devalued by more than 40 per cent since early in 1933, our commodity price level has not risen in proportion. Hence, even if the world level should sag further, the result would be merely to bring American and foreign gold prices, in better alignment, rather than to exert any immediate serious pressure on our own price level.

Dollar devaluation in 1933-34 brought the American price level, in terms of gold, well below the then world parity. During the past year, this discrepancy has been sharply narrowed by a rise here and a fall in most countries abroad. However, the decline in the world gold price level could proceed some distance further without depressing materially the American price level, especially in view of the high tariff barrier which protects so many American agricultural and manufactured products. Hence, further deflation abroad would constitute a very poor excuse for any renewed agitation for monetary tinkering in this country.

Kresge Foundation Calls 6 Per Cent Notes

New York, May 1 (AP).—All of the outstanding ten-year collateral trust 6 per cent gold notes of the Kresge Foundation have been called for redemption.

The retirement price is 103 per cent of face value and accured interest to June 1.

Market Moves Of the Day Seen In Brief Review

What the Stock Market Did.

	Wed.	Tues.
Advances	216	170
Declines	279	353
Unchanged	191	164
Total issues	686	687

Stocks—Action was indifferent with some specialties recording gains. Utilities gave a shade better performance than the remainder of the list, which was reactionary in spots. Sales were 820,960 shares.

Bonds—Treasury issues climbed to new highs. Later realizing sales carried them below the highest levels. Utilities and industrials were firm, rails weak. Sales $15,701,000.

Curb—Hesitant in a narrow range. Some specialties firmed; bulk receded; 151,000 shares.

Grains—Lowering of European import estimates led to severe setbacks in wheat. Closes were weak, May at 97⅝. Deliveries on May corn were very small and boosted prices to 90⅜ cents for for the month. Wheat action affected it bearishly and it closed at 89⅜.

Cotton — Fluctuated narrowly and closed with net losses of 1 to 5 points. Trade fixing in near months created the only demand. May closed at 11.75.

Sugar—Raw sugar unchanged at 3.23. Refined closed the day at 5.25, also unchanged.

Coffee—Spot coffee was quiet. Rio No. 7 closed at 7 and Santos No. 4 sold last at 8½.

Bar silver—Off ¾ cent in New York to 75 cents per ounce. In London the last prices were off 3-16 pence to 34½d (75.04 cents).

Bar gold—Up 4 pence to 145 shillings in London ($35.01).

Van Sweringens' $48,000,000 Loans Are Not Called

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 1. — Loans of $48,000,000 to the Van Sweringen brothers of Cleveland which fell due today were not called for payment by the New York banking group, which extended the credit, it was reliably reported in Wall street today.

Members of the creditor banking group, headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., decined to comment on the situation, but it was learned that the group contemplated no formal action at this time.

Behind this loan is 51 per cent of the stock of Alleghany Corporation, key holding company in the Van Sweringen railroad empire. The banking group has been in a position to take formal control of the collateral at various times during the depression, since its market value has fallen to only a minor fraction of the amount of the loan.

Standard of N. J. Dividend.

New York, May 1 (AP).—Directors of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey declared the usual semiannual dividend of 50 cents on the capital stock, payable June 15 to stock of record May 16. The distribution will amount to about $12,800,000.

Sacks Named President by Building Body

Washington Permanent Celebrates 55 Years of Operation.

By Karl von Lewinski.

On the fifty-fifth anniversary of the Washington Permanent Building Association yesterday, Eckert J. Sacks, one of the small group that organized it early in 1881, was re-elected president.

Other officers were re-elected by company stockholders as follows: John Henderson, vice president; Carl J. Bergmann, treasurer; Hermann H. Bergmann, secretary, and C. Chester Caywood, general counsel. Henderson has been with the organization for 30 years, while Carl Bergmann has been actively connected with the firm for 32 years.

Directors of the association were named and include John H. Clipper, Walter H. Avery, Christopher Rammling, James R. Ellin, Clyde H. Miller, C. Chester Caywood, Max Walton and Joseph N. Saunders.

In the report of the Building Association's progress rendered by President Sacks he stated that loans during the first quarter of 1935 had increased 50 per cent over the corresponding period of 1934. Assets at the end of March had increased $250,000 over the last day of 1934 to a grand total of $8,500,000.

Begun at Gustav Hartig's.

The Washington Permanent Building Association saw its beginning at Gustav Hartig's hardware store at Seventh and K streets northwest where the small group of founders met to discuss the formation of a building association different from any then in operation in the District.

It was to follow the permanent rather than the serial plan, which meant continuation of the business from year to year instead of making a series of periodical settlements.

After a few conferences at Hartig's store, a larger meeting was held at Dismer's Saengerbund Hall, where preliminaries for drafting a constitution were decided. On May 14, 1881, the first meeting of the association convened at German Hall on Eleventh street northwest between F and G.

At this session the constitution was adopted and Charles Herman was elected president. George Walker was named vice president, and Gustav Hartig treasurer. Leonard Eckert was named secretary, and Henry H. Bergmann, assistant secretary.

People's Drug Sales Near High Record

Near record sales during the initial quarter of 1935 were reported by the Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., and Subsidiary Companies yesterday with total store income for the period at $4,510,907. Net profit after deductions was listed at $203,282.

Cost of sales stores operating, general and administrative expenses, including $78,698 amortization and depreciation, was put at $4,271,200 in the first three months. Gross operating profit was $239,-707, less deductions for Federal income and excess profit taxes of $32,777.

Dividends on the preferred stock took $31,369 from the net profit, making $171,913 or 72 cents per share available for common stock dividends or inclusion in the surplus.

Surplus Now Is $1,727,087.

Earned surplus of the company at the end of 1934 was $1,614,592, to which were added the net profits for the first three months of 1935. After deductions of the preferred dividend and quarterly cash dividend of $59,418 which was paid on the common stock, the remaining surplus was $1,727,087.

The company's balance sheet on the last day of March bore out the encouraging picture presented by sales and earning in the first period. Cash on hand and in banks was $1,705,191. Total assets of the corporation were put at $7,560,226, of which current assets accounted for $4,674,381, while fixed assets, including investments, loans, securities and the sinking fund for retirement of the 1945 preferred stock, aggregated $2,885,845.

Total current unpaid liabilities, including accounts payable of the store chain, were reported at $1,111,-702. There are 21,250 shares of the capital preferred 6½ per cent cumulative stock for a total par value of $2,125,000 outstanding at the present time. In addition there are 245,474 shares of the common stock with no par value outstanding.

J. b. Bache Opens Office.

Frank J. F. Thiel, manager of the Washington office of the New York Stock Exchange firm of J. S. Bache & Co., announced yesterday that his company had opened a new branch office in New Orleans.

The new unit increases to 41 the number of offices and branches in operation. Besides the main office and two branches in New York the organization now maintains offices in 39 cities in the United States, Canada and England.

J. P. Henican, jr., and Thomas E. Grinnen, partners of the dissolved firm of Henican, Grinnen & Co., New Orleans, will manage the new Bache branch in New Orleans, which is located in the Cotton Exchange Building. In addition to being members of the New York Stock, New York Cotton and other leading exchanges, J. S. Bache & Co. are also members of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange.

Roland G. Arrington is the new representative of J. S. Bache & Co. in Dallas, Tex., and M. J. Rogers has joined the New York staff of the firm. These men were also partners of the dissolved firm of Henican, Grinnen & Co.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

International dollar rates were steady in all leading centers yesterday.

In London the dollar was slightly higher at 4.92⅛ to the pound sterling and in New York the sterling was ¼ cent lower at 4.82¾.

In Paris the dollar was quiet, closing at an equivalent of 6.615 cents to the franc and in later dealings in New York the French currency yielded .00⅛ of a cent at 6.61⅛ cents. Other gold currencies were about even and little change was shown by leading silver units.

N. Y. Clearing House Banks End Time Deposit Interest

After May 15, ¼ Per Cent Interest Will Cease on Demand or Time Deposits of Savings Banks in Commercial Institutions.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 1.—More Wall street millions vanished today into the ocean of funds seeking profitable investment, when Clearing House banks stopped paying interest on time deposits.

But the action made hardly a ripple in the inactive excess reserve of money being held quiet by the lowest interest rates in the history of American banking.

The 19 members of the New York Clearing House Association no longer will pay one-fourth of 1 per cent interest on time deposits, which are payable within six months from the date of deposit, and after May 15 they will stop paying the same rate on the demand or time deposits of savings banks in commercial banks.

Investment Funds.

Time deposits consist chiefly of funds seeking safe investment for a short time while awaiting an opportunity for longer term use at higher interest rates. Savings banks and corporations, for example, place extra funds on deposit at low rates pending the appearance of investments which run for a longer time and pay higher rates.

Interest rates increase as the length of the loan increases and the safety factor decreases.

At the beginning of this week, time deposits in New York Clearing House banks totaled $581,695,000, or about 7.5 per cent of the demand deposits, which are savings accounts, still will receive from 1.5 to 2.5 per cent interest, and long-term deposits, funds remaining more than 180 days, will earn from around ¼ of 1 per cent upward.

All of those rates are small, but they are said by bankers to be in line with other "wages" for money. The United States Treasury recently hired money on a short-term basis equal to 0.153 of 1 per cent annual interest, and bankers acceptances for 30 to 90 days are quoted on a basis of from 3-16 to ⅛ of 1 per cent interest, all highly safe loans for a short period of time.

Withdrawals Not Expected.

Nevertheless, the savings bankers declare there is little likelihood that the money in commercial time deposits will be withdrawn wholesale for investment in some other market because the financial relations between some savings and commercial banks have existed for generations—too long to be disputed by "small change."

Mutual savings banks of New York State had $250,993,907 deposited in commercial banks January 1, the bulk of it in New York City, but the total was only 4.21 per cent of total savings bank assets. Loss of interest to savings banks was estimated by one banker at less than $250,000 a year as a result of Clearing House action.

Banking quarters believe most of the money will remain idle in the banks. One avenue of escape, a flight of the capital to other centers, was said by bankers to be closed because of two factors.

First, and probably strongest in the opinion of many, is the danger of destroying good-will between the banks. The second, a practical barrier, is the chance that banks outside of New York if swamped with funds seeking deposit, even at ⅛ of 1 per cent, would be forced to cease the payment.

Chrysler Adds Extra Dividend

Quarter's Net $2.12 Per Share Against 76 Cents in 1934 Period.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 1.—Chrysler Corporation directors today declared an extra dividend of 25 cents on the common stock. Profits of the corporation for the March quarter were equal to $2.12 a share against 76 cents a share for the same period last year. With the extra dividend the board also ordered the usual quarterly disbursement of 25 cents. Both dividends are payable June 29 to stock of record June 1.

Consolidated net profit for the March quarter amounted to $9,163,-182 after interest, depreciation, taxes and other deductions against $3,303,850 in the like period last year. The quarter's profit of $9,-163,182 was after deducting a non-recurring charge of $1,507,525 premium on $30,150,500 of Dodge Bros. debentures called for redemption on May 1.

Shell Union Oil Corporation in its report for 1934 shows a net loss of $949,111, after all charges, compared with a net loss in 1933 of $5,-250,290. A net charge against income of $404,789, however, in connection with debenture retirement brought the 1934 loss to $1,353,900, compared with a loss in 1933 of $4,240,964.

The corporation reported that the number of employes increased to 32,107 at the end of last year compared with 27,880 at the same time in 1933, an increase of more than 15 per cent.

The Hudson Motor Car Co., fourth largest producer in the country, reports net profits of $235,610.46 for the quarter ended March 31, 1935, which total is the largest profit reported for any quarterly period since 1931. The profit for the March quarter compares with a loss of $802,845 reported for the first quarter of 1934.

Standard Oil of California reports net profit of $4,891,021 in the first quarter of 1935, compared with $3,318,190 in the 1934 quarter. Net was equal to 37 cents a share, compared with 25 cents in the first quarter of last year. Directors declared a dividend of 25 cents a share, payable June 15 to stockholders of record May 15.

The Commonwealth Edison Co. reports gains for the first three months of 1935 and for the 12 months ended March 31. The first quarter showed a preliminary figure of $3,196,066 ($1.96 a share) compared with a net of $2,684,603 ($1.65 a share) for the first quarter last year and adjusted net of $8,866,351 ($5.51 a share) for the year ended March 31, compared with $8,213,370 ($5.06 a share) in the preceding 12 months.

Kelvinator Corporation for the first half of its fiscal year reports that for the first time in the last five years, operations resulted in a net profit. This profit, amounting to $66,975, compares with a loss of $36,419 for the first half of the 1934 fiscal year.

Gold Output Rises Throughout the World

New York, May 1 (AP).—Production of gold throughout the world in March totaled 2,290,000 fine ounces, compared with 2,147,000 in February, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reported today.

In the United States production was 269,000 ounces, against 220,000 in February.

Canadian output was 242,000 ounces against 229,000 in February. South African production was 882,-000 ounces against 820,000 in February.

Price of Silver Again Declines

75 Cents in New York, 75.04 in London, Where New Market Opens.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 1.—World silver prices today resumed the decline which started Saturday. After holding unchanged at 75¾ an ounce at New York yesterday, the price for foreign bar silver for commercial use was cut ¾ of a cent to 75 cents. This compared with the 15-year peak reached last Friday of 81 cents, and followed reductions in London and Montreal.

The London price dipped 3-16 of a penny to an equivalent to 75.04 cents. Montreal futures prices dipped ½ to 1½ cents.

London, May 1.(AP).—A new silver market was opened on the metal exchange today as dealings were instituted in fine silver in lots of 5,000 ounces "for any prompt and up to and including three months."

The plan had been under consideration for some time. Some years prior to the war the metal exchange did some dealing in silver but dropped it after about three years.

The revival is believed to be due to the fact that greater interest and importance is attached to silver now that the United States has taken steps to raise the price. Also, since the virtual cessation of speculation in Canada and the United States, much business has been driven to London, and metal brokers see an opportunity of getting some of this for themselves.

National City Bank Cites Industrial Lift

New York, May 1 (AP).—An improvement in business sentiment in April and an increase of more than 21 per cent in first-quarter profits of industrial corporations were cited today by the National City Bank as evidences of national economic advancement.

"The upward course of stock and commodity prices during April has supplied tangible evidence of an improvement in business sentiment as compared with March," the bank stated in its monthly letter. An analysis of 210 industrial corporations showed a gain of 21.8 per cent in profits in the first quarter of 1935, compared with the 1934 first quarter.

"About 66 per cent of the individual companies made a better showing this year, either by increasing profits or by decreasing the size of their deficits, while 34 per cent made a poorer showing," the bank stated.

"In most cases where sales figures are available, a gain is shown in volume of business for the quarter over that of last year."

Federal Bonds Gain New High; Rails in Slump

Strength of Treasury Issues Attracts Some Selling.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 1.—Railroad issues hoisted distress signals on the bond market again today but other divisions paid little heed and ventured higher under a strong Government department.

New record prices were established for half of the Treasury's bonds before the rise attracted enough profit taking to arrest the movement. The subsequent recession was moderate and closing prices were from 2-32ds to 6-32ds net higher. In Liberties and indirect obligations the advances were almost as wide. The excellent progress reported by Treasury officials in converting the called first Liberty loan bonds received prominent mention in investment house discussions.

Although there were exceptions, the general run of industrial and utility bonds were able to get up fractions, and in some cases a point or more.

Disappointment over the failure of the Supreme Court to hand down a decision in the pension cases last Monday was believed partly responsible for the further unloading of railroad loans.

Transfers aggregated $15,701,000, par value, compared with $10,844,000 on Tuesday.

100 Stocks Rise 10.2% To Year's High in April

New York, May 1.—An increase of 10.2 per cent in 100 representative common stocks, the sharpest advance in more than a year, lifted the valuation of the group to the highest point for 1935, according to the monthly compilation issued by Frazier Jelke & Co.

The total market value of the stocks at the end of the month stood at $12,843,332,000, compared with $11,647,030,000 at the end of March and $13,235,184,000 at the end of December. The largest advances took place in mining and oil shares, each group rising 16.5 per cent. Building stocks gained 11.9 per cent, while steels rose 10.8, chemicals 10.7 and utilities 10 per cent. On a dollar basis the most extensive gain was in the oils, which increased in value to the amount of $389,656,000. Railroad shares rallied 9.6 per cent, exactly the same percentage of decline recorded in March.

Curb Hesitant, Range Narrow

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 1.—The curb market was generally in a waiting mood today. Price changes, for the most part, were restricted, some additional realizing appeared in the general list, while selective demand was also apparent among various specialties. Transfers approximated 151,000 shares, compared with 156,000 Tuesday.

A steady to firm tone prevailed among shares of Aluminum Co. of America, Creole Petroleum, Distillers Corp.-Seagrams, Dow Chemical, Rubberoid, Texas Gulf Products and United Shoe Machinery. Recessions were registered by Newmont Mining, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Sunshine Mining, American Cyanamid "B," International Petroleum and Lake Shore.

Sealed proposals will be received at Room 500 District Building until 2 o'clock p. m., Eastern Standard Time, May 28, 1935, and then publicly opened, for constructing sludge digestion tanks, gas holder and flutriation tanks for a sewage treatment plant at Blue Plains. Complete description of the work and full information for bidders is given in the drawings, specifications and in other contract papers, which may be obtained at the office of chief clerk, engineer department, Room 427, District Building, upon deposit of a certified check payable to the collector of taxes, D. C., in the sum of $100 to insure return in good condition. Not more than three complete sets of drawings, specifications and contract papers will be furnished to any one general contractor. No proposal will be accepted unless accompanied by a guaranty of not less than 5 per cent (5%) of the amount of the bid in the form of a certified check made payable to the collector of taxes, D. C., or U. S. Bonds or the bond of an approved surety company, security for the faithful performance of the work shall be in the form of a surety bond in a penal sum equal to the estimated total contract price. A labor bond in an amount equal to the largest estimated aggregate pay roll for any one month is required. Public liability insurance in the sum of $5,000 and $10,000 is also required. The work called for by this proposal is to be performed in accordance with an agreement dated October 18, 1934, between the Commissioners of the District of Columbia and the Federal Emergency Administrator of Public Works and is subject to the provisions of Title II of the National Industrial Recovery Act and the rules and regulations prescribed by the President and the Federal Emergency Administrator of Public Works. The director of re-employment for the District of Columbia is Edgar B. Young, 480 Indiana avenue northwest. No bid will be considered unless accompanied by the bidder's certificate of compliance, properly executed, to the effect that the bidder is complying with and will continue to comply with each applicable code of fair competition or, in the absence of such code or codes, with the President's Reemployment Agreement. Copies of this certificate may be obtained from the Commissioners reserve the right to reject any and all proposals and to waive informalities as they deem best for the interest of the District of Columbia. Final award of contract is subject to approval of the Federal Emergency Administrator of Public Works. Attention is called to the fact that not less than the minimum wage rates prescribed by the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works must be paid on this project.

The Smithsonian Institution says that the American Indians were anarchists. That's why they call them redmen, no doubt.

And it may be that the Indian chief was just a sissy, but don't tell us that the tommyhawk was an early tennis racquet and that the war-whooping was done through a megaphone.

"The dirt will fly soon."—President Roosevelt. He knows those Republican critics.

The American Locomotive Works has developed a streamlined steam engine that will go faster than any streamline electric engine yet built. We can't wait to hear it give the electric train the, so to speak, iron horse laugh.

"Biscuit Strike Ends."—headline. The biscuit makers get, obviously, the dough. At no time, as we understand it, did Gen. Johnson say anything about cracker-downing.

Naval Academy Chooses June 6 For Graduation

445 Diplomas to Be Given at Height of 'June Week Program.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Md., May 1.—Commencement Day at the Naval Academy will be June 6, it was announced formally today. Officials also issued a program of drills, practical exercises and social events.

Approximately 445 midshipmen will receive their diplomas and the address to the graduates will be delivered by Senator Park Trammell, of Florida, chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, who also will present the coveted parchments.

The "June week" program will begin June 1 with a series of athletic contests featured by the annual lacrosse game with the Military Academy. A luncheon for graduates will be held at the officers' club and the day's activities will culminate with a regimental dance.

Outstanding social functions will be a garden party in honor of the graduates given by the Superintendent and Mrs. David F. Sellers, the second class ring dance and a hop by third classmen, all on the night of June 3, and the farewell ball to the graduates June 5.

graduates given by the Superintendthat always bring thousands of visitors, other important events will be the presentation of colors and regimental dress parade on June 4, and awards for athletic honors and excellence in professional branches to take place at dress parade the following day.

Sprener to Play Piano On Y.W.C.A. Program

Stanley Sprenger, a pianist, of Philadelphia, will be soloist at the concert by the Elizabeth Somers Glee Club Friday evening at the residence home of the Y. W. C A., Eleventh and M streets northwest.

Mr. Sprenger, a Rumanian who has done all his studying in the United States, was formerly organist and choir master at the Cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul in Philadelphia. His program will include numbers by Mozart and Chopin.

Senate Group to Air Nomination of Scott

Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, yesterday announced a Senate Judiciary sub-committee would hold public hearings, beginning tomorrow, on the nomination of Armond W. Scott for the seat on the Municipal Court bench now held by Judge James A. Cobb. The first hearing will be held at 4 p. m. in the Senate District Committee room in the Capitol.

Scott's nomination was announced April 22 by President Roosevelt. A leading colored member of the local bar, he would replace another prominent colored attorney in Cobb, veteran of nine years' service.

Dust Belt Watches Sky For TNT Cloud Targets

By the Associated Press.

Dalhart, Tex., May 1.—Farmers and ranchers of the drought-stricken Texas Panhandle scanned dust-laden skies tonight for clouds they hope will unload moisture tomorrow when a truckload of explosives is set off in a rain-making experiment. Everything was set today for Tex Thornton, explosives expert of Amarillo, to send loads of TNT, tied to balloons, high into the air for explosions which it was hoped would shake moisture from the clouds.

Thousands gathered for the demonstration—but the balloons were delayed.

Public Will See Return of Byrd

Navy Yard Here Will Be Opened May 10.

By the Associated Press.

Virginians may witness the return of their fellow Virginian, Admiral Richard E. Byrd, when he reaches here May 10 from his second South Pole exploration.

The Washington Navy Yard will be opened to the public for the reception of the Virginia explorer by President Roosevelt. The Chief Executive will be at the dock when the cutter Bear reaches port and shortly afterward will take Byrd aboard the Commerce Department yacht Sequoia.

Byrd also is expected to be greeted by a congressional committee. Resolutions are to be offered next week by Senator Glass and Representative Robertson, of Lexington, providing for the reception committee and also commending the polar explorations.

Two Students Killed, 20 Hurt in Bus Wreck

Ada, Okla., May 1 (AP).—Two women students of East Central Oklahoma Teachers College were killed, five students seriously injured and 15 less seriously hurt when a bus overturned near Roff, Okla., south of here, late today.

The dead:

Mrs. Erma Watson, 25, Waggoner, mother of a 10-months-old baby, and Mrs. De Merle Turner Triest, 21, Atwood.

Vatican May Protest For the Reich Youths

Vatican City, May 1 (AP).—Prelates said tonight the Holy See may protest to Germany against the alleged treatment of 2,000 young German Catholics as "political suspects."

Osservatore Romano, organ of the Vatican, earlier printed reports from Germany that the youths were treated as suspects when they returned home after receiving the blessing of Pope Pius.

The churchmen cautiously explained, however, that the protest is "a mere possibility," and not necessarily a probability.

Defense Rests Case In Mail Fraud Trial

2 in Pipeline Case Free on Directed Verdicts.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 1.—The defense in the mail fraud trial of Frank P. Parish, promoter of the bankrupt $35,000,000 Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co., and Samuel J. Madden, of Kansas City, a director of the company, rested late today.

Counsel for Parish and Madden took a week to answer the charges which the Government presented during three weeks of testimony.

Four men went to trial before Federal Judge John P. Barnes April 2, but upon completion of the prosecution's case, the court granted motions for directed verdicts in behalf of Ralph C. Crandall, Chicago attorney, and James F. McMannmon, Tulsa, Okla., banker and oil man.

Ship Aground in Collision.

Bay City, Mich., May 1 (AP).—The S. S. Diamond Alkali, of the Cornelius & Boland Line, of Buffalo, outbound, light, struck the abutment piers of the Third Street Bridge today and then went aground at the edge of the river channel.

P.-T. A. Body Changes By-Laws on Elections

Miami, Fla., May 1 (AP).—Changes in by-laws and discussion on improving child health and education featured the National Congress of Parents and Teachers here today.

The convention decided that effective in 1937, the president, first vice president and secretary would be elected on one year; the second, fourth and sixth vice presidents on the following year and the third, fifth and seventh vice presidents on the next year. At present all the officers are elected simulaneously once every three years.

Arguments Commence In Prof. Bragg Trial

Final arguments in the trial of Prof. Paul C. Bragg, health lecturer charged with violating the District healing arts practice act, opened yesterday in Police Court.

The trial will go into its fifth day today when Prosecutor Louis Whitestone and Defense Attorney Robert Grossman are expected to submit their cases to Judge Ralph Given. A motion to dismiss charges against Prof. Bragg was over-ruled by Judge Given yesterday.

Previously, Prof. Bragg has testified that he does not attempt to cure or diagnose diseases, but lectures on health, proper foods and correct living.

Girl, 14, Still Missing After School Quarrel

Thermopolis, Wyo., May 1 (AP).—Fourteen-year-old Dorothy Pristariec has been sought since she disappeared from Evergreen School near Thermopolis Monday, Sheriff Ray Foutch disclosed today.

Sheriff Foutch said he was told Dorothy left school at noon Monday after a quarrel with schoolmates and told them she was going home. She never arrived.

Quick Divorces Asked In Florida Measure

Tallahassee, Fla., May 1 (AP).—Prospective tourists would have quick divorces, if wanted, as an added incentive to visit Florida under a measure pending in the State Senate.

Already approved by the House, the bill changes the length of legal residence required from one year to 90 days in what its author, Representative M. M. Frost, of Jacksonville, described as a bid for the divorce business now going to Reno and Little Rock.

Broadway

Water Under the Bridge.

New York, May 1.

April 6, 1917, on Broadway: Bands blared as the Stem was electrified by President Wilson's declaration of war . . . At the Morosco Theater, Trixie Friganza and Charlie Ruggles were playing in "Canary Cottage" . . . John Barrymore was at the Republic Theater in "Peter Ibbetson" . . . Lowell Sherman was emoting in "The Knife" at the Bijou . . . The Hippodrome was featuring Annette Kellermann, and announcing the next Sunday night society show, with Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney as chairman . . . Irene Castle, with Vernon in service, was headlined at the Palace . . . Ruby de Remer was at the Marcus Loew Theater in "Enlighten Thy Daughter," approved by press and clergy . . . Elsie Janis was at the Century in Ziegfeld's "Century Girl," with Frank Tinney, Leon Errol, Van and Schenck and Sam Bernard . . . At the Cohan Theater, "Come Out of the Kitchen" featured Ruth Chatterton . . . Downtown at old Madison Square Garden, 4,000 children watched the Barnum & Bailey Circus, and didn't know or care about war with Germany.

Eighteen Years Later: Wilson is dead, but the morning papers report Europe seething with hatred, and war again is in the air . . . Charlie Ruggles now is a famous cinema star, but Trixie Friganza isn't so fortunate . . . John Barrymore declines to comment on divorce rumors . . . Lowell Sherman is dead . . . Vernon Castle is dead . . . Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney is in every other line of the Gloria Vanderbilt trial evidence on page 1 . . . Irene Castle now is Mrs. McLaughlin, prominent in Chicago society . . . Ruby de Remer, the Ziegfeld beauty, is now Mrs. Ben Throop and lovely to look at . . . Sam Bernard is dead, Joe Schenck, of Van and Schenck, is dead . . . Frank Tinney's career was ruined in the Imogene Wilson (Mary Nolan) scandal and Elsie Janis was to become even more famous as a doughboy entertainer . . . Ruth Chatterton is in flickers . . . The children who watched the circus 15 years ago are grown up, big enough to stop a bullet.

November 11, 1918, on Broadway: The Stem thanked God today, for the Armistice had been signed . . . Ina Claire, playing in "The Gold Diggers," addressed the Lyceum audience, told them the boys would soon be home again . . . Frank Bacon, in "Lightnin'" at the Gaiety, brought down the house with the same type of speech . . . So did Eddie Leonard at the Knickerbocker in "Roly-Boly Eyes" . . . At the Capitol, Arthur Pryor's Band played "Home Sweet Home" as a tribute to New York's divisions . . . Raymond Hitchcock's "Hitchy-Koo," at the Liberty, was interrupted by cheers every time he mentioned the armistice . . . Vivienne Segal was starring in "The Little Whopper" . . . Fay Bainter was in "East Is West" . . . Broadway was delirious with happiness, excited and thrilled by the certainty that the bloody slaughter was at an end . . . The papers, giving thanks, said editorially: "There will never be another war."

• • • •

Seventeen years later: Ina Claire is still a great stage favorite . . . Frank Bacon is dead, Eddie Leonard is no longer a great star, Raymond Hitchcock is dead . . . Arthur Pryor's son, Roger Pryor, now plays in the movies opposite Mae West . . . Vivienne Segal is a radio star . . . Fay Bainter is still a noted performer . . . The Gaiety, where Frank Bacon made history, is now devoted to second-run movies . . . Saner editorial now combat the hired propaganda experts of Europe and advise President Rosevelt to keep us out of the next war.

May, 1920, on Broadway: Giants and Brooklyn opened their first series of the season . . . McGraw's starting line-up included Burns, Young, Fletcher, Doyle, Statz, Kauff, Lear, Kelly, Snyder, Benton, Gonzales, Barnes . . . Uncle Wilbert Robinson's starting line-up was Olsen, Johnston, Kilduff, Zack Wheat, Meyers, Konetchy, Schmandt, Neis, Hood, Elliott, Marquard, Kreuger, Baird, Mitchell, Grimes . . . At Boston, Gov. Calvin Coolidge vetoed a bill to permit the manufacture of 2.75 beer . . . Billy B. Van and Jim Corbett were at the Lyric . . . Fritzi Scheff was headlining at the Palace, and Whipple & Huston at the Orpheum . . . Fannie Hurst's secret wedding to Jacques Danielson was revealed after five years . . . Lou Tellegen was in "Speak of the Devil."

• • • •

Fifteen Years Later: Giants and Brooklyn have opened another season with another series, but McGraw and Robinson are dead, Pep Young is dead, and of those 1920 line-ups, not one player remains in active service today . . . Gov. Calvin Coolidge, who was to become President, is dead . . . 2.75 beer is dead . . . Jim Corbett is dead . . . Fritzi Scheff, who introduced Victor Herbert's "Kiss Me Again," is down on her luck . . . Whipple & Huston broke up and now he's Walter Huston . . . Fannie Hurst is still writing best sellers . . . Lou Tellegen is dead . . . Water Under the Bridge, a record of the things that might have been, a filing cabinet of forget-me-nots, a card index of all the heartaches and headaches of Broadway.

One of the most sensational coat sales we've ever offered. So good a buy that our merchandise manager took a plane to Cleveland (where Printzess Coats are made) as soon as he heard about them. A large number of these coats are in women's sizes. Most of them are in navy and black. Many are untrimmed. All of them have the perfect tailoring, cut and fit that makes a Printzess Coat what it is. And if our merchandise manager . . . who hardly ever gets excited about anything . . . made two plane trips to insure getting these coats (and getting them here) they must be good!
